

William Lee and Ruth Ann Harney, of the Headquarters Go Getters-4-H Club, look over some home furnishings projects with their mother, Mrs. Bruchner Harney.

William is looking over a pin-up board and Ruth holds the desk set made up of a desk pad, pencil holder and letter holder.

Other things that boys and girls can do in this project include learning how to hang pictures, choosing study lamps, studying how to use color in the home, arranging small objects to decorate the home, flower arranging, painting and refinishing furniture, and other helpful things to improve the home.

The home furnishings project works real well for many boys and girls because most boys and girls have their own rooms and want to arrange their room to their own liking. This project gives each one an opportunity to do just this and it also is designed to increase their interest concerning the other rooms of the home.

Group meetings are planned in the future for those wishing to participate in the project. Any boy or girl who has not signed up for this activity and wishes to do so should contact his club leader or the County Extension Office for additional information.

The national sponsor for this project is the S & H

Foundation of New York. County, state and national awards are presented to the club members who have accomplished the most in the project.

Burley Quotas

acreage allotment for the 1966 burley crop is 304,876 acres. This would provide an increase of about 6 percent over 1965 farm acreage allotments.

Under acreage-pounding, whenever marketing quotas on an acreage-pounding basis, the difference is added to the quota established for that farm for the following year. Each farm can market without penalty 20 percent more than the farm production quota for that year, and 10 percent in subsequent years, but any marketing in excess of the farm's production quota will be deducted from the quota for the following year.

In the special referendum to be held on Thursday, MARCH 10, Burley tobacco growers will vote whether they favor or oppose marketing quotas on an acreage-pounding basis for the 1966, 1967, and 1968 crops. If more than two-thirds of the farmers voting in the special referendum approve marketing quotas on an acreage-pounding basis, the difference is added to the quota established for that farm for the following year.
