Communications!

Webster's definition of communications is: Intercourse by words, letters, or messages; interchange of thoughts or opinions, by conference or other means; conference; correspondence, and so on.

Most problems arise from faulty communications. In the opening remarks by Howard Livingston, school board chairman, it was revealed (and later proved) that communications was the root of most of the problem. Had it not been for the thoughtfulness of a friend who communicated with us, we would have been unaware of the meeting held last Thursday evening.

minority of students "prone to more evil than good."

As was stated by County Attorney Charles W. Day, "You (all) can have law and order, if the citizens will back up the law enforcement officers. Law and order are not just a one-way street, something that someone else attends to. The fact that communications were again to blame became quite apparent."

As with most meetings, there were many suggested ways to cope with the situation.

Type can be active or passive. It can simply lie on the paper and be read or ignored; or it can speak up and demand attention. It can establish the tone of the conversation. It can impute character to the product. It can evoke images. — Arthur E. Tatham.

Let us make education our national objective, — William Feather.

"A borrower who tries to live within your means."

It pays to be a 4-H Club member. In the past year 4-H members in Nicholas County have received money as prizes by exhibiting their projects and project books in fairs and special sales.

A snack "makes a party" when you get together with your group for friendship and fun.

A wide choice of snacks will help alleviate the following situations that currently exist in the United States.

At a very young age children are taught to snack either by example or experience. The eating of snacks, quickly, satiates hunger but when they are eaten close to mealtime they can spoil the appetite.

Remember, having an extra pound of fat on your body is a health hazard. Snacks for most occasions should be simple, easy to prepare and convenient to serve.

TOMORROW'S WORLD

HOW TO FEED THE WORLD

How will the world be fed in the year 2000 with an estimated 6.1 billion people?

C. W. Cook, Chairman, General Foods Corporation, speaking at the 71st Congress of American Industry in New York, said, "The driving force of our private enterprise organizations can, and must, be brought increasingly to bear on this vital problem."

He stated that government and business must recognize the vital role each must play in accomplishing our national goal of peace and security. He added, "And if America's food industry, from farm through distribution, is to take on the formidable task of carrying know-how around the world, then some major revisions will have to be made in some alarming and growing concepts now prevalent in Washington as to how free enterprise works best."

The present trend toward ever more limitation of free enterprise by government control will have to be reversed. The freedom and incentive to plan and to operate which has made us the outstanding 'have' nation in history must be extended rather than curtailed if we are to lead the 'have nots' of the misery and insecurity which threaten the security of the entire world." Mr. Cook concluded.

Dear Sir: I would like to have the following announcement put in your next edition.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Turner Shannon, Paris, Ky., announce the adoption of a baby daughter, born Dec. 25. They have chosen the name Susan Martens for their new daughter and first child.

The Carlisle Mercury will help a lot of people who are working for a better county and city. I think that our future will be much brighter if we will keep on working and looking for a better future.

Editor The Mercury: I am writing this letter with all the respect to our community, and in relation to the slogan we have adopted for the Carlisle and Nicholas County "Shop at Home."

Dear Mr. Fisher: I would like to take this opportunity to say Nicholas County has a long way to go in the past few years. Some people say we could get along without Lake Carnico or a library. That might be true if we were living in the 1800's. I believe that our county is at a turning point in its history. We

I Say What I Think

By S. C. VAN CURSON

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Since this is a gubernatorial campaign year, Kentucky's financial position and fiscal condition is of interest to most Kentuckians.

The figures used here come from a speech made earlier this month by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Matthews Jr. before the American Institute of Banking Forum in Cincinnati. Matthews was Kentucky's financial commissioner under Gov. Bert T. Combs. Matthews is now a candidate for lieutenant governor.

Matthews explained to the bankers, "Kentucky's general obligation bonds are not as good as they were 30 years ago. The reason for this is that the debt service of the principal debt calls for the highest skilled and dedicated integrity of those who administer the government."

"The present trend toward ever more limitation of free enterprise by government control will have to be reversed. The freedom and incentive to plan and to operate which has made us the outstanding 'have' nation in history must be extended rather than curtailed if we are to lead the 'have nots' of the misery and insecurity which threaten the security of the entire world."
