MERCURY VAPOURS

by Warren R. Fisher

Stupidity knows no end! We became embased Saturday afternoon in un-deckering that really worked the calories off the mid-section, and we'd probably still be tugging at one end of our ponion float, had not Zed Layson sent us help via a four-wheel drive truck.

We've always been careful of drivers, but we had a new witch, which, having a capacity of one ton led us into the idea that all that was needed was to hook one end to the float, tie the wheel to a tree and start cranking. Cranking we did, aptly, walking back and forth between the ponion and the witch, straining at first one side then the other.

That that float was not made to slide on terra firma, in the water, it takes but a gentle push to get it scooting along, but not on the ground. Just a moon as we'd wind it out of the water, the operation ground to a diamal halt.

Man-made labor, saving devices have always intrigued us, our only difficulty being there's never enough money to satisfy our wish.

Jewell Vice of Reid, Vice and Green, told us Monday of a labor-saving fork lift his firm had acquired and what a snap it made of unloading a carload of lumber, and how being able over a period of time to lower handling costs, thus passing savings on to his customers.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Frey, who are spending the winter in Umattilla, Fla., sent two large boxes of palms to be used in decorating the Carlisle Methodist and Christian churches, Palm Sunday.

Keith H. Hutchings, was ordained as a minister in the Christian church that night.

Carlisle's local Selective Service Board No. 129, which since 1940 has rendered, classified and "grieved" a total of 670 Nicholas County young men on their way into the Armed Forces, wrote a definite "final" report to its activities at midnight on the expiration of the national draft law.

Fire, which County superintendent Raymond Weasley said probably originated in a concealed attic space, early Thursday night reduced to ashes the brick graded school building at Moorefield, about six miles from Carlisle. Born To Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Burke of Myers, a daughter.

Married: Mildred Jane

The machine balist is a labor saver, but with nine announced candidates for governor, the printers of this Commonwealth will have their hands full, as will the voter.

Generalship offers to please God Almighty, but the "powers-that-be" have seen to it that the antics in back in the gas system. After all, someone has to look out for folks like me and there.

George Trotter, writing in the Blood-Pressure folder:

A sure way for a fisherman to buy his blood pressure rise is for someone to bring in a big, big fish and dangle it in front of his eyes. That's what happened to me last Thursday. Stranded with work and unable to get 'n' 'n' I worked away from the window and I wouldn't see the warm sun shine outside and drop everything for an angling session.

Conservation Officer Cecil Corby ruled it all. In he walked with a 5-pound, 4-ounce large mouth bass he'd taken driftfishing at Sportman's Lake at Cathey. Said he had a sick headache, so he went fishing. Had four minnows. He got three fish and a bite from another one, also a whopper. Not a bad average, I'd say. It was the one snap it made of unloading a carload of lumber, and how being able over a period of time to lower handling costs, thus passing savings on to his customers.

Smart to Thomas William Sabert Jr. to Winchester.

Nancy Carolyn Smarts to James D. Guice in Millersburg.

Miss Nellie Ruth Buckler to Stuart Olliva Burke in Carlisle.

Died: Walter Marshall Smith, 80, at his home, Garrett Thompson Post, 81, at his home in Ellenville.

Henry A. Webster, 54, of Evanston, Ill. died at his home in Florence 64, at her home near La Cañada in California.

Abraham Banta Campbell, 90, at his home in Lexington.

Farm Home

Alfalfa growers are urged to watch their crop and as soon as the weather warms up to 50 degrees or warmer it will probably need to be sprayed. Some farmers are planning to start spraying earlier than last year. As soon as leaf feeding by the larvae can be seen and the weather is right, the spray equipment should be gotten ready. Several materials can be used. Follow the directions given on the container.

A very interesting and informative housing workshop will be held at the 4-11 Camp April 4. The day program will be on individual housing and the night program on public housing. Stop by the Extension Office after a program which gives more details.

Moles in gardens and lawns seem to be giving more trouble this year than in most past years. They are after grubs and other soil insects. The best way to control them is to get rid of their food supply. This can be done by spraying or treating with granules. Chlordane, Aldrin or heptachlor are effective.

State-wide supervision gets a lot of enjoyment out of 4-11 Photography projects. Many of them never owned or operated a camera before, and they don't run around taking pictures any old way. The more than 70,000 4-H boys and girls nationwide enrolled in photography clubs kept stop-
