Edmonton Man Lands 38 lb., 2.5 ou. Pike

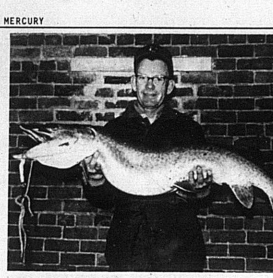
Frankfort--A Metcalfe County man will be telling a whopper of a fish story for days and months to come.

Willard Parnell of Edmonton has earned a place in the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Resources Department's record book by landing a 38 lb., 2.5 ounce muskellunge, the biggest member of the pike family. Parnell hooked his trophy last Feb. 20 in the Green River near Mammoth Cave.

In relating his story, Parnell said he took the muskilunge while casting with artificial bait, a long minnow-type lure with several treble hooks. After the strike, it took Parnell 30 minutes to land the giant which measured 51 and one-quarter inches long and 25 inches in girth.

Parnell's catch betters the old record for muskellunge by 2 pounds, 2.5 ounces. It belongs to Mrs. Ruby Skaggs of Brownsville who took a 36 pounder from the Green River July 25, 1955.

Besides the Green River, Muskellunge are also taken from several other rivers and streams in Kentucky, according to the Fish and Wildlife Department. They include the Red River, the Forks of the Kentucky River and Kinniconick Creek.



Green River Giant

--Willard Parnell of Edmonton displays the 38 lb. 2.5 ounce muskellunge he took from the Green River near Mammoth Cave while bait casting recently. The huge fish has earned a place in the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Resources Department's record book, bettering the old muskellunge record by more than 2 pounds. Muskellunge are found in several Kentucky rivers and streams.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q--Who can file the short form, 1040A?

A--This form can be used in the following circumstances: 1-Income is under $10,000, 2-Income consists entirely of wages subject to withholding and not more than $200 from other wages, dividends and interest.

The Form 1040A cannot be used by taxpayers who either itemize their deductions or who claim special tax credits or deductions such as the retirement income credit, sick pay exclusion, or moving expense deduction.

Further details for filing requirements are given in the instructions that accompany both the 1040 and 1040 A tax forms.

Q--How do you handle medical insurance premiums under the new law?

A--One-half of the premiums paid for medical insurance up to a maximum of $150 may be deducted when you itemize your deductions. These premiums are not subject to the three percent income limitation that applies to other medical expenses. The balance of your premiums should be included with any other medical expenses. The $3 a month paid for supplementary benefits under Medicare qualifies for this tax treatment.

Q--Does IRS put out anything that goes into more detail than the tax instructions?

A--Yes, there are several publications. One, "Your Federal Income Tax," provides 160 pages of detailed information. It may be purchased at local IRS offices for fifty cents.

There is also a "Tax Guide for Small Business," which costs fifty cents and a "Farmer's Tax Guide," which is available without charge.

Q--Too much was taken out for social security tax last year because I held two jobs. What should I do?

A--You can take a credit for the excess social security tax withheld by entering it on line 18 of Form 1040.

Q--My company paid my salary while I was recovering from a serious operation in the hospital last year. Can you tell me whether I have to pay tax on my pay for that time?

A--It depends on how much you received in pay for the time you were out. If your company paid you over 75 percent of your regular salary while you were sick then there is a 30-day waiting period before any of your pay may be excluded from income. After the 30-day period, you may exclude up to $100 a week from your income as sick pay.

If you received 75% or less of your regular pay, you will have to wait 30 period. Then you may exclude up to $75 a week, after 30 days, you may exclude up to $100 a week as sick pay. If you had not been hospitalized, you still have a 30 day waiting period. This provision of the law is explained at greater length in the 1040 instructions so be sure to check them if you think you are entitled to claim this exclusion.

Q--I support the child of my divorced daughter. Can I claim the child as a dependent even though she does not live with me?

A--Generally, you can if you provide more than one-half the child's support and the child was either a citizen or resident of the U.S., did not file a joint return and had gross income of less than $600.

The complete dependency requirements are covered in the 1040 tax instructions.

Meals Should Include Source Of Vitamin A

The season for colds and sore throats is here, so now is the time to make sure family meals include a good source of vitamin A.

Vitamin A helps protect the body against infections of the nose and throat. That's why it is important that you and your family eat foods rich in vitamin A often during the winter months.

Why can't we just take vitamin pills and not worry about getting vitamin A in food, you may ask. Here is the reason. Vitamin A, which is fat-soluble, is stored in the body in the liver. Because of this, overdosing of vitamin A can cause injury to health.

Self-prescribed doses of high-potency vitamins should be avoided. A member of your family should take such vitamins only when a doctor recommends them for that particular person.

Foods rich in vitamin A are associated with the dark green color of turnip greens, kale, broccoli, cabbage, and spinach or the deep yellow of carrots and sweet potatoes. Therefore, if you remember to include a dark green or deep yellow vegetable often in your menu plans each day, your family probably will get the vitamin A they need.

In addition to these vegetables, yellow peaches, apricots and cantaloupe are good sources of vitamin A.

New Flower Seed Available Now

Each year as the spring wild flowers begin to bloom, amateur gardeners begin to think about colorful displays around their homes. Since most wild flowers do better in their native situations than on home grounds, and have only a limited effect when used in mass, it is advisable to use commercially developed bedding plants around the home. Some of these, such as petunias, celosia, marigolds, salivia and vinca, will tolerate a wider range of environmental conditions than spring flowers.

This year gardners may choose from seven new varieties of annual flowers, including seven 1968 All-American Seed Selections. Two celosia varieties, three geranium, two marigold, one verbena and one zennia variety qualified as this year's All-American selections.

The plume celosia, Golden Triumph, is a relatively compact plant which will attain a height of about two feet. The plant bears one large central plume, surrounded by 10 or more smaller inflorescences (blossoms).

Growing geraniums from seeds, a new concept in the bedding plant industry, seems to be advancing rapidly. The new hybrids are known as Carefree geraniums. Because of their hybrid origin and freedom from disease present in some of the material propagated by cuttings), the plants are exceptionally vigorous. These geraniums naturally produce numerous branches, thus eliminating a need for pinching to induce new breaks. Usually two to four heads (about three or four inches in diameter) composed of single flowers are present throughout most of the growing season. Carefree geraniums chosen as All-American Selections include Carefree Bright Pink, an intense rose-pink; Carefree Deep Salmon, a deep salmon color; and Carefree Scarlet, a rich orange-red.

The marigold, First Lady, with its bright yellow flower heads about three inches in diameter, blooms freely and uniformly most of the growing season. The marigold, Orange Jubilee, has rich orange flowers on a bush plant. Both of these marigolds cultivars range in height from 18 to 24 inches.

The zinnia, Wild Cherry, a giant cherry-rose cactus type flower, will develop flowers up to six inches in diameter. The bushy plants, which bloom abundantly, will attain a height of about two and one half feet.

The 1968 All-American Seed Selections are only a few of the many excellent cultivars of flowering bedding plants which will be available at garden centers, florist shops, nurseries and other outlets this spring. Plan for a splash of color around your home in 1968.

Headlight Glare

Kentucky's new auto safety inspection law is expected to bring motorists relief from headlight glare.

"Excessive headlight glare is generally caused by lights that are out of aim," State Motor Vehicle Inspection Director Bob Shirley says. "If a national trend prevails in Kentucky's inspection program, misaimed headlights will be the greatest cause of rejection."

"If you don't think we have headlight problems in Kentucky," Shirley said, "just think about how many times you've signaled oncoming motorists to dim thier lights and have them signal back that they are already on dim."

The cost of adjusting headlights is expected to be one of the less expensive repairs, in the $1.50 to $3.-- range.

Peripheral Circulation Effective Heating System USDA Says

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says what well may be a very popular home-heating system is being developed now by the USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Jerry O. Newman, USDA-ARS engineer, calls it a peripheral circulation system. It distributes and circulates only the desired amount of heat needed to keep a home comfortable. Preliminary testing indicates the system is economical to install and more effective to operate than most conventional home systems.

Tests show that under normal living conditions, a peripheral system can be put in a one-story house during construction for $100 to $200. It also can go into an existing central-heating system. The system works very well for houses with crawl spaces.

Many problems in conventional forced-air and radiant systems are from insufficient air movement and unequal air distribution. Mr. Newman's system forces all air in the house to move in a definite pattern that eliminates hot and cold spots. Air is first forced across a heat-producing source--a conventional oil, gas, or electric furnace, even a pot-bellied stove or radiant heater--and then throughout the entire house in well-defined flow pattern. Here's how the system basically works:

A blower pulls both warm and cool air from all parts of the house into a central duct near the ceiling. Here, the air is mixed to a uniform temperature and forced through a duct into a low-pressure plenum, or crawl space. Air escapes from the plenum along the baseboards, enters the room, then slowly moves vertically up the walls and horizontally back towards the blower. Highest-velocity air movement occurs near the ceiling, thereby preventing a build-up of stagnant air pockets.

Since the air is distributed at a low velocity, drafts and dust deposits are kept to a minimum. Because warm air enters the room along the baseboards, there are no radiators to hamper furniture arrangements.

Preliminary testing with experimental 1-story houses shows that the system can maintain temperatures within 5 F. degrees throughout the house and within 2 F. degrees in individual rooms. Variations as large as 20 F. degrees between the floor and ceiling of a single room have been observed with some of the more expensive central heating systems.

Mr. Newman says the system can be recommended for use now, particularly for low-cost homes. But more research is needed, he said.
