FIGHTMASTER

THE POTTERS FIRST CHRISTMAS IN BETHLEHEM
 by Harriet Frye

The winter has come, and the winds; The trees are bare at the thorn. And over the way, in a manger. We are told that a child has been born.

He lies among cattle and oxen, And shepherds have brought him their lambs. Perhaps I shall make him a bright new coat. All painted with donkeys and rams.

The dawn of a morning in winter Is filled with a mother's light laughter. Our children will call this day Christmas, And so men will call it thereafter.

We stand, while our minds are in winter, Looking out on a pink and red morn. And over the way, in a manger, We are told that a child has been born.

May your Christmas be filled with much love and laughter.
