like a playful pup along the hall. I should like to see you in the morning, Miss. Ah, do you know, you know, you know.

So, someone is always looking for a new morning coffee, yet someone is always looking for a new morning coffee.

There's something to laugh at, something to do, something to think about, something to do.

There's something to laugh at, something to do, something to think about, something to do.

There's something to laugh at, something to do, something to think about, something to do.

There's something to laugh at, something to do, something to think about, something to do.

There's something to laugh at, something to do, something to think about, something to do.

'I'VE DONE MY DUTY'

By J. Tomlin Elder

My father ran a small store at Hickman and a farm by the name of Moore's farm. He was a man of many accomplishments.

There were no rural roads then you know, and somebody went for the mail once a week and dropped it in around the neighborhood.
