Bus 'Nappers

According to the Paris Daily Enterprise, John Smith of the Ruddles Mill Road, "Couldn't believe his eyes," when he woke up Sunday and found a Greyhound bus parked in his front yard.

The bus was parked in Smits' yard sometime between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. Sunday.

Smits notified Bourbon County Deputy Sheriff Fred Boling. Deputy Boling called Deputy Sheriff Reuben Armsparger, who went to the scene, and then checked with the bus company. It was then discovered the bus had been taken from its parking place near Woody's garage on Walnut Street, Carlisle.

Apparently the bus scraped a bridge abutment or other object, as one side of the vehicle was reported considerably damaged.

The bus was driven to the Lexington Greyhound Bus age by a company representative.

The bus is taken to Carlisle each Friday night and parked until Monday morning when it normally would make the run back to Lexington. In the winter time the bus is stored inside Woody's garage, but in summer it is parked outside.

Court Approves School Building Contracts

On the evening of September 16, the Nicholas County Fiscal Court gave unanimous approval to the contracts with Hugh Merriweather, architect, and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc., to act as fiscal agents for the school building program which will be an addition to the Nicholas County High School.

The Board of Education did not present a deed for the site since the Fiscal Court was deeded the land for the site when the original high school building was constructed.

The new construction will be under the provisions of Kentucky Statutes 162.120 through 162.300 which provides for the Fiscal Court to act as a holding company and the construction cost is financed by bonds which are retired by payments by the Nicholas County Board of Education by a yearly lease agreement.

The present high school and the Moorefield School were both constructed by the same method and under the same provisions of law which are used by a large number of school systems in Kentucky.

The money for the yearly lease payment will be made largely from Capital Outlay Funds which come from the state under the provisions of the Foundation Program Law. It is with Capital Outlay Funds the retirement of the present bonds are being retired and the Piper land has been purchased. All payments will be made from the general fund and the Capital Outlay Fund and no tax will be added for the construction.

The present school tax rate is $1.50 as is shown on the tax bills that many have received in the past few days. $1.50 is the maximum rate a school board may levy without a majority vote of the citizens.

Since the citizens indicated last May that they did not favor an additional tax to construct all of the facilities recommended by a survey by the Department of Education, the construction of new facilities at the Nicholas County High School. At that time payments were made entirely from the general fund. But since the adoption of the Foundation Program, Capital Outlay Funds have been used to retire the present bonds.

The completion of this project will do away with the "shuttle bus" and provide Nicholas County High School with facilities that place it on equal standing with all other schools of its size in Kentucky, Superintendent Raymond Wesley said.

The addition will be constructed on the Piper property which is adjacent to the present school property.

The board was called in to special session Tuesday night, September 22, to authorize the execution of the documents necessary to put the project on the drawing board of the architect and to have the plans ready for contractors to bid on the construction at the earliest possible date. The bond sale follows the acceptable bid of a contractor.

The plan of financing is not new for the Nicholas County Board of Education, who at one time, was retiring simultaneously bonds on the Park School, Headquarters School, Moorefield School and the Nicholas County High School. At that time payments were made entirely from the general fund. But since the adoption of the Foundation Program, Capital Outlay Funds have been used to retire the present bonds.

The completion of this project will do away with the "shuttle bus" and provide Nicholas County High School with facilities that place it on equal standing with all other schools of its size in Kentucky, Superintendent Raymond Wesley said.
