THE FAMILY LAWYER

Taxing the Wages of Sin

Have you swindled anyone lately? Collected wiy ransom? Taken any illegal kickbacks? Embezzled any cash? Then, in addition to whatever other problems you may have with the law, you also owe income tax to the federal government.

It may seem strange for the government to levy an income tax on such ill-gotten gains. Indeed, wrongdoers have carried their objections into the courtroom, arguing—as did the proprietress of a bawdyhouse—that the wages of sin are not taxable.

But the government retorts that, if honest people have to pay a tax on their income, so should dishonest people. In the words of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes:

"Congress may tax what it also forbids."

Of course, a lawbreaker may not report—or even keep records of—his income. Nevertheless, the government has various ways of establishing its case. For example:

one gambler's income was proven by the canceled checks he paid to his confederates.

and a third gambler's income was proven by evidence of the average "take" in similar gambling operations.

If a wrongdoer must pay a tax on his income, may he at least deduct his expenses? If they are "ordinary and necessary" costs of doing business, they may usually be deducted—even if the business is illegal. Thus, a court held that a bookmaker was entitled to deduct costs of rent and wages in figuring his net income.

But suppose the expense itself is illegal, like paying a bribe to a public official. That kind of an expense is not deductible.

The government takes the position that it would be bad public policy to let a person cut down his tax bill on the basis of his own unlawful act.

By the same token, a fine paid for violating a state or a federal law is also not a deductible expense (although the attorney's fee is). True, paying the fine may be one of the costs of doing business. But, as the United States Supreme Court put it, allowing the fine to be deducted would take some of the "sting" out of the punishment.

Bourbon Leaf Farmer Invents Machine to House Tobacco

Housing of tobacco--handing up the sticks of burley leaf to be hung on the rails--is a job that requires a considerable amount of manpower--and work.

But a new machine that has been perfected by Will K. Thomas of the Lexington Road, appears to be destined to make the housing of tobacco a much easier task--and to provide a quicker means of housing.

The machine is a triangular framed affair that is the base for a twin-tubular multi-stage lift.

The life is topped by a four-pronged fork into which a stick of tobacco is laid. Then the lift is raised by compressed air, which can propel the lift to the top of a seven bent barn--or some 30 feet up off the ground.

The fork at the top of the lift can be turned at any angle, so that it can push the stick of tobacco up through the rails and other hanging tobacco and to allow it to gently drop the rail.

The machine can be operated by one man--but a two-manoperation is more efficient--one man operating the machine and other putting the sticks of tobacco on the fork.

It requires but a matter of seconds to send the fork to the top of the barn.

Thomas designed and planned the machine and had F.C. Johnston, a local machinist whose shop is on Pleasant Street, to build it.

Actually the machine can be operated on the ground or off a wagon, whichever is more convenient.

Thomas housed a fourth of an acre of tobacco with his machine this fall, not using it for the entire crop because he had already contracted to have it housed, but he used the housing machine enough to convince him it's a most efficient piece of machinery.

He demonstrated it once--having been invited to show off its operation on the George Caffin farm, nine miles west of Carlisle on State 36, in Nicholas County. About 50 tobacco growers witnessed the demostration and quite a few of them were interested in acquiring similar machines. All were quite impressed with the idea and ease with which tobacco can be housed with a minimum of manpower and in much less time.

Thomas hopes to be in a position to market the machine next year, having already applied for a patent on it.

It's simple to operate, all that is needed is a compressor to supply the compressed air.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR COLLEGE—This architect's drawing shows Academic Buildings No. 1 and No. 2 which are to be erected within a year at the University of Kentucky Community College at Elizabethtown. Bids for construction of the two-story buildings and renovation of the existing building are to be opened soon. The college which opened in 1964 currently has an enrollment of about 700.

INVEST A DOLLAR TO MAKE SEVEN

Test after test in numerous feeding trials, averaging 150 days on approximately 7,000 head, cattle wormed with Purina Worm-Kill showed on the average added weight gains of .15 pound per day. IT'S A FACT--at 25 cents per pound, this gave an extra income of $7.62 per head. It cost approximately $1.00 to worm cattle weighing 400 lbs. Approximately $1.50 for large brood cows. Now is an excellent time to worm cattle!

BABY PIG ANEMIA CAN KILL 30% OF A LITTER Pigs become anemic because: they are born with only a small supply of iron; sow's milk does not contain enough iron to supply the pig's needs; pigs, therefore, become anemic unless given extra iron through injections or orally. Pigs with iron deficiency anemia; hair rattles; are pale around eyelids and mouth; show lack of vigor; are sluggish, have labored breathing; sometimes don't gain normally - other times appear will developed and healthy, but die suddenly. PURINA IRON-PLUS CAN STOP PIG ANEMIA. One ten pound bag will treat three litters. Bag cost approximately $3.50. Just feed two handfuls per litter twice weekly, starting at 3 days of age and continuing for 3 weeks. PIGS LOVE IT---YOU WILL LOVE THE RESULTS.

Mrs. Viola Jones has authorized us to sell at absolute auction her good farm located 6 miles east of Cynthiana on Millersburg Pike. The farm will be sold in three tracts, and will not be combined.

TRACT No. 1 - Known as the Hiram Jones home place, this tract consists of 60 acres, more or less and has a tobacco allotment of 3.6 acres. This tract is improved with a nice home, two barns, a crib and garage, and several outbuildings. The house has five rooms and bath. This is a modern home, having hot and cold running water and all modern conveniences. The house has a poured concrete basement, storm doors and windows, a large storage attic, a concrete front porch, and many other fine features. It will make anyone a lovely country home, with several fruit trees, a grape arbor, and many flowers. Both barns are in good condition; the 48 x 30 barn is practically a new barn. It has a stripping room. The other barn is 40 x 36 and has a loading chute. The house and both barns have lightning rods.

This is a good farm. It lays gently rolling and is strong land. It has average fence and plenty of grass and water.

TRACT No. 2 - Laying across the road from tract #1, this contains about 20 acres. This tract has a four room frame house with cistern at the door. Additional improvements consists of a barn 40 x 36, a coal house, poultry house, a crib and garage combined and several other outbuildings. All of these buildings have good metal roofs. This is good soil. This farm lays well, has good fencing and an adequate water supply from a pond and a never failing spring. Tobacco allotment is 2.30 acres.

TRACT No. 3 - This is a small strip of land, across Beamer Pike from tract No. 2 at the intersection of the Hardy Pike. There is good shade tree on this lot. This is a good little building site, or place to park a house trailer. TERMS: $2,500, down on Tract No. 1; $1,500, down on Tract No. 2; all cash on tract No. 3. Possession and delivery date of deeds announced day of sale. Seller will pay all 1967 Taxes.

Immediately following the sale of the Real Estate, the following personal property will be sold for cash; couch (maked bed); antique love seat; odd chairs; 2 bed room suites (complete); cedar chest; lamps; end tables, 9 x 12 rug; oil circulating heater and tank; 2 gooseneck rockers; dining room suite; wash stand; kettle; antique frames, many carpet; hall tree; white iron bed; sewing machine; washing machine; day bed; trunks; lots of quilts; bed clothes; hot plate; lard press; feather bed, oil lamps, lot of dishes, some hand painted; coal and electric range combined; refrigerator; deep freeze; dinette set; kitchen cabinet; pots; pans; hand tools; good power saw; scoop shovel; shot gun; 22 rifle and many other things too numerous to mention.
