Annual Meeting WSCS Convenes
March 31

"Living In Such An Age" will be the theme of the 26th annual meeting of the Kentucky Conference of Women's Society of Christian Service and Wesleyan Service Guild when it convenes in First Methodist Church, Frankfort, on March 31 and April 1.

Among the guests scheduled to appear on the program are Mrs. William Davis, Missionary from the Congo and Miss Mildred Shepherd, missionary from India, who will speak on Thursday evening. Mrs. H. M. Russell will speak on Friday morning and install the newly elected officers. Mrs. Russell is the president of the Southern Jurisdiction Women's Society and Infrom Morristown, Tenn. Special reports and an address by Mrs. C. L. Cooper, Kentucky Conference President, are among the agenda items for Thursday.

That man can live in harmony with the land if he really wants to, and that he need not be foul his environment with eroded crop fields, denuded pasture, butchered forests, polluted streams, exterminated wildlife, and scattered domestic and industrial rubbish, all in the name of progress.

The real natural beauty of the landscape is reflected not only in the vegetation it wears and the prominent features it boasts, but also in its ability to respond to whatever demands are made upon it. This response determines how well nature is fed, people are clothed and life is enjoyed.

The chairman advises those who want to know more about how the soil conservation district program can help them to beautify their lands to contact W. F. Thrilled, the Soil Conservation Service technician who assists the Nicholas Soil Conservation District.

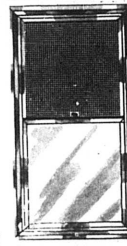

Some farmers strive to "save" money on oat seeds. They plant feed oats from their feed bins. Or they buy untreated, untested, "over-the-fence" seeds from their neighbors. Or they get "bargain-price" seeds from any old store or off a truck from strangers.

But these ways are not for you because your goal is to make money. You know that to make money with oats, either grain or forage, you start with top-quality seed. Southern States top-quality Seed, for example. Steer clear of feed oats, "over-the-fence" seed, "bargain" seed. No farmer can really afford the poor yields, disease and weed grief that can result from planting inferior seed.

With Southern States top-quality Seed Oats, you spend pennies to make dollars. You get top yields and top profits, without weed problems.

National Wildlife Week

"The soil conservation district program objectives a natural approach to realizing the objectives of National Wildlife Week," says Lovell Hollar, Chairman of the Nicholas Supervisors of the Nicholas Soil Conservation District, in announcing the preservation of natural beauty as the theme for this year's observance, now set for March 20-26.

"As civilization has evolved from a food-gathering society to an agricultural society, and finally to an industrial society, changes in the face of the earth have been both necessary and desirable," continues Hollar, "but there is no reason why these changes should result in an ugly landscape instead of a beautiful one."

The soil conservation district program has as its principal objective the ability to produce adequate food and fiber for the present generation while retaining its ability to produce for the generations to come. "It seems to me," says Hollar, "that man can live in harmony with the land if he really wants to, and that he need not be foul his environment with eroded crop fields, denuded pasture, butchered forests, polluted streams, exterminated wildlife, and scattered domestic and industrial rubbish, all in the name of progress."
