National Library Week April 16 to 22

Out of Sight, Out of Mind

As long as we can't see the water, that is lake water, we can accomplish our tasks, but let us sprawl onto a sofa or into an easy chair we're mesmerized by the rippling water or white caps on Lake Carnico, and white caps there were Sunday afternoon as a gusting wind sent most things not fastened down scurrying this way and that. As pointed out, we manage to get most things done.

Our latest undertaking on Thursday afternoon and Friday afternoon really not in the realm of a printer was the cleaning-out of a 4x10x10-foot cistern and nailing down a plywood top set in caulking compound that'll keep little furry field mice and other crawling animals in their place, which when one wishes to quench his thirst, is not the cistern.

We realize that as a youngster, there was this cistern on the back porch, filled we all believed with rain water off the shingle roof--mmm, that was cool, sweet tasting water, that is until someone came to clean out that pit. Thank goodness, time glosses over a lot.

Any way until the Nicholas County Water District lines are completed and we're told the contractor has 180 days in which to do the job, we're certain in our own mind that a good cleaning job was done and the top will hold.

--MV--

As any one can see from the cartoon above next week April 16-22 is National Library Week. And Nicholas County has one of the most modern facilities in the state. If you haven't visited the Nicholas County Library, what better time than next week.

--MV--

We've taken to clipping the Solunar Tables from a daily newspaper on when to fish, so far none of the major periods coincide with my times off. At least something isn't working right, the fish that haven't been caught are costing several dollars per pound. And to think, this is Kentucky's "Go Fishing Week", April 9-15.

--MV--

With spring so early this year, we hope that hard stuff we scraped off the windshield Tuesday morning didn't damage the fruit buds.

--MV--

"An education isn't how much you have committed to memory, or even how much you know. It's being able to differentiate between what you do know and what you don't. It's knowing where to go to find out what you need to know; and it's knowing how to use the information once you get it."--William Feather.

Hospital News

BY MURRAY BROWN

Anyone who has spent some time in a hospital, or has paid bills incurred by a stay in the hospital does not need to be reminded that "hospitalization is costly these days."

Each innovation, each new service, results in higher costs and more personnel.

Hospitals have long been under pressure from the public to offer more and better services, to install the latest equipment, to hire the best personnel, and provide the most comfortable and highest quality patient care possible.

The Nicholas County Hospital has attempted to meet such demands, despite severe budgetary limitations. We at the Nicholas County Hospital want the best for our sick and are doing our best to keep up with the fast advancement of medical science.

But, as our hospital developes, so does the need for more and better equipment, and each new life-saving device increases the need for more highly skilled personnel.

Unfortunately, however, until recently, hospitals in general, and our hospital is no exception, had found themselves at a marked disadvantage in attracting and retaining the needed personnel.

In 1946 the average annual wage of the hospital employee lagged by 97%, when compared to industry. By 1964, this gap has been narrowed to 31%. With the current wave of hospital salary and wage increases, precipitated in part by the stand of professional nurses whose salaries had fallen behind, the hospital wage scale is beginning to approach the level of industry's wages.

Since nearly two-thirds of the hospital's operating costs are paid out in wages and salaries, this increase in labor costs must of necessity, have a marked effect on the patients bill. Aside from the increased labor costs, the modern hospital is faced with many other rising cost factors, such as new modern equipment, more and better instruments and machines required by todays surgical techniques, repair and modernization costs, and increasing costs of drugs, and other medical and surgical supplies.

These rising costs of hospitalization will continue so long a s man continues to develop more numerous and more sophisticated techniques, proceedures and equipment to protect and restore health.

Nonetheless, taking into account the revolutionary strides in hospital care over the past 20 years, it is not likely that any of us would want to receive 1947 hospital care--even at 1947 prices!

Agree Or Not

I Say What I Think

By S. C. VAN CURON

FRANKFORT, Ky.--The Republican primary began to shape up some last week when Jefferson County Judge Marlow Cook charged in speeches that his opponent, Louie B. Nunn, is using religion and open housing as issues against Cook.

As of now, it looks like the battle for the Republican nomination is shaping up into a battle between the Fifth Congressional District, the mountainous Republican stronghold, and Jefferson County where the Jefferson County Republican organization has won the last two county and city elections.

When the campaign gets outside of Jefferson County, Nunn started with a distinct advantage since he knows the Republican organization in every county. He lost to Gov. Edward T. Breathitt in 1963 by a scant 13,000 votes. But this is not the total history of his experience in conducting Republican campaigns.

Nunn has conducted several successful state-wide campaigns for Senator John Sherman Cooper and Senator Thruston Morton last time. In effect, he had a ready-built organization while Cook had to start from scratch or try to take part of it away from Nunn.

While registration figures in the Fifth District indicate that Republicans, where Nunn has been real strong, outnumbered their counterparts in Jefferson County, voting records indicate that Jefferson has outvoted the Fifth for the Republican ticket in the last state-wide elections.

A survey or reliable sources in the Fifth District last week indicated that Nunn is leading in the organizational campaign, but that Cook has been able to make some inroads in some areas. There is some indication that Nunn has cut into Cook in Jefferson County, but the fact still remains that Cook and Mayor Kenneth Schmeid have the jobs, and this counts a lot at voting time.

A check in Northern Kentucky indicates that the two may be running about even in that area. Both have been able to get an organization established there.

It is certain that Cook started out in the campaign with Nunn having the advantage in votes, but it's a little too early yet to get any sort of an accurate assessment on what may happen May 23. A lot of the campaign claims heard now can be discounted considerably... and this goes for both candidates.

There's an important factor in the campaign at this early date, and that is the lip-service encouragement Republicans are getting from Democrats that this looks like "their year." Democrat leaders almost invariably say that "Nunn" will beat Cook, but inside sources say they had rather the Democrats run against Nunn in November than Cook.

Reason, the Democrats have their eyes on the large vote in Jefferson County and think they could do better there in November against Nunn.

A leading Republican cautioned last week that the Republicans were going to have a tough job in November beating Henry Ward, who now looks like a sure winner in a cluttered field of Democrat cnadidates. The Republican pointed to Ward's long record of service and support of the Breathitt Administration. Then the observer added, "I haven't heard a citizen register a complaint against Ward. That's hard to beat."

Political observers generally credit any Democrat administration in Frankfort with being able to deliver from 100,000 to 150,000 votes on election day. This is a lot of votes for an opponent to have to get before he starts even with the administration-supported candidate.

The Fifth District versus Jefferson County in the Republican primary now looks like an accurate assessment at this time.

Proclamation

From April 16-22, 1967, communities throughout the United States will celebrate the tenth National Library Week--a concerted, nationwide effort to focus attention on the importance of reading and libraries in our national life.

Although reading has always been an unparalled source of entertainment, suddenly "a better-informed, better-informed, America" is imperative.

The printed word has become a necessity to keep us in watchful readiness to exercise responsible citizenship. Only a wide variety of reading can inform us of what has been and what is, and can train the imagination to forge ahead into what might be in the future.

Therefore,

I, Wm. Power, Mayor of Carlisle and Floyd Clark, County Judge, of Nicholas County, do hereby proclaim the week of April 16-22, 1967 to be Library Week and call on our citizens to join in an occasion which will recognize the vitality and strength of the printed word in today's world and its importance to our survival.

How to Launder Durable-Press

Durable-press fabrics reduce the work required to keep the family well groomed. Proper laundry methods help retain the easy-care features of these fabrics, say USDA specialists. Here are their suggestions--

For washing: Launder before fabrics are heavily soiled and as soon as possible after soiling. Turn garments inside out to help reduce "frosting" or wear on creases. Launder in the coolest water that will remove soil. If warm or hot water is used then rinse in cool water before machine spinning or hand ringing.

For heavy, oily soil, perspiration, and food stains, measure heavy duty liquid detergent required for entire load and apply full strength to the most soiled areas of garments. Soak in hot water, let water cool to 90 to 110 degrees F., then agitate for 6 to 8 minutes.

Shorten the wash cycle to the minimum required for soil removal. Use slow agitation or a stop-and-soak, followed by a short time of normal agitation. Advance the control dial to shorten cycles.

Rinse well in cool water. If your water is hard, use a water softener in the first rinse or fabric softener in the final rinse. Fabric softeners reduce the static charge which attracts soil. Softeners also decrease clinging of man-made fibers.

For drying: For less wrinkling, dry in small loads--about half the dryer capacity. Dry at normal heat unless your dryer has a setting for "wash-wear" or "permanent press". At end of dryer cycle, let the clothes continue to tumble for a cool-down period of 5 to 10 minutes after the heat is off.

As soon as the dryer stops remove garments and hang or fold.

If you have no dryer, shorten the final spin in the washing machine by advancing the dial, or remove the garments while dripping wet and hang on rust proof hangers. If touch - up pressing is needed, use the iron at the low setting.

A Law and How It Affects You

A law that may aid consumers in their future shopping goes into effect on July 1. The Fair Packaging and Labeling Act became law last November. The legislation applies to all food and laundry products. Meat and meat products, poultry and poultry products are not included because they are already covered by existing federal laws.

Of interest to most consumers are the key provisions. At the risk of overamplifying the information here is a brief summary:

The law provides double labeling of contents. The lable on a bottle or package now says for example...1 pint, 12 ounces, will say also 28 ounces.

The number of cunces a package contains will be prominently located on the display side, easy to locate, and without confusing words.

The law prohibits the the use of terms such as "giant" quartor "jumbo" pound. When a package promises to "serve 4" or serve 6," it must give the weight of each serving, for example 4 ounces.

Bargain-price promotions, such as "cents off" will be under regulations. A manufacturer may so label his product only if he is offering it at a price lower than the regular retail price.

French Toast Triangles

Cut slices of bread on the diagonal making two triangles per slice. To make 24 triangles --12 slices --into French toast follow directions below: 4 eggs, beaten; 1 cup milk; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 12 slices stale white bread; 2 tablespoons fat or oil

Combine eggs, milk, and salt. Dip each triangle of bread in egg mixture. Brown on both sides in fat on a hot griddle-- 3 to 4 minutes on each side. Serve immediately.

For variety: Add 1/2 teaspoon cinnaomn or nutmeg to egg mixture before dipping bread. Yield; 6 servings of 2 slices each.

Local Business

Most advertising serves a useful function.

Yet, nearly everyone recognizes when he buys products, or patronizes a store, which is promoted in dishonest or disgusting advertising.

The consumer encourages bad advertising if he fails to express his opinion about offensive advertising. If a retailer unconsciously runs offensive ads he would appreciate knowing the truth.

Conversely, the public encourages good advertising. Encouragement of good advertising begins with patronizing the retailer who uses advertising of superior quality.

Encouragement of good advertising by the public extends beyond buying reaction. The business man appreciates a written note or a spoken word concerning advertising which has been especially pleasing or serviceable to the consumer.

The Advertising Club of New York describes the public's responsibility;

"Advertising is the most democratic institution in the world. Every time you buy a product you cast a vote. For and Against.

"And, every time you write a letter, you speak for 500 people. Every advertiser is painfully aware of this."
