The 'KHWIAET' or Spoil Sports

They're the minority, they're few who didn't believe the project would ever be a reality. They're the one's who cry the loudest about big prices, but they're the one's who didn't believe strongly enough to borrow the money, risk a thousand (that would have cost them 60 cents or more a year interest), they're the one's who said the lake would never be built, the dam would never hold water, the fish would never grow, they just never!

Every community has them, these "Knuckle Heads Wildly Indignant About Every Thing." We've been blessed or cursed with their kind since the Puritans sent their first winter in a new country—they are the one's who think some one else must provide their succor. These "KHWIAET" always seem to be those who must learn the hard way.

We really don't expect them to heed this article, but if we were them, we'd have written permission from a lot of other before we tied a boat up or fished from the frontage, we'd go ahead with the crowd and enjoy the sport, we'd be man enough to admit that it takes "money to make the real go", that the corporation's boat rental fee of $3.00 during operating hours is more than fair, that the $1.50 launching fee is a nominal charge in these inflated times, that $6.00 on a lake to tie up a thousand (that would have cost them $1.50) to provide, on a month to continue to knock, is a privilege you have in America.

Yes, with your dock fee paid and your boat, you have a vast area (for these parts) of fresh water to fish in, but not the right to trample others. If you can head, but can't comprehend, we possess a photo copy of a portion of a contract entered into between the Corporation and the State of Kentucky, on 23d of April, 1962, which ever so simply vests the responsibility with the Corporation to govern Lake Carnico, "to maintain and operate the dam, lake, and the pertinent facilities in a competent and professional manner."

It is a shame, that a project that has meant so much to so many, that can mean more to more, may (the Corporation) at some future date be forced to prove its rights to a bunch of "KHWIAET".

MERCURY VAPOURS

by Warren R. Fisher

"Man, I tell you that cup of coffee sure hit the spot!" And if I hadn't seen Dorsey, "I'd really be wet by now, guess I'll have to invest in a good raincoat or suit in order to patrol this lake." The time was about 11 a.m., May 1 and Conservation Officer Harry Duncan was making his way around the northeast bank of Lake Carnico while his partner, Conservation Officer Sherman Green took the other side stated.

"I've seen several straggs of good fish—bream all the same size, showing good growth; bass 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 lbs. the largest so far." Questioned about public sentiment concerning Lake Carnico? "I have yet to come across anyone disgruntled—everybody has been very cooperative. All within halting distance have come to the bank if they were in a boat, for a license check, guess I've checked about 50 so far. I'd say there are between 150 and 200 fishers on the whole."

Early Monday morning Mr. Duncan reported that he and his partner checked out 112 fishermen, weighed nine bass that tipped scales at 2 pounds, there were no violations, and the largest string of blue gills they were caught by Kenneth Snapp, some 60 big ones.

From the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife were Carl Thomas, assistant to Harry Towles, editor of the sportsman's publication, "Happy Hunting Ground," and A. H. Henson, assistant to the chief director of law enforcement, Dept. Fish and Wildlife, Frankfort.

Our apologetic extended to Al Capp for the liberty of using one of his cartoon slogans which we adapted to a local situation. See editorial this page.

Several thousand strawberry plants have been set this spring. A very important thing that should be done is to remove flowers on these plants. We have established plants will be had as soon as possible. Early runners are essential to high yield strawberry plants.

Our county is well blessed with lots of beautiful flowering plants. A drive through the Carlisle area will prove just how beautiful the tulips are, and the size of the blooms up to 6 inches in diameter. All around we see red, white, yellow, and purple flowers. Each one seems to be trying to outdo the other. Many of our flower lovers also have lots of very beautiful and showy creeping phlox in bloom.

The many beautiful flowering plants certainly add a great deal of beauty and enjoyment to our community. Now is the time to make plans to set out plants which will bloom next spring. Oh, we must not forget that there will be other plants which will be coming into bloom as the seasons progress, up until frost this fall.

Are you watching your fruit trees? Regular spray with an all-purpose fruit tree spray will mean more fruit later on. Hold off the sprays while the trees are in bloom. Give the bees a chance to do their job of pollinating.

Right now, the sucking (aphid) are fully active if you have a thousand now, you'll have a million in a month. These little rascals have several generations each season. They hit us two ways. They may have living young or lay eggs which hatch in a short while to infest our plants and trees. An all-purpose spray containing both of these will control them very well.

Local Business

The large grocery store operates on a net profit of 2 percent. The low margin of profit is made possible only by the skillful management of goods.

The store must provide quickly or it will take rapid losses. The public plays a critical role in the success of the store. For each new product offered on the shelves, the store must have a plan to introduce it to the public.

Plans are now being made for the annual 4-H Leadership Conference which will be held on the campus of the University of Kentucky June 6-10. The theme of this year's conference will be "Count Kentucky and What We Can Do for It."

Hayden Timmons, director of the Governor's Commission on Agriculture, reports that more cucumbers are needed in the state this year to meet the needs of Paramount Foods Company in Louisville. The program would require a minimum of 100 acres. There may be an opportunity here for additional income to our county farmers.

Agree or Not, I say what I think...

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Who will the Democratic nomination support for the Democratic nomination for governor in the May 1967 primary? That's the question begging lively administration Democrats and newsmen alike for different reasons. The newsmen simply want the story, while the Democrats want to be in a position to carry on the program started by former Gov. I. E. Campbell and present Gov. Edward T. Breathitt. Part of this involves holding their breath.

There is still great hope here that Combs will finally make his mind to run. There is a lot of pressure on him to do just that, but he is being a reluctant politician at this time. Some newsmen in press meetings the past two weekends have tried to draw Combs out of his position, but they didn't succeed in getting an answer which they can write about. He still has a possibility as far as newsmen know.

Senate Majority Leader J. D. (Higgs) Buckman, the 55-year-old Shepherdsville attorney and former attorney general, already has announced his candidacy but frankly has stated he doesn't have administration support. He's the only one officially in the race, but other possibilities are Aty. Gov. Robert Matthews, Highway Commissioner Henry Ward, and former Atty. Gen. John Breckinridge of Lexington.

Of course there is Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield, but he would be anti-administration in the gubernatorial race. He's the only one to mention to date on this factional side of the party. Former two-time Gov. A. B. Chandler, who would be the main candidate, would not be the main candidate. Ward hasn't had the push he needs to get into the race. He has a few supporters, but he has not been able to choose him. This leads many to believe that Matthews is in the favored position as of this moment.
