Chickweed In Alfalfa Control Measures Can Be Taken Soon

If you have pure stands of alfalfa,--no grass types in the stand you want to keep--you can take steps now to control the pest chickweed in those stands.

Recommended materials should be applied in the fall after alfalfa becomes dormant (stops growing), says Dr. James Herron, U. K. Cooperative Extension Service weed control specialist.

He notes that using herbicides in mixed stands (alfalfa and grasses) may kill or injure the grasses.

Recommended materials are:

(1) DNBP: One to three quarts an acre in a minimum of 30 gallons of water an acre of the trade-name materials Premerge or Sinox PE. (These are from three-quarters to two and one-quarter pounds actual material an acre.)

(2) CIPC: Three to four quarts of this material (four-pounds per gallon actual material) in the concentrate form, in a minimum of 30 gallons of water an acre, or 15 to 20 pounds an acre of the 20 percent strength granules.

(3) Princep 80W, from one to one and a quarter pounds per acre in a minimum of 30 gallons of water an acre. Princep 80W is the new trade name of the former material Simazine, Dr. Herron noted. It can be used up to Jan. 1.

Telephone Talk

by Your Telephone Manager

CHARLES A. HARRIS

An Extension telephone in color is the perfect gift for a member of the family, a relative or friend. Just call the Paris Business Office, 289-2214 and we will be happy to handle this portion of your Xmas shopping problems. We can install the telephone early or we will be glad to gift wrap it for you.

IN ICELAND, THE TELEPHONE DIRECTORY lists by first name only, because last names change with each generation. For example, Eric Gunnerson is Eric, son of Gunnar; but Peter, Eric's son becomes Peter Ericson. First names count here in America, too. Members of your family won't miss important calls, if you arrange for extra listings in the phone book. They cost about one cent a day. Just call our Business Office.

THE YOUNG BRIDE, planning her first Thanksgiving dinner, wanted to serve several traditional favorites but didn't know how to prepare them. So she made a quick Long Distance phone call—to her mother. She got her recipes, and all the news from home, too.

Your telephone can help you answer lots of questions—and enjoy yourself, too.

Miss Mary Frances Fisher, a charter member of the Order of Eastern Star, was presented a Kentucky Colonel Certificate, signed by Gov. Louie Nunn at the October installation of new officers meeting. Elmer Dampier, chaplain, presented the certificate to her.

Kob Ryen, Animal Science Prof., Once Was Steeplechase Rider

Would you believe an assistant professor of animal sciences at the University of Kentucky once was a steeplechase rider?

Kob Ryen, who heads UK's light horse program, also has two college degrees to supplement his jockey experiences; a BS from the University of Oslo, Norway, and a master's in agriculture from Winter College, also in Oslo.

He came to Lexington from his native Norway in 1949 after reading about the Blue Grass in the "Thoroughbred Record" magazine in the Norwegian Jockey Club's lounge.

Much of Ryen's riding background was as a cavalry officer in the Norwegian Cavalry and with the Swedish Equestrian Schools.

He is a member of the board of directors, U. S. Combined Training Association.

Combined training is a three-day Olympic event and involves teaching both horse and rider dressage, cross-country, and stadium jumping.

Ryen's other activities include; National Examiner for the United States Pony Clubs; a rec-gnized judge for American Horse Shows Association; president of the Mid-South Combined Training Association; member of the Blue Grass Riding Club; member of the Thoroughbred Club of America and the Iroquois Hunt Club. He is a licensed thoroughbred trainer.

The UK professor's enthusiasm for horses and teaching carries over into his home life. He trains and boards horses and teaches riding at his farm, Twin Brook Acres. Racing fans may see his two-year-old, "He's Off." at Keeneland.

"We are looking forward to having an indoor riding hall for classwork and exhibitions at UK," Ryen says. "This University has the best horsemanship program in the United States. We want to introduce students to a breeding program but we need a stud barn and shed. Our program will not be complete until we have all these facilities. Then we can increase our enrollment even more."

Tobacco Stalk Nutrient Can Be Lost In Winter

Tobacco stalks left in the rain this winter take money out of your pocket.

Sixty-one percent of the nitrogen, 38 percent of the phosphorus, 83 percent of the potassium and 41 percent of the organic matter can be lost from stalks exposed to winter rains, says Ira Massie, U. K. Cooperative Extension Service specialist.

"You'll pay hard cash next year for fertilizer to replace these elements in stalks," he says. "Keep stalks under shelter until they are spread on lawns or fields."

Stalks can be spread in the fall or winter months without much loss of nutrients, he says. That is, if spread on fields or lawns, the stalk nutrients go into the ground where they will be used.

If stalks are from mosaic-susceptible varieties, or from fields that were disease-hit this year (black shank, fusarium wilt, black root rot or others), do NOT put them back on plant bed sites or fields where tobacco will be grown next year.

Dairy Industry Conf. Opens Dec. 4

More than 150 persons from the dairy industries of Kentucky are expected at a one-day conference at Lexington Wednesday Dec. 4 at the Continental Inn.

Marketing, "the key to survival for the dairy industry, "is the theme of the meeting. It opens at 8;15 a.m.

Industry officials from several states will speak on new merchandising, retail route renovation, convenience-type stores, dispensing machines, aggressive marketing and other topics.

The U. K. Cooperative Extension Service is one of the co-sponsors. Dr. Bronson Lane, Lexington, dairy specialist, is coordinator for the convention.

Harry Lancaster, acting athletics director of the University, is the luncheon speaker.

Some of the speakers are Dr. E. C. Oesterle Purdue University; Prof. Al Rippen, Michigan State University.

E. J. Austin, Province, R. I., sales official; John Kellum, store buyer; Dallas Tex., E. F. Rickleman, West Lafayette, Ohio, manufacturer; and James F. Williams, Atlanta, Ga., marketing official.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS

I led them with cords of compassion.—(Hos. 11:4).

Even where there is not another person around, we are never alone. We have the presence of God right with us. This does not mean that we do not need other persons in our life, for surely we all do. But when we rise out of feelings of loneliness or dejection, when we feel close to God, held in His warm and loving care, we find that this loving care includes not only God's love but also the love of other persons, for God's love finds expression through people.
