

TERMINES FROM ANTS
You can tell the difference between winged adult termites and ants by checking their wings. Termites have two pairs of wings of equal length. Ants also have two pairs of wings, but one pair is longer than the other. Since spring is the time that termites swarm—and thus warn homeowners of their presence, Miller gives four pointers for recognizing these pests.

ant's eyes easily, but no eyes are visible on a termite. The antennae also should be noticed; the ant's antennae have a distinct "waist" in the middle, while the termite's do not. If you see termites swarming in or around your home in future weeks, take advantage of the warning, Miller recommends. He says termites mean there are termites in the neighborhood—what you see are the reproductive members of a colony looking for a new place to settle down, and they may pick your home as a likely spot.

Farmer's Viewpoint
(Special Guest Column by Clarence L. Miller, Kentucky Farm Bureau Marketing Consultant)
The cost of living index released in Washington last week revealed more than the usual price coverage accorded this monthly announcement. The public has grown accustomed to the increases in the cost of living that have occurred with clocklike precision every month. This was unusual, however, in that food prices rose for the first time, or at least for the first time was the principal cause of the rise in the cost of living. In this instance food accounted for three-fourths of the increase.

NEWS OF THE SELECTIVE SERVICE
Question: I plan to take the Selective Service College Qualification Test. Should I guess the answers to the questions about which I am not certain?
Answer: Your score will be based only on the number of questions you answer correctly. In general, it is best for you to answer all questions because a wrong guess is more often right than wrong.
Question: Should a high school senior who plans to enroll in college in September take the test?
Answer: The test is not mandatory. However, you are encouraged to take the test. It will provide your local board with additional information with respect to determining your proper classification.
Question: Since my ex-husband does not contribute to the support of our children, will his classification be changed?
Answer: If this information has been furnished to his local board they will consider him for reclassification.
