after a six-month illness. A native of Owingville, he was a member of the Christian Church. Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Arlene T. Vanlaningham; two daughters, Paris and Mrs. Fred Tolson; Carlisle; two sons, Walter Vanlaningham, Jr., Mr. Sterling and George; Columbus, Trenton, Ohio; a sister, Mrs. George Lazor; Salt Lake; nine grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Library Receives New Books

The Nicholas County Public Library in Carlisle has just received a shipment of new books from the Department of Libraries. These adult books represent the best available titles on numerous subjects and have been sent to all county libraries participating in state library programs. All citizens are encouraged to borrow these new books, free of charge. Among the new additions to our shelves are the following: Biographies; "The Astoria" by Lucy Kavalier. The fascinating story of how the Astor name came to symbolize wealth and power, by Edward Cranshaw, a highly readable book of the self-made Russian dictator who rose from a peasant to become master of 200 million people. This is the first biography of a Western authority on Russia, to cover Khrushchev's entire political career.

Those who enjoy his highly romantic music will appreciate this new and sympathetic approach to the composer's life and personality. "I See You" by Charlotte Armstrong. A book of short stories exposing various moods of an author known as the "Queen of the suspense novel." "And I Shall Sleep Down Where The Moon Is Small" by Richard Llewellyn. Many readers will remember with great pleasure the author's How Green Was My Valley and Up into the Singing Mountains. This latest novel concludes the trilogy of a Welsh coal-mining family, one of a proud and romantic people who remain as Welsh as their ancestors, though they live thousands of miles from their native land. Continued on Page 12
