NATIVE WILL HEAD STATE SOCIETIES' GROUP

Carlisle native L. Ray Smart of Falls Church Va., has just added a new title to his long list of community and professional activities. He's been elected president and chairman of the board of governors of the Conference of State Societies for next year.

The conference created by an Act of Congress in 1952 to promote cooperation among the various state and territorial societies in the District of Columbia, coordinates the annual Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington and holds an annual charity ball, among other cultural and civic programs. Membership totals about 40,000.

Smart, born in Carlisle, is the eldest son of Mrs. Minerva Sugg Smart and the late George T. Smart. His wife is the former Mable G. Storm of Corbin and Covington, and they have one daughter, Jan, 17.

Presently assistant chief of the Map Information Office for the Geological Survey, Department of Interior, Smart soon will have completed 31 years of service with the U.S. Government but has kept up his Kentucky connections throughout the years.

He still votes in Carlisle, where he is a member of the Masonic Lodge, and he is a member of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, and a registered professional engineer in Kentucky.

For the past two years Smart was chairman of the Conference of State Societies Cherry Blossom Princess Ball, and has served two terms as president of the Kentucky Society of Washington. He is a member of the American Society of Photogrammetry (ASP) and president of the society's Potomac Region.

His wife, who has worked for 23 years as a cartographer and editor for the U.S. Geological Survey, has served on many committees of ASP. Last March she received the President's Meritorious Service Award at ASP's convention in Washington.
