Wheat Program Intentions For 1966 Announced

To help farmers make plans this fall Secretary Freeman has announced highlights of the intended 1966 wheat program. The wheat program is part of the new Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 recently enacted by Congress.

The Secretary said that farmers who participate in the 1966 wheat program will receive a higher return per bushel in the new program than they did under the 1965 program.

Freeman M. Hockensmith, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, points out that wheat farmers have already been notified of their farm allotments for 1966, based on a national allotment of 47.8 million per acre. Also, as announced earlier, there will be no fall stoppage program.

Wheat farmers who sign up and participate in the program will be eligible for a national average price-support loan of $1.25 per bushel on all production of their allotted acres plus domestic certificates on 45 percent of the projected yield for the farm allotment.

The domestic certificate to farmers is valued at a difference between the national average loan rate of $1.25 per bushel and parity as of July 1, 1966, the beginning of the marketing year. (Parity for wheat for October was $2.50).

Options available to participating farmers in deciding on their operations for 1966 include:

- * Substitution of wheat for feed grains or feed grains for wheat acreage where the farmer is participating in both programs.
- * Barley will be considered as a feed grain in the 1966 program.
- * Substitution of wheat for oats and/or rye provided the farm is participating in the feed grain program. However, an adjustment will be made on a State-by-State basis.

Different Amounts Of Limestone Needed By Certain Kentucky Soils

Kentucky soil types may show the same acidity level by test—but they may need different amounts of agricultural limestone to get the same reduction in soil acidity.

George D. Corder, UK Cooperative Extension Service soils specialist, makes these points about soil types.

Three tons of limestone may be recommended on a silt loam soil that tests strongly acid. One and a half tons should do the job, however, on a sandy soil type. It would require 4.5 tons on heavy soils. The reason for the differences is a chemical factor (called cation exchange capacity) in the various soils.

The clay soil has the highest exchange capacity, while the sandy soil has the lowest of the three types.

He noted that limestone recommendations made by Kentucky county agents are based on particularities of the agricultural limestone. The recommendations are for material ground finely enough so that 80 percent of the material will pass through a 10-mesh screen; 40 percent of the same material also must pass through a 60-mesh screen.

If a coarser material is used, larger amounts will be needed to bring about the desired reduction in acidity.

Candlemaking Among Oldest Professions

Candlemaking is one of the world's oldest professions. Adam Will, a German immigrant, was one of the first candlemakers in the United States. He made candles over a kitchen stove in Syracuse, New York, about 1800, founded a firm which now makes candles for the Vatican.

Another American firm once furnished candles in the houses of Lillian Russell and also made the world's largest wax light, an 18-foot memorial candle lit once a year at Stager Evaco Candles' tomb in Italy.

Model Train Hobby Still Flourishes In Jet Age

The age of steam railroading will never pass—as long as there are fathers and Christmas.

Despite the supremacy of jet planes in actual travel, the model locomotive holds its own beneath the Christmas tree. The outlay for ready-to-run trains and equipment has risen to perhaps $30 million a year in the United States. The National Model Railroad Association numbers 14,000 highly skilled hobbyists who make their own scale models.

Today's youngsters tend to buy diesel; they've never seen a magnificent old iron horse chugging down the track. But the price difference in any given up's switch yard is the steam locomotive. The whistle wails for crossings, and the stack puffs smoke. The train speeds past tiny suburban stations and willbushes, across bridges and through tunnels, making its whirligig of freight cars among papier-mache mountains and valleys.

Made From Real Blueprints

Model trains are probably designed and most precisely developed of any hobby—all playthings. Usually they are made from the blueprints of actual trains. Manufacturers often give model train makers the designs of forthcoming equipment. A model of the Pennsylvania Railroad's S-2 steam turbine locomotive beat the real thing to the tracks.

But the golden era of railroading seems to have greater fascination in the present. Back on the 1965 market are three model locomotives that were out of production for a time—the famous Fairbanks Morse of the Virginia Line, the GP-9 of the Boston & Maine, and the Hudson of the New York Central.

Model train exhibits are a surefire hit wherever they appear. When model trains were featured at the American Pavilion in an international fair at Ojarkas several years ago, crowds of Indonesians "were paralyzed with fascination," the New York Times reported. The newspapers commented, "There is, after all, some true communion among the human family."

RE-EMPHASIZE WATER CONSERVATION

All Soil Conservation Service-U.S. Department of Agriculture offices in Kentucky are helping to carry out the purpose of President Johnson's recent proclamation emphasizing "water conservation."

"We are reemphasizing the need of all Kentucky residents to conserve water in every possible way," said Homer A. Hall, U.S. State Conservationist with headquarters at Lexington.

In his proclamation President Johnson said: "The good health of the people of this nation is no small measure dependent upon both the quantity and quality of our water. But none of our resources has been more grossly abused by waste and pollution."

The President urged "far-sightedness and boldness in managing and using the nation's water resources."
