Clean-up Mascot

Introducing—Dan'l And Rebecca Broome

Reminding us—"Kentucky's Beauty Is Everybody's Duty" is the new job cut out for "Dan'l and Rebecca Broome", who will serve as live mascots for Kentucky's statewide network of Cleanup and Beautification programs.

Publicity pictures of them will be used to focus attention on making Kentucky a "cleaner and greener land," From time to time they will be called on to distribute litter bags and other materials in public appearances.

In real life Dan'l and Rebecca Broome are Troy Woody Jr., 5, and his sister, Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Troy Woody Sr., Frankfort.

The new Dan'l Broome replaces John W. Evins III, Frankfort, who outgrew the role. For the first time, a Rebecca Broome joins Dan'l on the beautification scene.

Cartoon figures of the pair will appear on litterbags posters, bumper stickers and booklets distributed by the Division of Clean-Up and Beautification Kentucky Department of Natural Resources.

"Color Me Clean" is a new 12-page animated cartoon coloring booklet in the planning stage. It will feature Dan'l and Rebecca Broome and is being designed and written to appeal to children of elementary school age. The booklet will explain how to keep Kentucky's home, parks, and schools neat and clean.

"Color Me Clean" will be ready for distribution tentatively in January, 1969. Copies will be available to children through restaurants, children's television programs, and schools.

Requests for the free booklets may be made by writing to the Division of Cleanup and Beautification, Department of Natural Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

A 30-member executive committee, representing 350 members of the statewide "Keep Kentucky A Cleaner and Greener Land Committee," recently met with the Division of Clean-up and Beautification. Their function is to plan and coordinate clean-up and beautification activities in cities and counties.

In 1969, they will support the U. S. Brewers Association's anti-litter campaign in 25 areas in Kentucky. This program has already achieved success and won public acceptance in Virginia and North Carolina.

As an outreach of the executive committee, 16 sub-committees will be formed throughout the state to study various areas and determine what needs to be done to implement a total clean-up and beautification program.

HIGH IN THE POLLS

Kentucky's Wildcats finished last season ranked fourth among the nation's cage powers. As the 1968-69 season opened last Saturday, they were tabbed as the nation's third strongest team. Adolph Rupp, beginning his 39th season as coach at Kentucky reacted, "no, no, no, there's no way we can be ranked that high." Basketball's winningest coach went on, "we lost six seniors off that squad and every one of them at one time was a starter for us. We've got our three sophomores of last year back, of course but these people that vote in the polls must figure these sophomores did more than six months of spark us last year."

Of the three super sophs from last year, Mike Pratt, Mike Casey and Dan Issel, only two are ready for service. Pratt will miss the first several games with a broken finger. "With Pratt out of there," says Coach Rupp, "we're a small ball club." The "Baron of basketball" has special praise for one of his players. "Issel is the most improved player this year. He's seven pounds heavier and much stronger. He does things in practice that are something to see. Everyone reminds me more and more of Leroy Edwards, an outstanding boy we had here several years ago."

While Coach Rupp insists his Wildcats have no business being ranked on such a lofty perch in the pre-season polls, he admits this could be a good team, "I'll say this," he says, "we'll be an interesting team. By the end of the season we could be knocking around up there in the polls. Somewhere around third place or maybe even second."

Most of Adolph Rupp's first 38 teams at Kentucky have been knocking around up there someplace, high in the polls.
