MERCURY VAPOURS

by Warren R. Fisher

The American National Red Cross last week announced a special emergency fund campaign for $200 million to be raised during the coming year. These additional funds are vitally necessary due to the rapid building and assistance needed by servicemen in South Viet Nam. In addition, the past two years have required unprecedented disaster expenditures. Hurricane Betsy alone required a Red Cross outlay of over $17.7 million.

The Red Cross needs for these funds is immediate. Normally heavy disaster months (Hurricane Alma was fired) the just ahead, and Red Cross services in South Viet Nam are increasing. The NEEDS must be met. The local chapter's share of the $20 million goal is only $200. It is our responsibility to see that at least this much is contributed. Won't you help? —WV.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Democrats would appear to be in trouble in the Third and Fourth Congressional District races if returns in the last two elections are any indication of what may happen in November. State Representative Norbert Blum will be opposed by former Republican Mayor William O. Cowger in the Third District, Louisville, while State Senator John L. Morley will carry the Democratic banner against former Republican Congressman Eugene M. Snyder. Morley is from Covington, while Snyder is from St. Matthews in Jefferson County.

Election returns for the congressional districts reprinted by the 1966 General Assembly are compiled in tables in the new Kentucky Government Directory just published by the House of Representatives. This is the 1966 gubernatorial race between Gov. Edward T. Breathitt and Louis B. Nunn of Glasgow, Nunn carried 67,590 to 61,166.

It includes all of Jefferson County but Louisville and the area south toward Bowling Green and Henderson. In the 1966 Congressional race, Kentucky carried the small populated counties of Carroll, Gallatin, Grant, Oldham, Pendleton and Trimble, but Nunn edged him out in the populated counties of Kenton, Campbell and Jefferson.

Former Mayor Charles Farmland of Louisville defeated Snyder in the last congressional race, but heavily Democratic Louisville was in the District at that time, and it was a presidential year when Nunn carried the old Third District 146,023 to 109,919. Farmland is not seeking to re-election since redistricting. Blume is the Democratic nominee to oppose Cowger in the Third District.

The Republicans swept both Louisville and Jefferson in County last time in the county and city race, and this indicates that Cowger may possibly have a strong edge over Blume who is a former Union official.

This is the time to spray for bagworm control. These little worms will build a protective covering about themselves from bits of foliage on which they are feeding. can cause considerable damage to trees and shrubs. Several insecticides give good bagworm control if used now — but, if you wait until the protective "bags" are finished, spraying will do no good and you'll have to pick the bagworms off by hand.

Check the labels of the insecticides you have and use one of those that lists bagworms among the pests which they control. A second application will be necessary — 10 to 14 days after the first one. This is the beginning of the “ant season” and these pests will give trouble all summer. The best way to keep these pesky insects from invading your home is to use an insecticide.

Check the labels of the insecticides you have and use one of those that lists bagworms among the pests which they control. A second application will be necessary — 10 to 14 days after the first one. Local Business Co-ops Render Service In Their Ads

By S. E. TALBERT
Chicago, Dept. of Business
University of Mississippi
In some communities, agricultural and utility cooperatives are among the largest local newspaper advertisers.

Although the advertising of these organizations is limited to sell specific goods and services, it has several important functions. It is more than worth its cost in terms of service rendered to the local public.

Local advertising in newspapers is the most inexpensive and effective method of communicating information to associated members. A full-page advertisement in the community is only a few cents more than the cost of a newspaper advertisement. It is necessary to inform members of policy changes, new services, and business matters.

The cooperative, of any nature, has a stake in public acceptance. As a community unit, it cannot retain a healthy and harmonious position without the support of the non-cooperative. The association has the same problems in dealing with the public opinion as the manufacturer, the private business, or the government.

Kentucky Movie Has Premier In Frankfort

Kentucky's history
Frankfort, Ky., June 12—Governor Edward T. Breathitt and his staff, guests of officials and distinguished guests, previewed the new movie "Kentucky Today" at a luncheon given in their honor by C. H. Compton, Kentucky Division Sales Manager, Standard Oil Company.

Apply titled "New Kentucky," the fifteen-minute film gives the viewer a dramatic 30-minute tour of Kentucky's new and historic points of interest. The educational and cultural institutions, the scenic and historic areas, the famous industry, and the fine food and wine of the State are shown in the most effective manner possible.

The movie, which was produced by John Brandy for Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, and is available to all schools and film libraries for showing to schools, churches, fraternal and civic groups.
