Farm Facts

Possibilities Unlimited--At the recent Governor's Conference on Agriculture many suggestions were made for increasing the income of Kentucky farmers. Some of them such as increasing the yields of crops and livestock, are routine and are a continuing problem, but others offer a real opportunity of bringing in more dollars in the near future.

Almost everybody familiar with Kentucky's agriculture agrees that the two major opportunities for increasing farm income are the production of more pasture and feed crops that can be marketed in the form of meat and milk, and the production of intensive high-income crops such as fruits, vegetables and ornaments where the income (and expenses) may run into several thousand dollars per acre. In all of these "know-how" and efficient management are the keys to success.

One point of which the various committees are unanimous is the fact that Kentuckians are generally using their land very inefficiently. One report shows that Kentucky land is used at less than 65% capacity which is much lower than in our neighboring states.

One suggestion that seems logical for improvement is the more intensive use of the small, level areas for high income crops. Because of overflows, many of these areas cannot be used for fruit and other perennials but they are suited to corn, especially silage corn, and other summer crops. As dairying and beef expand there is an increasing need for silage. Intensification of silage production would encourage the operation of custom and rental filling equipment. This is a real opportunity for increasing net farm income.

The committee on swine is very optimistic about the outlook for hog production during the next ten years. It is estimated that there should be at least one million more hogs in the state by 1975. This would require an average of 20 more hogs per farm on the 52,000 farms now producing them, or more farms going into the enterprise. The committee says that small farms are better suited for hog production than for finishing fed hogs. Among the several excellent suggestions for promoting feeder pig production is that a pilot operation be established at the experiment sub-station in Breathitt county to accelerate efficient hog production in eastern Kentucky. Farmers in Kentucky where 75% of the hogs are now produced, the committee says, sees the need for additional research in specialized hog producer associations to work with commercial packers.

The beef committee reports that beef cow numbers in Kentucky have increased 131% in the last decade and the state has moved up from 16th rank to 13th. The state's proximity to the grain belt provides a ready market outlet for feeder calves. With proper guidance and promotion the beef committee feels that the total income from beef production could double or triple in just a few years.

SOIL INFORMATION

Complete information on the soils and land features in a 165,760 acre section in the East central part of Kentucky has just been released. It is available to the public in a new Federal document titled, "Soil Survey of Clark County" announced by Homer Taff, head of the Soil Conservation Service operations in Kentucky.

The illustrated publication gives practical guidance in management for farmers, foresters, community planners, engineers, and developers.

Consisting of 122 pages in the text and 38 air photo maps, the report climaxes several years of study. Soil Conservation Service scientists examined, tested and classified the entire surface of Clark County to collect facts. The survey was made in cooperation with the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. The Bureau of Public Roads assisted in making engineering interpretations of the soils.

In addition to the air photo maps that show in detail the kinds of soil of the county, there is a general soil map that shows a much broader pattern of the soils and landscapes.

To indicate land use capabilities and problems, 140 different kinds of soils were described with pinpoint accuracy As an aid to woodland owners, 150 sites were checked to determine the suitability of the different soils for producing marketable lumber and pulp. There is a section written on the kinds of wildlife the soils will support best.

Rounding off the report, surveyors added data on the county's history and potential for recreation, commerce, industry, and community expansion in terms of the soils' present condition.

According to Mr. Taff, the publication is being distributed to agricultural, conservation and civic agencies. It may also be purchased from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

"Courtship" Homeowners Beware

Spring may be the time for romance, but there's one kind of courtship that makes homeowners feel anything but romantic. That's the springtime swarming of termites, which is part of their courtship prior to setting up housekeeping, says Dr. Richard Miller, UK Extension entomologist.

The only good thing about this courtship rite is that it warns homeowners termites are living nearby--and may be moving nearer. In spring, some of the winged, reproductive members of each termite colony decide to start their own families. They swarm to locate a place to settle down, and they may pick your home as a likely spot.

If you see termites swarming in or around your homes in future weeks, take advantage of the warning, Dr. Miller recommends. Find out if your home has a termite infestation. If so, start control measures immediately--or you'll end up supporting a termite family that may number in the hundreds of thousands.

Termites live in the soil and the workers leave the colonies, by way of earthen tubes, to look for their only foodstuff, cellulose, of which wood is the chief and most common source. When they run up against a house foundation, they search out any possible openings and move in, forming what amounts to a continuous supply line of tiny tunnels.

The beams in your cellar or the sill under your front door--in fact, anything made of wood--is just what they're looking for. They even go through a concrete block wall with ease if there's a tiny crack in it. Since termites remain hidden except when they "go courting and house-hunting" in spring, the swarms may be your only warning that these pests have turned your home into their personal cafeteria--with you footing the bill.

Although wood is the major item on the termites' menu, they must return to the soil to get moisture. For this reason, poisoning the soil around the termite colony is the most effective control measure, Dr. Miller points out. Locating the colony and poisoning the soil is a difficult job, requiring the help of a trained, well-equipped pest control operator. Be sure to select an established firm to check your house for termites and do necessary control work, he emphasizes.

A bulletin available from your county Extension agent--"Subterranean Termites" (USDA Home and Garden Bulletin No 64)--gives useful information on termite prevention and control, according to Dr. Miller. This bulletin also can be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

Ex-Senator H. STANLEY BLAKE has filed with the Secretary of State as a candidate for State Representative representing Bourbon and Nicholas Counties in the Primary Election May 25, 1965. His past 24 years record in the State Senate has the approval of the R.E.A., The Ky. Farm Bureau Federation and Young Democrat Clubs of Kentucky officials.

His platform says, It's true that Churches, Schools and Roads are closest to the people of Kentucky's heart. Here are the pillars upon which rest our way of life, the pride, in our past and the hope for our future. These things are inter-woven with many other considerations, which they depend upon; for instance, taxes, research, welfare and many other activities of our Government support our contribution to the basic considerstions of our lives.

CHURCHES: It seems to this candidate these times require great faith — faith as stout and sturdy as was the faith of our forefathers who founded this Country under circumstances which would have defeated men of smaller faith.

SCHOOLS: The demand placed upon schools, primary, secondary, or higher learning, were never so great as today. Any candidate who if successful, would be a fool, worse than a fool, to cast a vote not to improve our school system at all levels. He will continue to vote the best for education. WE MUST have Federal Aid to cope with the vast increase in enrollment. The Federal Government takes from our State of Kentucky more than one third million dollars in tobacco taxes, and three quarter million dollars on whisky. Consider this million dollars of our tax resources. If Kentucky were free to tax them adequately, would make us rich indeed.

ROADS: The great Inter-State Road Systems, many approaching completion. The Federal Government supplies 90% — the State 10% of this cost from bond money. His vote, in the State Senate cast that you had the privilledge of voting for or against this percentage of bonding. There is little more your Representative can do than to vote for in the Interstate Road System. There is a great deal your Representative can do with respect to rural roads: the roads which reach your homes, your farms, your schools, and your churches.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS; (A) AGRICULTURAL SCIENCE CENTER. As former Chairman of the Agriculture and State Parks Committee in the State Senate, Blake will do all possible or necessary to press continually and relentlessly for new uses for our products to help researchers exert great energy to find out not only new uses, but new products our soil will produce. Every-one knows how closely the Blue Grass section has been hit by Burley Tobacco, since the beginning of the Commonwealth. If the Burley market shrinks, the farmer's income shrinks! World it not be intelligent research to find crops and livestock which are in demand in the markets of this Country and the World, which could be produced in Kentucky? Blake thinks so! His whole life and business is tied very closely to Kentucky Agriculture. No effort which he can exert will be spared toward improvement.

(B) VOCATIONAL EDUCATION: In 24 years as Senator, Blake has given many hours to this education. All students are not born to be scholars of Greek or Latin. Good Vocational counseling in our High Schools will determine aptitude of these students then he should be encouraged, helped, aided and assisted to obtain High School level, with access to manual Arts which will permit him to learn a trade so as to become a useful and profitable citizen and contribute to the total welfare of his State and Community. Blake may not be able to see everybody but will greatly appreciate your vote. He offers you a 24 year record in the Kentucky State Senate of performance and experience, not handful of promises and a spoonful of sugar.

In the evening, (with the sun going down), of a Political life He promises to continue keeping Kentucky on the move forward.

(Paid political ad by his friends.)

P. S. Ex-Senator Blake wishes to thank the Editor of this fine paper for his part in bringing to the voters the views and platforms of the candidates for public office.

50th Anniversary To Be Held At Harper's Garage May 14, 15

Observing its 50th anniversary with Ford Motor Company and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, is Harper's Garage--William Harper, owner, began the business with his father, the late Robert Harper on May 15, 1915. The late Mr. Harper retired in 1940.

On this first day of business, 50-years-ago, the Harpers delivered to Dr. S. P. Mohney of the Moorefield vicinity, now a resident of Lexington, a Model T Roadster.

In 1917 the firm took on the Ford tractor sales. During the year 1919, the firm delivered 225 Model T Fords.

Before 1920, they had outgrown the building in which the business began and were adding additions which gave them the 20,000 square feet of floor space they have since found to be an asset.

The firm has withstood three depressions. An incident that stands out clearly in Mr. Harper's mind occurred in 1935, when the driver of a 1935 V8 Ford car became confused on the floor of the garage, and with the car in low gear and throttle wide open, plunged through the brick wall at the rear of the building, fell eight feet to the road in the alley, landing on the tires, only slight bruises were sustained by the driver. The car without any adjustments was started, after which it was driven some four miles, running perfectly.

Mr. Harper's son, Robert G. joined the firm following military service in 1945, and is in charge of sales.

Also associated with her father in the business, is Miss Jane Harper, office manager and bookkeeper. Mrs. Barbara Bowen is assistant bookkeeper.

The 50th anniversary is being celebrated at Harper's Garage on this Friday and Saturday, May 14 and 15. The public is cordially invited to stop in, see and test drive the new Mustang, Ford or Ford Fairlane series.
