Opposed To Cut

Kentucky's congressional delegation is almost unanimously opposed to the proposed cutback of federal highway funds and have indicated they will support when committee hearings are conducted this month.

Kentucky's road program, Federal Interstate and regular Federal road funds will be cut $51 million if Congress accepts the President's proposals. Highway Commissioner Mitchell Tinder says the proposed additional $7 million cutback would handicap Kentucky "no end."

The state's road funds have already been cut nearly $14 million. This is coupled with a backlog freeze of $30 million, and now comes the additional $7 million proposed cut.

This has Gov. Edward T. Breathitt and state officials considerably concerned about economic progress and foresee a drop in jobs, to say nothing of the damage it can do to highway contractors who have heavy obligations on new equipment purchased to handle jobs already planned by the Highway Department.

Highway planning is a long-range project with work projected two years and more in advance, from planning stage to letting of some of the contracts.

Breathitt sees the state's 1967 road projects as some help in this critical situation but not sufficient to cushion the shock of the loss of federal road funds if Congress approves the President's proposals.

West Virginia's Senator Jenning's Randolph, chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee, has set hearings this month, and Maryland's Congressman George H. Fallon, chairman of the House Public Works Committee, has said his committee will hold hearings.

Here's what members of Kentucky's delegations have told the Kentucky Better Roads Council whose office is here in Lexington.

Senator John Sherman Cooper -- I have been discussing the highway money situation with Chairman Randolph, and he has promised me that he will hold hearings on this matter before the Senate Committee on PublicWorks, on which I am ranking minority member. You may be certain I will follow these hearings closely.

Senator Thurston Morton -- I am very much aware of the current factors involved -- in terms of employment safety, disrupted construction schedules, cost of stretch-out -- and in view of the program's importance to Kentucky I have talked to some of my colleagues on the Senate's Public Works Committee. I will follow the proceedings and committee's judgement with interest.

Congressman Carl Perkins -- I am opposed to the reduction of Federal highway funds. I agree completely with your Better Roads Council on that subject.

Congressman John Watts -- You are assured that I am in agreement with the general philosophy as to the need to proceed with the construction of our nationwide highway system. In this connection I propose to do everything I possibly can under the circumstances to see that Congress takes appropriate action in this matter as soon as practicable.

Congressman Tim Lee Carter -- I will do everything reasonably possible
