

First Rate Auto Driver Not Always Safe on Tractor

Every summer thousands of high school and college students hire out as farm help.

All too often these young men, although living in small towns in rural areas, have no real farming experience. They know little of any farm hazards. To these, routine farm chores may be little different from driving a car.

Certainly, much of farm work requires a minimum of physical fitness. Physical condition is important, but most young men of high school and college age are already in pretty good shape.

But they may not know, when they first hire on, such things as the proper way to lift heavy and bulky loads with the legs, not the back, or how to pitch hay to the top of a wagon without developing back trouble.

It takes but a few minutes to show a new hand the right and safe way to perform whatever tasks he will be doing with muscles and simple hand tools.

If he is to operate power equipment, more pains must be taken with his instruction. Inexperienced operators are most frequently the victims of power accidents.

The tractor is involved in most farm power mishaps. Usually the machine operator. Every operator should be able to recognize the hazards and avoid them. The National Safety Council has these tips:

• The tractor is designed for power, not for speed. It does its job most efficiently when operated slowly.

• When going to or from the field, go slowly. A hidden bump or ditch at an at too high a speed can flip the machine over or pinch the operator off.

• Take the tractor on roads only when you have to. Skip out of traffic. Tractor cannot keep up with high-speed cars and trucks.

• Working the side of a slope requires extra caution. A back bump or quick turn can roll the tractor over. Don't try to farm a slope that is too steep.

• Climb a steep grade in reverse to prevent any chance of a backward upset. Don't try to handle a heavy load going down such a hill—land—keep the machine in gear.

• Pull only from the drawbar. A

Four seasons outside ...

... one season inside

with all-electric comfort conditioning

Electricity turns the four seasons into one inside your home—and believe us, it's the best season of all. In summer, central air conditioning or window units turn your home into a cool, calm oasis. You sleep better... feel better... enjoy life more.

And in winter, clean, flameless electric heat gives you the luxury of individual room control. Electric comfort conditioning combines the best to give you your "round climate control in your home. And best of all—year-round comfort conditioning takes you one step closer to the "joy of total electric living."

VA Questions And Answers

Q—Where should I send a change of address notice for my compensation check? It comes from some place in Chicago.

A—You should mail your change of address notice for any VA payments to the records office where your records are maintained. This is the VA office which authorized your payments. If you move to another regional office area, the VA will transfer your records to this new regional office after you report the move.

Q—How do you get a veteran who requires medical treatment into a VA hospital?

A—The veteran or his physician applies for admission which is forthcoming if he is eligible, needs medical care and a bed is available. In service-connected cases, a bed is always available.) In the case of a sudden emergency, the veteran may be taken directly to the hospital but someone acting for the veteran

Q—I live in a small community and have been unable to find a lending agency which will grant me a loan to purchase a home. How may I obtain a GI loan?

A—Get in touch with your nearest VA Regional Office to see if your county is on the approved list for VA direct loans. If it is, you may be able to obtain a VA direct loan for home purchase.

Q—My uncle, a World War I veteran, recently died leaving no family except a daughter who is twenty-three but in an institution. Is it possible for her to receive pension?

A—Children normally receive payments until age eighteen, or until twenty-one if still in school. However, one who becomes helpless before eighteen may still be paid as long as helplessness continues. A claim should be filed to determine your cousin's entitlement.

Q—A member of the reserves injured while in inactive duty training, eligible for disability compensation through the VA?

A—Yes. The law provides compensation for injuries incurred in line of duty by reservists during a drill or other period of authorized inactive duty training. Application should be filed with the nearest VA Regional office, and be accompanied by an official statement from the Unit Commander showing the date, circumstances, nature and line of duty status of the injury.

Q—Does the VA handle state veteran bonus payments?

A—Bonus payments by VA—Can a veteran buy a home in a foreign country with a GI loan guaranteed by the VA?

A—The VA has no GI loan program in any foreign country.

Q—A World War II veteran who is 100 percent disabled eligible for a GI loan to buy a home?

A—Yes. If he is otherwise qualified and can meet the credit requirements of the lender.
