acre; yields for the past three crops have steadily increased and reached an all-time high of 2,097 pounds per acre in 1963. With increased yields per acre, a smaller acreage is needed to obtain the desired production.

As in the past, a small acreage has been reserved for establishing allotments for farms having no Burley tobacco acreage history during the past 5 years, for correcting errors, and for adjusting inequities.

Prices for the 1964 crop of Burley tobacco will be supported at an average of 58.9 cents per pound. The 1963-crop prices were supported at an average of 58.3 cents per pound.

KU INSTALLING DIGITAL COMPUTERS

Kentucky Utilities Company is installing a computer whose main job will be to tell the eight generating units in the K. U. power plants when, where and how much electricity to produce.

Use of the computer, the first digital dispatch/and operations computer system of its kind in the electric power industry, is in keeping with the company's policy of continually searching for ways and means to produce power at the lowest possible cost, W. A. Duncan, Lexington, vice president in charge of operations, said.

This computer, to be housed in the company's Dix Dam dispatching center, hub of the power transmission network, will continually adjust the load supplied by the various sources on the K. U. system so that the lowest overall cost of production is always realized he explained.

It will improve operating efficiency and system reliability because of the high speed and great accuracy with which it can perform many complex engineering calculations and operations.

The computer system is included in the $13,000,000 worth of new facilities and construction announced for 1964. The system's cost is estimated at $225,000 with an additional $124,000 to be spent on associated dispatching equipment.

Every three seconds, the computer will scan the output of the individual generators and interconnection tie-line loads and automatically send impulses to control the output of the generating units. In connection with its dispatching functions, it will also regularly record data on system operation, assist in more economical scheduling of generators for daily operation and evaluate prospective power sale and purchase transactions with adjacent systems.

Since the computer can perform 100,000 individual calculations a second, its regular assignments are expected to use only 20 per cent of its capacity, leaving the rest for other mathematical and statistical studies.

SEN. PALMER, KISER INTRODUCE BILL

Frankfort—Senators Wilson Palmer, Cynthiana, and Bert Kiser, have introduced a measure (SB63) to give directors and inspectors of the State Agriculture Department's Division of Weights and Measures police powers.

They would be authorized to arrest without warrant violators of weights and measures laws, to seize incorrect or unsealed weights and measures or amounts of packages used, and to enter premises and require persons to proceed to the nearest inspection place.

LOCAL LIBRARY RECEIVES STATE AID

The Nicholas County Memorial Library has received checks in the amount of $2,300.00 in State Aid from the Kentucky Department of Libraries. This grant to us is in recognition of our accomplishments in the library this last year. $1,000.00 of this amount is given to us because we passed our tax for the library. The rest of the money is given to us to buy books, records, pictures, etc. to increase the usefullness of our library for all the citizens of our town and county.

The Kentucky Department of Libraries is very anxious to help all of the people in Kentucky to have adequate library service. This is one of the ways we can raise the standards of education and income for the people of our state.

We have taken many steps toward this goal in the past. We hope to take a large one in the near future.

You are urged to visit your library. Use the books, records, pictures, magazines that are there for you.

We have an excellent collection of reference material in all areas of knowledge to help you when you are looking for information in your own special interest area.
