

Laymen Visit UK Ag. Campus

The following: Dr. Leon Riggs, Dr. R. H. Sparks, W.C. Dyer, Miss Hazel Swartz, Mrs. Grimes Caywood, Mrs. James Hamon, Mrs. Thelma Hoovermale, Mrs. Harold Vico, D.P. Parley, Charles Wilson, Mrs. James Simons, Mrs. Glenn Booth and Charles Watkins, were among the nearly 40 persons from business, civic and professional circles in 14 central Kentucky counties that visited the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Experiment Station facilities this week. They toured the site as part of the college's adult education plan. They visited research, teaching and extension facilities, and talked to staff members in all three work areas. The group was greeted by Dr. William A. Seay, dean, Dr. C.L. Harrison, director of the experiment station, and Dr. G.W. Schuster, associate director of the extension service.

Over 1200 Kentucky Families Use USDA Opportunity Loans

Working their way up from the poverty income level isn't the easiest thing to do, but well over 1,200 rural families in Kentucky started the climb upward in the past year with the help of economic opportunity loans, according to Samuel T. Harrison, Farmers Home Administration state director. Harrison reported this week on progress of the opportunity loan program administered by the USDA Farmers Home Administration for the Office of Economic Opportunity. The program saw 1212 loans totaling $2,200,000 advanced to families in the lowest income group to provide tools, supplies, equipment and working space needed to earn a better living. Since the program began in January 1965, loans totaling $2,400,000 have been made to over 1,200 families, any direct or even indirect income generated in the small service as a result of the rate increase will be imposed on the public. It is estimated to tax the public with an increase in postal rates without making a major attempt to improve the service. Harrison said the economic opportunity loan borrowers are developing more than 175 different kinds of non-agricultural enterprises, in addition to farming. Loans average $2,000 a piece to tax the public with an increase in postal rates without making a major attempt to improve the service. College Relations Staffer
Appointed By U.K. Dean

Appointment of Curtis Ferguson, a graduate of the University of Kentucky, as director of college relations for the U.K. ag college was announced this week.

Dr. William A. Seay, dean of the College of Agriculture, said Ferguson's post will feature recruiting work with outstanding students, "to attract them to attend the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture."

This includes work with high school college students, high school students, parents, principals, guidance counselors, and educational leaders on careers, opportunities available at U.K. in ag technology, agriculture and ag science career days for county high schools, state-wide high school groups and special interest groups.

Mrs. Ferguson received the bachelor of science degree in 1952 from the U.K. College of Agriculture and by the last 12 years has been associated with Southern States Cooperative in Lexington.
