Local Business Ladies Over 55 Have By S. S. TALBERT Chairman, Dept. of Journalism Buying Power

Census figures show that 30 percent of the female population of the United States us iver 55 years of age.

In Smaller cities the percentage is often much higher, running up to 50 percent in some communities.

To the retailer or service firm, the import of the number of mature women in a community cannot be overstated. The of matter, vester in a committy cannot be overstained, To significance has been examined by arrison must be researcher. Abod the votes over 50, it has been found: The vester of the possibilities of a fine pleases than any other segment of the population of a fine pleases than any other segment of the population of the proper than any other segment of the population of the proper than any other segment of the population of the proper than any other populations are proper to the proper of the proper operation operation of the proper operation operation of the proper operation opera

She does approximately 80 percent of the buying for men in her age group.

Her image of what she is, and what she would like to be, is entirely different from the romastic image of youth. She has more lithin advertising claims than other publics, but she is more likely to hold advertisers to their claims than other publics.
