Katherine Peden Will Work For All Of Ky. (Not Part)

Katherine Peden was born in Hopkinsville, Ky., and raised on a farm in Christian County. She, therefore, is in a position to understand the problems of rural areas as opposed to Judge Marlowe Cook who appears to be pulling for Jefferson County's improvement mainly.

This is a natural instinct of Judge Cook's and one for which we cannot fully blame him. However, he is seeking election to represent the entire State of Kentucky in Washington, And, under this circumstance we feel that Miss Peden would more adequately serve Nicholas County and all the other counties of Kentucky. We might feel differently about our choice if we lived in Jefferson County as does Judge Cook. However, we doubt it since we would realize that all of Kentucky's interests are at stake.

Of Rural Development, Miss Peden has said that we must stop the migration of people from small towns and rural areas to our already overcrowded cities, and especially those young Kentuckians who are so badly needed in their home towns. This can only be done by providing job and educational opportunities, health and recreational facilities and by attracting private industry to these areas. On this point, we again reiterate that Jefferson County is doing rather well in these areas, and that the other counties in Kentucky are the ones that need our immediate attention--and those of a newly elected senator.

We cannot here in this small space list all of the ideas and qualifications of Miss Peden. However, we feel that one of her most important points concerns a guaranteed national income. She has said that every American who is able to work, and needs to work, should be guaranteed a job, not a certain amount of free money which comes from those who do work. We, today, have millions of Americans who work full time at jobs and yet make less money than some who will not and do not want to work.

Another excellent point she has made relates to Welfare. She has said that welfare should be a program of assistance to help people help themselves. We must not destroy people by destroying their self-pride, initiative, and human dignity. We should make sure that those who receive welfare are those who truly need it--the aged, handicapped, or those who cannot help themselves. Too often, it has been our observation, that many of those who receive welfare are not those for whom the program was conceived.

Miss Peden was selected by President Johnson in 1967 to serve as the only woman member of his National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders. President Kennedy chose her in 1963 to serve as a member of his Commission on the Status of Women.

If two of our presidents felt she was a well-qualified and intelligent woman, shouldn't we also? Let's elect Katherine Peden on November 5 as the Democratic Senator from Kentucky in the United States Senate. We will be helping ourselves in the long run.

Your Church Needs You

By: H. Dallas Sugg

Sometime ago, many people were saying, "The churches in our community haven't cooperated as they should have." Lately, however, several of the same people have said, "I appreciate how our churches are working together." It is noteworthy that we have the most cooperative and congenial group of ministers that any town could have.

However, the burden of this article has to do with something far greater than cooperation amongst ministers. It is a cooperation that the churches need to have from the community at large, and their members in particular.

It is a popular theme of all people today that fervor that is given to Scouts, Little League and school, then we will see a moral growth in our community. But until adults take the lead by attending church activities and participating in them themselves, we can say little about what our young people are doing.

The burden of this article then is addressed to parents and community leaders. Would you do two things? One, would you refuse to allow your child to participate in those activities which take him away from the church on at least two prescribed days for church activities? Two, would you help as a leader to see that activities planned by the community are planned around the church, activities as much as possible? To state it another way, if the Lord be Lord, then let Him be Lord of all life not just a segment.

Think of all of the unnecessary things that are planned on Wednesday and Sunday evenings and Sunday noons. It goes without saying that these activities are good. But, this is just the point -- we are choosing the good instead of the best.

When the community decides that the church is important enough to have at least two days that really have priority on our Lord's name. When parents, and the community, deem the church's program worthwhile, and will demand attendance at the church's program with equal fervor that is given to Scouts, Little League and school, then we will see a moral growth in our community. But until adults take the lead by attending church activities and participating in them themselves, we can say little about what our young people are doing.

The burden of this article then is addressed to parents and community leaders. Would you do two things? MERCURY VAPOURS

by Joanie Conley

We were excused from last week's Editorial Page makeup since Mr. Fisher did one before he and Mrs. Fisher left for a long overdue vacation to Florida--which we hope they are enjoying to the utmost at this very moment.

However, this week it has fallen our lot to put together the page for the very first time. So please bear with us.

--MV--

We'd like to thank those who have contributed most to getting out two editions of the Mercury in the absence of our two editors, Mrs. Roy Dotson and Mrs. Charles Pope, who along with us, have struggled to put The Mercury together on time; Jock Conley who has taken pictures and assisted whenever necessary; Mrs. Joseph F. Conley who has faithfully tended the children after 4:30 and fed two families oftentimes; and, Mrs. Kenneth Hunt who has dutifully worked overtime to baby sit five days a week instead of three. We also thank the advertisers who gave us copy in advance so that we might get a little ahead of the hounds each week.

A familiar face at the Courthouse died recently--Beulah Hughes' dog, Andy.

Since our knowledge of Physics has waned considerably through the years, we found it interesting the other day when a high school freshman gave us an "imitation of static electricity." We didn't know whether to laugh or applaud. Is it possible?

Agree Or Not,

I Say What I Think

By S. C. Van Curon

Whether the rebellious youngsters of this land realize it or not, this ever-changing country of ours has come a long way in the last half a century. It could be narrowed to the last quarter, or last decade.

Only this week the United Supreme Court ruled on one weighty, and one long question affecting rights of the individual.

The Court told our neighbor state of Ohio to put George C. Wallace's name on the November ballot. In the way of explanation the Court said in an opinion written by Justice Hugo L. Black, "Competition in ideas and governmental policies is at the core of our electoral process and of the First Amendment freedoms."

He blasted Ohio's system by saying, "The fact is, however, that the Ohio system does not merely favor a 'two-party system;' it favors two particular parties--the Republicans and the Democrats, and in effect tends to give them a complete monopoly."

So, Ohio will have freedom of choice, like the other 49 states, among three candidates for the presidency instead of two.

While the above subject may be considered a landmark, or a stride forward that rightfully lies within the province of the Supreme Court, an opinion in the other case broadens the scope of the individual far more than any of us ever dreamed.

While the above subject may be considered a landmark, or a stride forward that rightfully lies within the province of the Supreme Court, an opinion in the other case broadens the scope of the individual far more than any of us ever dreamed.

While the case went against three youngsters in Dallas, the very fact they got their problem before the Supreme Court of the United States is a landmark that must long be remembered.

Justice William O. Douglas posted a strong dissent as a loner to the majority opinion that said three high school youngsters from Dallas did not have a cause worthy of being heard by the highest court of the land. The three wanted the right to wear their Beatle hircuts to school.

"I suppose, the white-haired Douglas said, "that a nation bent on turning out robots might insist that every male have crew cut and every female wear pigtails."

The youngsters ought to take heart today from this progressive movement in society, for such a matter would never have gone past a note from the principal to the parents, or a trip to the woodshed in my salubrious days. If a child had even suggested to his father that he try to take his case to the Supreme Court, his reward would have been a few extra lashes from the razor strap.

The father might even have considered a trip to the family doctor to see if his youngster had some mental illness.

Well, times do change, and circumstances alter social attitudes. On the Oklahoma plains where I was raised, Pawnee Bill (Major Gordon W. Lillie) would have been considered "odd-frocked" if he had appeared in public minus his long silken white hair that reached to his shoulders. Not only was it part of his personality, it was his trademark and badge of honor as a frontiersman.

But there are still some of us around who lived in that period the history books refer to as "the depression," while a boy's hair was never allowed to reach the fleatle stage, there were times when it grew down into the shirt collar. When funds couldn't be put together for a two-bit haircut, father or an obliging neighbor did the best possible with the tools at hand. Granting, some looked like a bowl had been used as a pattern, at least an effort was made to maintain a resemblance to the male species in the mores of the times.

Even the U. S. Army relaxed its regulations in ROTC dress by permitting some of the college lads to wear street shoes to drill, or with the government-supplied regulation uniform for the simple reason money was scarce and there were some who couldn't come up with the necessary four and a half iron men for regulation shoes.

Yep, youngsters, you're making a lot of progress when you get as far as having the U. S. Supreme Court even tell you the long-hair controversy is not a question worthy of its consideration.

LETTERS from our readers

Editor, The Mercury:

I am sure you are well aware of this fact, but I think it bears repeating--there are some very wonderful people in Carlisle and Nicholas County. This has been brought very forcibly to my attention since the death of my husband last month.

The small group who constitute the membership of the church he pastored have permitted me to live on their parsonage, rent-free since he passed away and I feel that was above and beyond the call of duty.

Then last Sunday night at the welcoming service for Rev. Hamilton, our offering was given to me, I thought that was a wonderful thing for the Ministerial Association to do, and special tribute to Wesley that all those people were willing to contribute. He would have been so thrilled if he could know about it.

I expect to leave Carlisle in the very near future, but I'll always remember it truly as "The little town with the big heart."

Sincerely,
Mrs. Wesley Garr

Editor, The Mercury:

I am doing some of my family history. On my daddy's side they are from Kentucky. One of my cousins found an old clipping they thought to be your paper dated 1946. In the 50 years ago today--"Tobias Angel died at his home near Shake Rag." What I'm wondering is if your paper was printing the year he died and if so would you have a more complete record on him such as exact date of death, burial, survivors, ect. We figure the date to be April 10, 1896.

I would appreciate any help you can give. He doesn't have a stone so very little is known about him. His wife was Margaret Angel and his son was my father Trigg E. Angell.

Thanking you for your time,

Sincerely,
Mrs. Don R. Honecutt

Editor, The Mercury:

As a former officer here in Jefferson County, I want to speak up for Senatorial Candidate Katherine Peden in her stand for law and order and the man who wears the badge. We need more like her who resists these dissidents, despite their protests, picketing, and criticisms; and it was only last week that some black militants stoned her car for her strong support of our police, her call for the enforcement of our laws, and her demand that we punish those who break those laws. Judge Cook's her belief that our free society will not tolerate looting, burning, rioting, or any other criminal acts against person or property.

To further convince me that we must elect Miss Peden, all I need do is to look at my home county where her opponent, Judge Cook, is the chief enforcer of the law. It hurts me to realize that our county is higher in crime than the national average and twice as great as any other area of similar size. I find little to be proud of when our area is 15th from the top in this nation's crime and 16th from the top in air pollution, but Judge Cook thinks this makes him a "proven leader." This year alone, dwelling house break-ins are up 486%, robberies up 408%, forcible rape up 120%, and auto thefts rose by 113%. This is the record of a proven leader and it shows he's been unable to cope with the situation. Even Louisville Mayor Schmeid agreed that something must be done and that the National Association of Chiefs of Police's proposal to merge our Police Departments would be best but Judge Cook refused and kept on campaigning. Miss Peden even offered a moratorium on campaigning to allow this but the Judge ignored it, so rape, murder, and robbery remain the order of the day in our County; prostitution is widespread here; and Jefferson County has more federal wagering stamp-holders than any other entire state of Illinois including Chicago; Las Vegas, Nevada; or the entire state of Florida. Just this month, a group of punks walked into a local high school, shouted obscenities and roughed up teachers and students; mobs formed at 41st and Broadway, a car burned and a fireman shot. Our Shawnee and Shelby Park Public Libraries announced they'll close on Saturdays because hoodlums are making it unsafe to stay open. Taxi drivers refuse to run at night in our County; women are afraid to walk our streets; and High School football games are forced to be played in the afternoon because of Cook's refusal to recognize this problem. In fact, our city is gaining publicity to rival that which Cook and his friends gained when they shot little "Bambi," the children's pet deer in a posted game preserve in our County park and then escaped punishment because of his office.

Yes, this man from New York has brought us problems from his old home but yet he critizes Miss Peden's keen insight into this problem which she gained as a member of the National Commission on Civil Disorders. So I ask what Governor Nunn did last year, "If Cook can't solve the problems of his own County, how can he for our 120 counties?" This is why, regardless of our choice for President, we must support Katherine Peden and send her to the Senate to represent all Kentucky.

I, W. Morgan

The Great American Republic we know as the United States was formed to operate on a 2 party system of representation of the people. The 2 recognized parties in this land of the free are the Democrats and the Republicans. There are other STRICTLY parties such as Socialists, Communist, Dixiecrat, and others, but each of them have an "ax to grind." The Socialist and Communist would do away with private business in favor of governmental control of everything and everybody. Some Southerner "Wallacites" would bring a party involving a race question. What we want is a party to represent all of the people. We believe the Democrat Party does represent all of the people.

TO ALL PEOPLE OVER 65--You now receive a Social Security or Old Age Assistance check to help you live a respectable life. You can now go to a hospital or nursing home of your own choice and know that your bill is going to be paid or a major portion of it paid. You know that your sons and daughters are not going to have to take care of you in your old age.

TO ALL LABORING PEOPLE -- Many of you do not remember a great depression. when people had to be fed by the government and when there were no jobs for people. A New Deal under Democrats initiated new labor laws guaranteeing minimum wages and in this year 1968, the laboring man of all the land in the United States enjoys the best living standard in the world.

TO ALL BUSINESS AND AGRICULTURAL PEOPLE -- Thanks to those Democrats who started new programs to help the farmer such as soil conservation; rural electrification; soil banks; controlled crops, the Farmer and the businessman who depend on the farmer now have an income never equalled in the history of our country.

These are but a few of the reasons we advance to support our statement, "Why vote the Democrat Party". We think you will remember all of these things on Nov. 5, 1968.

Yours truly,
Charles M. Cox

Farm & Home

Expectant mothers with a life-time record of poor nutrition jeopardize the health of their unborn infants. An expectant mother should have a good nutritional history from the moment of her own conception and the birth of her own child, in this way she will generally always bore healthy children and also be keeping herself healthy.

There seems to be a proper concern for the nutritional state of new born infants but good nutritional habits should continue and be a concern for the parent or individual as one grows older.

Adolescent girls, for example, need nutritional education probably more than any population group, yet are the hardest to reach with this fact. Generally adolescent girls do not meet their nutritional requirements well and as when they were younger; this being because of fads, crash diets, and the busy life they enjoy running. If the adolescent girls could only see that by eating wisely that they could usually prevent overweight, underweight, poor complexions and the nutrition factor for success would be brighter.

So vital is the importance of good nutrition and adolescent girls--the nation's future mothers--that any practical method should be used to raise their nutritional level. When the adolescent girl does become a young woman expecting a child, her food habits terest in diet is helped by the frequent contact with physicians, whose nutritional advice is usually welcomed.

No discussion of diet improvement in the expectant mother that is complete and attitudes usually change because she wants a healthy baby. This new interest without discussing the dietary habits of the prospective father. Because of strong food prejudices he may often be the chief stumbling block in improving the family diet. Since young children may imitate their father's food habits, his influence on family nutrition may be decisive. The progressive father may be convinced that it is essential for his wife to eat the proper food, and that he himself should eat the same food so as not to unnecessarily increase her work load. Usually if each parent tends to guard the other's diet, both improve their food habits.
