Small Business Aid Available

Latest studies completed by the U.S. Small Business Administration show that the top killer of small business in the Nation is the lack of good management and proper management training of owners and operators of small businesses. In announcing the results of the studies, R. B. Blankenship, Regional Director of the Louisville regional office stated:

"Poor management causes 97% of all business failures." While large companies often suffer from this management disease, it is the small businessman who usually gets the fatal dose. Since many small businesses need, but cannot afford, profes-
