Youth Flees Jail, Surrenders

Marion Hopkins, 19, Carlisle, held for grand jury action on four charges, escaped from the Nicholas County jail Thursday night but surrendered Friday afternoon to Sheriff Bill Dollins.

County Judge Floyd Clark said Hopkins told the jailer to come to his cell and when the door was opened, Hopkins pushed the jailer and ran from the jail into the street.

Sheriff Dollins received a call this afternoon from the Hopkins' home that he wanted to surrender. The youth was picked up at his home.

Judge Clark said no charge has been filed in connection with the escape.

Hopkins is being held to the grand judy on three charges of breaking and entering, and one of damaging public property.
