ROGER BAGBY SAYS

Corporate income tax rate next year, we look for only a very slight overall rise in corporate profits, noting to compare with this year's 4.9% increase.

21. Labor disputes will be numerous in 1965. Many labor pacifists will be responsive to wage adjustments during the coming two years.

22. Employment will continue favorable in 1965, but additions to rolls will be noticeable in fields such as teaching, personal services, and government work.

23. Little real progress will be made in the drive to reduce unemployment. We are now just "touching off" the big wave of expansion in growth of the labor force.

24. Due to rising labor costs, look for inflation to turn even more to automation and labor-saving devices in agricultural assures on profit margins.

25. Because of rising expenses and overwhelming competition, larger price increases in 1965 will be seen in 1965.

26. As a result of automobile strikes late in 1964 and the fear of a possible steel shutdown in mid-1965, we look for a large increase in volume during the first half of 1965.

27. In a nutshell, business should make new all-time highs in early 1965; after midyear, a springing off against half and with labor costs increasing, peaks in industrial commodity prices, and month by month price increases, we will see a sharp decline in at least during the coming six months.

28. Living costs will also rise as a result of rising heights. And, since President Johnson is committed to getting Medicare passed at this session of Congress, look for hospital, nursing, and doctors' fees to spurt before the end of 1965.

29. Even with federal income taxes already increased in 1964, we expect next year and with prospects of higher excise taxes will be cut, but the knowledge that local taxes will take a bite out of the security levels will rise as the Congress enacts the 90th Congress enact Medicare.

30. The important automobile industry should post another all-time high in 1965, but as the year advances we feel that gains will be harder to come by.

31. The powerful building and construction activities should prove a strong support for business during 1965 ... even though we foresee no marked improvement in some sectors.

32. Overextension of credit and overambition of operators have put the real estate market in a state in many large metropolitan areas, and in some sections and a breathing spell is logical.

33. Overextension of credit and overambition of operators have put the real estate market in a state in many large metropolitan areas, and in some sections and a breathing spell is logical.

34. Although we are not forecasting runaway inflation for 1965, we do foresee a sharp decline in at least during the coming six months.

Too many farmers are content with average forage yields when they could be producing twice as much crop from the same acreage, says Dr. Robert E. Wagner, president of the American Grassland Council.

Wagner says Virginia research shows yields can be increased and production costs reduced with good fertility practices.

He says the use of lime and phosphorus, applying the proper amount of fertilizer and reducing the cost of alfalfa-orchard grass hay from $34.11 per ton to only $18.76 per ton.

With forage crops, as with most other crops, adequate fertilization is the key to lower per-ton production costs, according to Dr. Wagner.
