Nicholas One of 20 Counties In Educational Program

Nicholas County is one of the 20 counties participating in a program to encourage the development of imaginative solutions to educational problems.

Through the concentrated effort of superintendents, heads of non-public schools, University of Kentucky staff members, Kentucky Department of Education personnel, and other interested persons, a project was developed under Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act to accelerate educational change in Central Kentucky.

To more effectively utilize funds from Title III (E,S,E,A,), Kentucky was divided into eight regions, Nicholas County being in Region IV-B.

Dr. Sam Sears, director of Region IV-B, says, "Our project was prepared to fill five regional education needs identified in a survey conducted by Spindletop Research Corporation. The areas include; in-service teacher education, diagnostic service in mental health and guidance, instructional materials centers, individualized instruction, and expanded curriculum (academically and vocationally).

The total project includes eight program components, four related to the development of innovative programs and four to in-service education. These components were developed as means of alleviating the identified needs and as a means of facilitating and accelerating educational change in the region.

The Region IV-B project (Title III E,S,E,A,) involves all public and non-public schools in the following counties; Anderson, Bourbon, Boyle, Clark, Fayette, Franklin, Garrard, Harrison, Henry, Jessamine, Marion, Mercer, Montgomery, Nelson, Nicholas, Scott, Shelby, Spencer, Washington and Woodford. Headquarters are 400 Lafayette Parkway, Lexington, Ky. 40503.

National Forest Streams To Get 60,000 Trout

More than 60,000 adult rainbow trout will be stocked in 16 streams on the Daniel Boone National Forest during spring and summer of 1968, according to a joint announcement by Robert L. Collins, Supervisor, Daniel Boone National Forest, Winchester, and Minor Clark, Commissioner, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort.

The trout raised at the National Fish Hatchery, Erwin, Tenn., will be stocked at monthly intervals from March through June. Supervisor Collins stated a single stocking will also take place in September on Rock Creek in McCreary County, and a late stocking in November will be made in 7 of the 16 streams. This late release will include sub-adults as well as 8-10 inch adults.

The first series of monthly fish releases will take place during March on the following streams: Carter Creek in Rowan County; Swift Camp Creek in Wolfe County; Middle Fork, Red River in Powell County; Warfork and Indian Creeks in Jackson County; Cane Creek in Laurel County; Beaver and Rock Creeks in McCreary County; Bark Camp and Dog Slaughter Creeks in Whitley County; and Big Double Creek in Clay County. The November stocking in seven other National Forest Streams will be announced later.

The fish stocking program is a put-and-take project of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the U.S. Forest Service to provide Kentucky fishermen with greater opportunity for trout fishing. "A firm stocking schedule has been set up," said Collins, " to allow fishermen in and out of State, to plan their trips with greater assurance of finding well-stocked streams within reasonable traveling distance."

A map showing location of the National Forest streams is available from the Supervisor, Daniel Boone Boone National Forest, P.O. Box 727, Winchester, Ky. 40391.

LIBRARY AIDES--Nina Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Young and Susan Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Powell Neal give voluntary service to their community through the library aides service. Susan and Nina work an hour a week at the library under the supervision of Miss Mary Lois Campbell. They file cards, books, arrange book displays and assist in library work. The library aide is one of the many voluntary service aides the Senior Girl Scouts participate in each week.

A Look At Home Economics

By Kay Marshall

The vocational home economics program is to help prepare individuals for the responsibilities and activities involved in homemaking.

The vocational home economics program consists of six areas; class instruction, home visitations, home experience, school and community experience, The Future Homemakers of America, and adult and young education.

Nicholas County High School offers four years of homemaking classes to the girls at the high school. The teachers are Mrs. Martha Sue Taylor and Miss Joanne Distler. Seven areas are taught in home economics classes. They are child care, clothing, family relations, foods and nutrition, health, housing, and management. In the child-care unit the girls study the birth of their baby and of the child's development through the first 12 years. In the clothing unit the girls learn the care and construction of clothing. In family relations the girls study how to be a better member. Girls learn the nutritional value of foods and the preparation of foods in the foods unit. In the health unit good health practices and home care of the sick are studied. In housing the principles of furniture arrangement and color schemes are studied. In the management unit girls learn to manage their time, money, and energy and how to use these in the best way.

The Future Homemakers of America is a national organization of girls studying homemaking in high school. Any girl enrolled in home economics classes can join. Membership is voluntary.

Kay. "Watch-In" For The Birds

A lot of unsuspecting but cooperative birds will be the objects of a "watch in" at Carter Caves State Park near Olive Hill, Kentucky, during an Ornithological Weekend, April 26-28. Sponsored by the Division of Museums, Shrines and Interpretation of the Kentucky Department of Parks, the event should coincide with the peak of the spring warbler migration.

A park "first," the weekend has been organized by R.F. Jezerinac, State Naturalist, who expects from 80 to 120 different kinds of birds to attend. The program will include a special workshop Friday evening in the identification of thrushes, vireos and warblers.

It will take a canny bird indeed to escape detection, for leading experts will be conducting bird walks each day of the weekend. Besides Jezerinac, they will include Dr. Norman Tant, Director of Instructional Media and Professor of Education at Morehead State University; Dr. Herbert Shadowen, Professor of Biology at Western Kentucky University; Howard P. Jones, Kentucky Department of Education; and Allie L. White, Professor of Biology at Eastern Kentucky University.

Dr. Tant will demonstrate bird-recording techniques in a special session; and Karl Maslowski, nationally-known naturalist and wildlife photographer will show and comment on the film, "Naturalist Afield."

A registration fee of $3 is required to cover the costs of special equipment and services. Jezerinac suggests that all bird watchers bring binoculars, comfortable hiking boots and wet-weather gear (because field trips will be taken rain or shine).

Reservations for the weekend may be made by contacting Carter Caves State Park, Olive Hill, Ky. 41164, phone (606) 286-4411; or the Central Reservation Information Office at Frankfort, Ky. 40601, phone (502) 223-2326.
