Finding Bargains At Clothing Sales

You'll need plenty of "won't power" as well as will power when you shop at winter clothing sales, according to Mrs. Rachel Wallace, UK Extension clothing specialist.

Remember that a bargain isn't a bargain unless it is really needed and will be worn by the individual -- and unless the sale price is lower than the usual price. Mrs. Wallace offers these pointers on getting the most for your money at January clothing sales.

First, don't get "bargain hysteria." In the excitement and confusion of a special sale, people sometimes get carried away that they buy most anything they can get their hands on. Stay calm and keep in mind what you actually need.

Go prepared to shop with a list of what you can use -- sizes, colors and kinds of garments the members of your family can use now or in the future. Don't be tempted by other items, no matter how fine a bargain they seem.

Before you go shopping, write down the usual price of each garment on your "want" list. You should have a good idea of the prices of most items, based on what you normally pay for them. Then, as you shop, compare the prices on your list with the sale prices. Sometimes, you will find "sale" prices little, if any, below the regular prices.

Look over the garments carefully before you buy. Check the construction. Are seams wide and well-made? Can dress hems and slacks cuffs be let down on children's clothes? Is the garment cut on grain? Will it hang tag give laundering instructions? Is it the size, color and type garment needed?

Look at a bargain garment from the fashion standpoint, too, especially if it is for an adult. Is it a style that is going out of fashion? Such a garment is a good buy only if you can get your money's worth from it this season -- later, it may be so dated you can't wear it. Also watch out for "fad" garments, both for children and for adults, Mrs. Wallace concludes.

A WORD TO HUSBANDS

To keep your marriage brimming,
With love in the loving cup,
Whenever you're wrong, admit it;
Whenever you're right, shut up.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS
From The Bible
He loveth righteousness and justice.—(Psalms 33:5).

God's law of justice is active in us and in our affairs. This law is dependable and we can trust it to work. When we are in tune with God's law and apply it to our lives and affairs, peace and order are established.
