Our Trip To Frankfort

By BARBARA KINGSLOVER. Wednesday, Feb. 14, the seventh grade went on an educational tour of Frankfort. They left at 9:00 and traveled on three buses to the state capital. Their first stop was the Old Capitol building, where there were Indian artifacts, guns, and other things.

But the students agreed that the best part of the trip was the new Capital. The hand-carved staircase and grand columns were made of Georgian marble and in the rotunda stood a large bronze statue of Lincoln. Some of the other rooms were the reception room, with carpet laid in 1910, and the court of appeals, with mahogany ceiling covered with gold leaf.
