

LETTERS from our readers

Dear Sir,

This letter is written in regard to your recent editorial about the wild and tame I'm certain.

I took journalism in school and found the power of the pen to be in the mind of people who are able to write. Also, the editor of a newspaper believes in what he writes and that the reader also has the same privilege. I hope you read this with an open mind and do not write me in the editor of the Carlisle Mercury of October 19, 1967, you printed the occurrence of a fight and assault, of which our tax payers citizens, had no protection. The policemen found only their own interest involved. There are many eyes-witness to the scene...

My name is George, I'm an all-around handyman, and I'd like to be paid for my services for any and all chores, errands and repairs which you may be busy to perform. Anything that you'd rather not do, I'll leave to the pros. I'll write you just let me know if you'll write me. I'll be glad to come to your home or office to see you. I'll be glad to come to your home or office to see you. I'll be glad to come to your home or office to see you.

Thank you for your paper, Pamela Reid.

Dear Editor, Kentucky is presented with an outstanding group of Democratic candidates for state offices. Each candidate can execute the duties of his office with great efficiency because of his respective administrative experience. One must be able to take over and run a third of the world already, because he is not taking over a new one. I'm taking over in lots of cities and counties in the United States. I'll be glad to be of service to you. I'll be glad to be of service to you. I'll be glad to be of service to you.

Agree Or Not, I Say

Franklin, Ky., Oct. 17 - If a man have owned the platform of the two political parties engaged in a lake-warm battle to capture the vote here, they've agreed to be hard put to find much difference.

First off, both have pledged no increased taxes—nothing worse to the voters' ears. The Democratic platform was released last, but the earlier released Republican platform points that Henry Warner, the Democrat gubernatorial nominee, had released personnel from speaking platforms across the state.

Both of these arguments come down to the fact both have made solid pledges in their platforms that will be no use of increased taxes. The voter might well ask, "What if an emergency arises in the next four years?" What then?

Both parties agree to increase the number of State Policemen and to increase the number of State Troopers. Both parties agree to increase the number of State Troopers. Both parties agree to increase the number of State Troopers.
