Farm Facts

WANTED -- FRUIT GROWERS. One of the big opportunities for a few hundred young progressive farmers in Kentucky lies in the field of fruit growing for roadside and community market. In almost every county there is a need for one or more growers who can supply the growing demand by the local people for home-grown fruit, vegetables and other farm products. The potential income in such a venture is limited only by the persons ability and vision to produce economically and sell well.

An important aspect of such a business is that it need not require a big outlay of capital for land, buildings and equipment. A few acres of land suitable for peaches and apples would provide the foundation for an enterprise that could expand to include berries, grapes, vegetables and assorted farm produce. Such a business could easily provide a large income of several thousand dollars annually.

The ideal location would be on a good road near the county seat or a sizable town. The orchard site should be level enough for modern equipment and elevated enough above the surrounding country to provide air drainage so necessary for successful fruit growing.

Kentucky has many areas suitable for fruit production. The hills along the many rivers, the Muldraugh and Eden hills, the bench lands in the mountains and the rolling land in the Jackson Purchase area are all historically suited for fruit production. And now the many new lakes have added additional advantages for the production and marketing of fruit.

A few basic principles must be taken into consideration in the initial planning of the project, such as the selection of the best sites for the orchard and the best varieties for local sales. A recent trend in apple production is the use of a dwarf or semidwarf type of tree which permits more trees per acre and lower cost of production. Growers who are interested in fruit and vegetable production for local sales would do well to consult with specialists at the University of Kentucky before starting the project. Plans, properly made, may prevent serious trouble or losses later.

HEADLINES, Country hogs recently made headlines in the big city papers and highfalutin magazines when their price reached a seventeen year record. The interesting thing about this news item is that it became news—important news – when the price of meat animals rose to their post war level. But why shouldn't the prices of hogs, or beef, or milk, or any other farm product be as high or higher than they were seventeen years ago? Aren't the prices of non-farm commodities, such as machinery, fences, labor, medical care and other goods and services much higher now than they were seventeen years ago? The public has used to low farm prices that it becomes news when they approach parity.

Carlisle Man Shoots Self

Enoch Osborne, about 50, an employe of the Coatney IGA Grocery, Carlisle, shot himself in the throat about 6:30 Wednesday night, March 9, in front of his trailer home on the Clintonbeard lot about three-quarters of a mile east of here, Sheriff Maulce Cameron reported.

A bullet from a .22 caliber rifle entered the throat just under the chin, and emerged from the left jaw.

Osborne was taken to Nicholas County Hospital, then transferred to the Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington.

Osborne lives in the trailor with his wife and son.

Research By USDA In 1965 Benefits You

How does U.S. Department of Agriculture research help you? During 1965, experiments and studies by USDA's Agricultural Research Service resulted in new products and processes, more efficient marketing and information to help homemakers with family nutrition and home management.

USDA research this past year not only benefited rural, urban and suburban consumers but also expanded markets for agricultural product--a boon to farmers. In addition, some of the research will lead to new industries providing employment for many people.

Amont the new foods developed by USDA scientists in 1965 were several that help weight watchers. A low-fat cheese made from skim milk looks and tastes like very mild Cheddar but contains only 5 to 7 percent butterfat compared with Cheddar's 31 percent. A process also was developed for removing about two-thirds of the oil and calories from peanuts--the processed peanuts look, taste, and smell like ordinary roasted peanuts.

USDA scientists also added to the list of convenience foods that save consumers time and work. Among these was dry apple flakes, which can be mixed with water to make applesauce, compressed into small disks for use in packaged cereals, or added to cake mixes to help keep cakes moist as well as add a natural flavor. A lowcost, improved process produces these flakes, which have already been tried successfully in several commercial products.

Instant sweet potato flakes, developed earlier by USDA scientists, are now being produced commercially by several food firms. This product not only gives consumers a tasty convenience food but also provides farmers with an outlet for hard-to-market, odd-size sweet potatoes.

A new dehydrated celery with improved texture and appearance can be made by a process that combines freezing and explosion puffing. The new products absorb water more completely during rehydration and shows promise for use in soups, sauces, and other cooked items. Drying methods formerly used for celery tended to toughen the fibers and impair the texture.

Other research results included a process for making rice flour from the outer layers of parboiled rice and a low-cost method of peeling the dark bran from wheat, making a bulgur wheat that is nearly white and more attractive.

Among the new developments in fabrics was stretch cotton lace, which will be especially suitable for fitted slips, foundation garments and lounging and sleeping apparel. The processing also adds a look of richness and depth to inexpensive laces. "Cotton Flore," a chemically treated cotton batting developed by USDA scientists, was used in some 1965 automobiles and its use probably will be extended to the bedding and furniture manufacturing industries.

During 1965, results of marketing research helped bring product to consumers in prime condition and at lower cost. Some of the developments were a new instrument to sort fruits and vegetables for ripeness and internal defects; a new way to load bagged potatoes to get them to consumers in better condition; a loading pattern to improve cooling of citrus during shipment; and economical ways to precook peaches before shipment.

Increases in Postal Fees March 26

Increases in money orders, insurance, registry, certified mail and C.O.D. rates will become effective March 26, 1966, the Post Office Department announced today.

The cost of operating these five special services now exceeds revenues by $600 million annually. The fee increases will narrow the cost-revenue gap by $36 million, based on business handled in fiscal year 1965.

Fees for money orders, registry and C.O.D. were last changed in 1961; insurance and certified mail in 1957.

The fee changes, announced in the Jan. 11 Federal Register and confirmed in the register on Feb. 25, are put into effect under the existing administrative authority of the postmaster general.

Increases in Money Order Fees; Domestic and international money order fees will be increased from 5 cents to 10 cents.

Insurance Fees: The minimum fee bracket will be increased from $10 to $15 and the minimum fee will be 20 cents instead of 10 cents. The revised insurance fees will be as follows:

Registry Fees: The present 60 cents and 75 cents will be combined into a single fee at 75 cents for values up to $100. Registry fees for articles valued in excess of $100 will remain unchanged.

C.O.D. Fees: The present 40 cents and 50 cents fee brackets will be combined into one fee bracket at 60 cents for amounts up to $10. There will be no change in the fees covering items valued above $10.

Certified Mail: The fee will be increased 10 cents from the present 20 cents per item to 30 cents.

Losses incurred in the operation of special services are paid from funds drawn from the Federal Treasury. The fee increases will shift a substantial portion of the special service cost borne by the public to the users of these services.

WHAT'S YOUR GUESS??

Lake CARNICO is not full, as anybody can plainly see. When will it get full? There are contests on when a pile of snow will melt. Up north there are contests on the date ice breaks-up in some rivers—but here the question is when will Lake Carnico fill?

The record is as follows, and was compiled by William Threlkeld, Nicholas County Soil Conservation agent;

Construction completed late summer, 1963;

On March 12, 1964 the lake needed 27.4 feet of water to reach the spillway. That meant there were approximately 32.6 feet of water in the lake;

On April 30, 1965, the lake needed 15.4 feet to fill. There fore, during the preceding year, 12 feet of water was added to the lake;

On Jan. 4, 1966, the lake needed 14.7 feet of water to overflow it;

On March 17, 1966, the water was 12.4 feet below the spillway. Will the lake be filled in 1966, 1967, 1968??

Charles Harris, Southern Bell Tel & Tel, local manager says, "Fall of 1967". What do you guess it? Drop us a card or letter with your guess.

'Distinguished Kentuckian' Award Presented Dr. Doran At Morehead

Governor Edward T. Breathitt presented Dr. Adron Doran, President of Morehead State University the Distinguished Kentuckian award Tuesday evening, at a banquet attended by over 1,000 persons.

The impending change from college to university status was authorized by the General Assembly Feb. 24.

Gov. Breathitt in making his presentation cited Dr. Doran for having made "Unusual contribution to Kentucky" during the past 12 years as president of Morehead State College. Breathitt also noted that the university-to-be annual budget had increased some 800% since Dr. Doran became president in 1954, and the biennial budget this year exceeds 8 million dollars.

Doran commented on the legislation, calling it a law which "recognized the responsibility which the institutions of higher education must assume, but gives them the opportunity and authority to move in an orderly fashion to assume."

The day's activities was climaxed with a Reception Ball held in the Fieldhouse following the banquet.

On April 10, 6:30 a.m., the Christian Church will observe the resurrection of our Lord with its Annual Sunrise Service. For over 30 years this event has brought in song, drama and message inspiration to thousands. Once again, the basic factors in the whole scheme of redemption embracing hope and life for otherwise a doomed society will be retold in word and song.

The program entitled "The Lord is Risen?" has two distinct purposes. First, to appeal to all men to believe on Him as our hearts again are stirred within us; and second, to revive in a spirit of worship and song the life and death of Christ, and its meaning for us as Christians. The youth of the Church will present the program assisted by congregational singing. Mrs. Minton Whitt is chairman of the Worship and Music Committee.

Following the program there will be a fellowship breakfast consisting of coffee and doughnuts served by the Twilight Council, in the Fellowship Hall.

Our Minister, Bro. Tom Lipscomb, extends to extend a cordial invitation to all believers in Christ to share this event with us.

A FIRST, PERHAPS

Luther Hollar called Tuesday to inform The Mercury of a double header which refueled at his service station at the western city limits about 7:45 a.m. Sunday.

Mr. Hollar stated the craft took 22 gallons of Gulf's highest octane fuel. The National Guard helicopter enroute to Frankfort, had missed a stop at Farmers where it would have been refueled.
