The "Big Man" Hunt

Everybody, it seems, is looking for that "good" junior college basketball star. The recruiting players from the two-year colleges has come into fashion in recent years. Boys who are overlooked in the annual talent search for high school players, or who develop late usually enroll in the junior colleges. Not too many years ago they played their two years there, then forgot about any further athletic ambitions. Not any more. Coaches at the four-year schools who have come up short for some reason or another, actively recruit the junior college star. His most important asset is that he immediately becomes eligible to play, without the one-year enforced layoff that faces a transfer from a four-year college.

Two Kentucky schools are on tour right now, seeking the junior college "big man" who can step right into the lineup next season. Kentucky and Western have found themselves without that "big man" so vital to basketball success these days. And neither has one on its freshman team to take over next year.

Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp says, "We're looking for the best big junior college player in this country, and we mean to get him when we find him." Coach Rupp says if that player happens to be a negro, he will be the first to play at U.K. "We simply have been unable to win against some of the big teams on our schedule," says Rupp. "All we need is that big boy, and just bide your time, we're going to get him."

Western is in much the same boat. The Hilltoppers in their struggle to get back on top in the Ohio Valley Conference, have recruited some first class talent. But that "big man" is missing, and the junior colleges, in Western's opinion, hold the answer.

While Kentucky and Western are the most eager seekers of talent from the junior college ranks in this area, other colleges across the nation are plagued with the same problem. As usual, it will be a hectic recruiting race.

TWO SIDES AIRED IN SCHOOL RUCKUS

By Warren R. Fisher Jr.

Three shivering reporters awaited the pleasure of a school superintendent to make available a key to the Nicholas County Board of Education building, for a meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Jan. 14, to no avail. Instead the meeting was called to order beneath the gaunt limbs of a massive water maple, where four members of a seven-man Nicholas County School Board "reorganized the board."

According to John Anggelis, a Lexington attorney hired by the new board, the sheriff of Nicholas County served each board member and Supt. Raymond J. Wesley, with notice of the meeting on Jan. 11. The superintendent, who is also the secretary-treasurer of the board, maintains he did not receive any "legal" notice of the meeting.

Anggelis said he would seek a ruling from the State attorney general's office as to the legality of a meeting held Jan. 7, at which time Woodrow Gaunce was "elected" chairman. He said the 7-4 meeting was legal because Wesley and his three board members had been given proper notice of the meeting.

Heading up the "reorganized board" is Robert Coatney, chairman; Vernon Craig, vice chairman, and two other members, Marion Sims and Dean Auxier.

Those backing Wesley are, Mr. Gaunce, Eugene Letcher and Russell Willis. All four served with the county board before the merger of the city and county school systems on May 3, 1963.

In the November 1964 regular election, the balance of power shifted when Dean Auxier defeated Raymond House, a member of the "Wesley board".

At the Jan. 7 meeting, Coatney charged that Wesley installed Gaunce as chairman of the board on a voice vote "with only three votes".

He would not let the "four of us" vote, Coatney said.

Coatney, contacted Monday said, "tentative plans call for a board meeting to be held Thursday afternoon, Jan. 21."

By Raymond J. Wesley, Nicholas County School Superintendent

On January 7, the Nicholas County Board of Education met in regular session.

The Board stood for silent prayer as done at the opening of each meeting.

Since section 10 of Chapter 1 of the written Policies of the Nicholas County Board of Education provide for election of a chairman and vice chairman at the first regular meeting following the first Monday in January, the chairman of the Nicholas County Board of Education announced that the organization of the Board would be the first item of business. The Board reorganizes following the election of members which occurs at intervals of two years.

The chairman appointed the secretary to act as chairman for the organization of the Board. This has been the practice in Nicholas County for more than a quarter of a century. There was no objection by any member, nor was this questioned. Neither the law nor the policies of the Nicholas County Board of Education prescribe the details of organization, however, Robert's Rules of Order, a recognized text on parliamentary procedure, is binding on any transactions of business by the Board.

The Chair announced at the beginning of the reorganizational meeting that the business would be conducted according to Robert's Rules of Order and the voting would be viva voce. After that the chair recognized Mr. Letcher who moved that the present officers be retained for another term of office and the motion was duly seconded by Mr. Willis. The motion, by Robert's Rules of Order, was debatable, could have been amended, tabled, or many other actions could have killed the motion. No action, or appeal, was made by any germane to the motion which was before the Board. Some members attempted to take other actions which were not germane to the motion which were out of order. After following plenty of time for debate, discussion, or amending the motion, (which was never) by any member) the chair announced that the vote would be taken upon the motion and called for those favoring the motion to vote "aye" and then called for those opposed to vote "aye". The chair ruled the motion had carried by voice vote. Again, by Robert's Rules of Order, any dissatisfied members could have appealed for a "roll call", "a division of the house" a standing vote or even, if they were willing to vote, the decision of the chair was the last word, nor were any appeals at their disposal exercised and none were refused by the chair.

The chair asked the vice-chairman and chairman if they were willing to serve in the office to which they were elected. The replies of both were in the affirmative. The chair then announced that the chairman of the Board would assume his duties as chairman and continue with the regular business.

It was immediately recommended by the superintendent of schools that the Chairman entertain a motion to allow any member to discuss, or say what he was trying to say during the organization of the Board. Such motion was entertained and adopted and several members talked.

The Board does not have a Sergeant-At-Arms to keep order, therefore, it was recommended that the meeting be adjourned rather than continue with disregard for decorum. The meeting was adjourned. The Chairman, after conferring with the Department of Education, authorized the secretary to call a Special Meeting for Thursday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. on January 14. That was done and two representatives from the Department of Education, including two of the assistant superintendents of Public Instruction were present.

A lawyer was present and announced he represented four of the board members present. The Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction, Supt. Samuel Alexander, appealed to the members of the board to be rational about their actions and consider their duties and obligations, but did not advise the Board to act in any certain manner on any matter. Urgent matters were voted down by a majority on every action. During the meeting and after the meeting the representing attorney talked several times. Later, after giving me the impression that he was returning to Lexington, he appeared at my home requesting a key to the Piper Building. I had no authority to turn over the key to anyone, therefore, I retained my key.

The newspaper publicity that has appeared in out-of-town news papers has mostly ignored other than myself and the statements contained are their statements, I suppose.

At the present time the Nicholas County Board of Education has no suit pending in Court and I do not know of any suit the Board should file. We have no money budgeted to employ an attorney and if money were budgeted, the Board should employ an attorney that has no conflict of interest and who is free to advise the Board and not an attorney to represent an individual, or a few individuals of the Board. Any attorney employed should be free to represent every citizen's interest and it should not be his duty to seek to gain bad publicity for the County just to earn an attorney's fee.

Water District Needs 75 Signers, Map On Page 10

An engineer of the Howard K. Bell Company met Jan. 13 with the water commissioners to discuss five different proposals that could be used to establish the district. The map on page 10 shows proposal number one on the largest proposal that seems feasible this year.

This proposal is the possibility of 528 customers on a 26 mile district. Seventy per cent or 350 customers are needed in order that the project may become a reality. To date, 275 customers have signed tentative agreements with the district.

Tentative plans are to hold a meeting at the Nesbitte water users in this district as soon as possible. Interested persons who have not signed their agreement may see the commissioners, Charles K. Watkins, Dorsey Watkins, or Russell Selvage or contact the Extension Office.

It is important that this phase of the project be completed as soon as possible in order that construction can start on schedule when the weather permits.

Help ForNeedy

Father Edwin Trimber, pastor of the Shrine of Our L a d y announced Monday that clothing for any needy persons in Carlisle and Nicholas County was available at the church. Those in need were urged to obtain their clothing now.

Father Trimber stated that local needs would be taken care of, in confidence, before sending supplies overseas.

Honaker Bond Set At $25,000; Is Held To Feb. Grand Jury

James C. Honaker, 46, of Spring Street, Carlisle, was arraigned Monday afternoon, according to Police Chief Jerome Kelley. He was represented by a court appointed lawyer. Honaker waived examining trial and was held to the February grand jury under $25,000 bond. He was returned to jail Monday in default of bond.

Honaker is charged with maliciously shooting at W. L. Throckmorton with intent to kill.

A series of events beginning about 5:30 a.m. Sunday, resulted in the charges.

W. L. Throckmorton of First Street, Carlisle, is reported to have been awakened by the sound of falling glass from either a window or storm door on the side of his residence. He arose, got a pistol, and upon entering his living room saw a man coming through a large picture window, firing wildly. Throckmorton returned fire, then fled to a neighbor's house where he called police.

Chief Kelley reported the call was received at 5:35 a.m. Investigation of the Throckmorton premises, showed a broken storm door and window at the side of the house, a shattered picture window in front, and blood spilled over living room, bed room and kitchen. The furniture was practically demolished. Chief Kelley said, a thorough search was made for the assailant, who was tracked for about one-half mile by blood stains in the snow, before his trail ended.

Honaker was located at a friend's house about one mile West of Carlisle at approximately 6:45 a.m. where he was apprehended. A .22 caliber pistol was found closeby, Kelley added.

Honaker was treated at the Nicholas County Hospital for cuts and then taken to the Nicholas County jail.

Four bullet holes found in the Throckmorton living room came from a small caliber gun Chief Kelley stated.
