olas County friends, both white and colored. A short note from her daughter, Darlene came to me last week while I was in the Nicholas County Hospital. Lee had been in bad health for many months and I kept hoping to go and see her, but that time never came and I am deeply grieved because I never had a truer friend than what to do with her illness. My parents, Lee, with us and night—

Dear Mr. Fisher:
Again you have the problem of death to do with Lewis Scott's memories.

(Editor's Note: The article was published on page nine of the June 18 issue.)
Don't let this one bother you. If it does not appeal to you send it back or discard it.

As a substitute for what has for several years been my pleasure to attend, the Carlisle Blackberry Festival, I have already enjoyed a week at the New York World's Fair and am all set to go to Alaska in July via Bann, Lake Louise, and Jasper Park, returning with a stop over in Seattle. Not a bad prospect for a Senior Citizen, eh?

The Mercury is becoming quite a paper, but I think it's heading—The Carlisle Mercury could well be more prominently displayed across the full front page. There has only been one Carlisle Mercury in almost

THE HANDOUT AND THE CHAINS
By Tom Anderson

Many years ago a drove of wild hogs lived in a big bend of the Cumberland River in Georgia. They had survived floods, fires, hunters and droughts. Hunters bragged when their dogs fought the hogs and returned alive. Finally a one-galled man came by the country on the river road and asked how he could find the wild hogs. He said he had them all over in a pen in the swamp. People came from miles around to see the captive hogs which all the natives knew couldn't be captured.

"It's all very simple," drowed the one-galled stranger. "First I put out some corn, and there scattered to the undergrowth. Soon they were all eating it. (If one didn't, he knew the others would.) So then I began building a pen around the corn, a little higher each day. 'Fore long I noticed they were all waiting for me to bring the corn and had stopped grubbing for acorns and roots. I built the trap. Naturally, they raised Cain when they seen I had 'em, but I can put any animal on the face of the earth if I get him to depend on me for a free handout."

APPLYING THE CHAINS
Through history it has been the same—the people trade the right to handle their own affairs to the government, for handouts. Federal Aid is federal control.

Bit by bit the planners take more and more control and taxes. The police state measures must be applied to the people, and the totalitarian dictatorship takes over everything.

Communism and Communism arrive at the same end, though not at the same time nor the same way. Socialism is creeping revolution. It's Communism with a slow-burning fuse. But in the end, both result in dictatorship, in domination of the individual by the state, in the destruction of representative government.

"The American people will never knowingly adopt Socialism, but under the name of Liberalism, they will adopt every fragment of the Socialist program until America will one day be a Socialist nation without knowing how it happened."

I have never known a person who admitted to bring a Socialist, and yet Socialism is a bigger menace to America than Communism. Socialism is our number one enemy, because we won't go Communist until we've already gone Socialist.
