Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman Announces 1969 Crop Wheat Program

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman announced today the 1969 crop Wheat Program. It features a small national allotment of 51.6 million acres.

"The reduced 1969 allotment" Freeman said, "will make it possible to strengthen farm prices and to reduce our carryover by around 100 million bushels."

Freeman also said he is establishing an export target of 750 million bushels for the 1968-69 marketing year, and predicts that 1967's export goal of 750 million bushels will be exceeded. Final official figures will be available early in July indicating shipments during the 12 months ending June 30, 1968.

"Reaching our export target for 1967 represents a major achievement," he said, "When we announced last year that we would shoot for this figure, many people felt we had set an impossible goal. But through the hard work of exporters, members of sales missions, USDA Trade Promotion Specialists, USDA officials, and many others, we are reaching it." He noted, however, that the 750 million bushel export target for 1968-69 will be even more difficult to meet in the face of heavier world supplies.

The 1969 wheat allotment is the same as for 1968--down 13 percent from the 59.3 million acres in effect for the 1966 crop year. Diversion payments at the maximum rate authorized by law will be offered to farmers for planting less than their acreage allotment and diverting this land to conserving use.

The Secretary noted that his decision follows closely the recommendations of the USDA Grain Advisory Committee and those received at 10 Field Hearings conducted by ASCS officials in early May.

Price Support loans on 1969 crop wheat will continue to be available at a national average of $1.25 per bushel. Total price support equal to 100 percent of parity (as of July 1, 1969) will be available on 43 percent of the cooperating farm's projected production on its allotted acreage. This compares to 40 percent in 1968. Domestic marketing certificates will make up the difference between parity and the loan rate.

Freeman said that with normal yields, production from the 1969 allotment should total about 1.3 billion bushels--compared to 1.55 billion bushels anticipated from the 1968 crop. He said this should bring about a sizable reduction in carryover stocks by mid-1970.

"Wheat growers," Secretary Freeman said, "can help achieve the 1969 goal by signing up in the voluntary program and by diverting to conserving use, for payment, an additional acreage below the allotment.

"The total acreage reduction target is about 18 percent," the Secretary declared.

The Secretary emphasized that program participation plus voluntary acreage diversion below allotments are key factors. "It will be up to the wheat growers, themselves, to take the actions they want the program to be fully successful in reducing stocks and strengthening market prices for the 1969 crop of wheat."

For 1969, a farmer may divert up to one-third of his acreage allotment and will receive 50 percent of the county average yield on the allotment acres diverted, times the projected yield. Farms with 1969 allotments 21.7 acres or less will be able to divert the entire allotment for payments. Payment will be contingent upon a conserving use of diverted acres.

Other features of the 1969 wheat program will be much the same as those for the 1966 crop.

Farmers signing up in the voluntary program can qualify for price-support loans and purchases, domestic marketing certificates, payments for diverting acreage below their allotments, and alternative cropping options. If a farmer signs up in both the Wheat and Feed Grain Programs, one option can be substitution between wheat and feed grain acres. Another option is the overplanting of allotment acreages by one-half, with wheat from excess acres to be stored under bond.

Barley will again be excluded from the Feed Grain Program in 1969, because barley supplies are currently not excessive and are not expected to be. Inclusion of barley or commodity in the regular feed grain program is not justified.

"A farmer will again be able to substitute wheat for barley, oats and rye if he so requests and he has a history of production of these crops in 1959-60. However, conditions for substitution of wheat for barley, oats and rye will differ somewhat from 1967-68. With the allotment reduced to the 1966 level and with acreage diversion required under the Wheat Program, diversion of a comparable part of the barley, oats and rye base acreage will also be required as a condition of substitution for 1969. This is similar to the 1966 program. Required diversion from barley, oats and rye will be 15 percent of the base--somewhat less than the required diversion from these commodities in 1966.

A farmer can become a 1969 wheat program cooperator by signing up in the program; remaining within his allotment; devoting to conserving use that acreage designated as his regular conserving base, plus the acreage represented by the approximate difference between the 1968 and 1969 allotments, as well as acreage diverted for payment; planting within his acreage allotment for any other allotment crops on the farm; and remaining within the wheat allotment on any other farm in which he holds an interest.
