Gen. John Morgan Momentoes Donated To U.K.'s Waveland

A rare revolver, two swords and a bayonet once owned by Gen John Hunt Morgan are among gifts donated to Waveland Museum by J. Winston Coleman Jr., noted Lexington historian and graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Engineering.

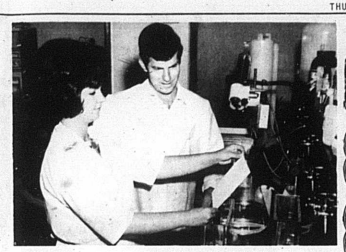
The revolver is an 1851 model dragoon type 50 calibre five-shot double action. On it is a silver plate studded with rubies and bearing the inscription, "Presented by T. K. Hunt ot Capt. J. H. Morgan, 1854." Francis Key Hunt, a wealthy industrialist who once was mayor of Lexington, built the gothic revival mansion, "Loudon." The revolver was acquired by Mr. Coleman many years ago from a nephew of General Morgan who was 85 years old at the time.

The bayonet donated to the University of Kentucky facility on the Higbee Mill Pike is a Zouave (French) type 1861 modea. Several thousand were made during the Civil War by the Ames Manufacturing Company, Chicopee, Mass., for use with the 50 calibre Remington rifled musket.

The brass-hilted straight sword is an 1840 model known as a "non-commissioned officers' sword" and is of type used by the French army and adopted by the U.S. War Department in 1840. It was carried by American Sergeants for more than 70 years--a period embracing the Mexican, Civil and Spanish-American wars. Speculation is that General Morgan may have used the piece as a dress sword when he was captain of the Lexington Rifles prior to the Civil War. There also is the possibility that it was captured from a Union soldier.

In addition to the foregoing donations, it is understood that Mr. Coleman has willed to Waveland a cavalry sabre also owned by General Morgan.

"To receive important items that belonged to General John Hunt Morgan is a turn of good fortune that would be thrilling to the director of any American museum," said Dr. Hambleton Tapp, director of Waveland, the Kentucky Life Museum of the University of Kentucky.



Dr. Carol Keller left, and Don Webb, right, laboratory technician at the University of Kentucky tobacco research laboratory, examine paper used in paper chromatography analysis of Burley tobacco. Keller is studying the major work area of Dr. Keller and associates. (UK COOP EST SER PHOTO)

Another recent museum donor is Mrs. Charles Hayward, Lexington, whose gifts included; two beaded Indian pouches, two beaded pin cushions--one flower-shaped, the other in the shape of a lady's shoe, two veterinarian instruments used by Mrs. Hayward's great, great grandfather, John Davis, hand crocheted lamp chimney cover to keep dust from lamp during daylight, cigar-shaped fan, ivory-handled pen, Chinese letter-opener, funeral invitations; G. T. Long, Georgetown, 1905; Wade H. Hedger, Georgetown, 1903.

A doll apron 100 years old, potato-shaped pin cushion with eyes, tortoise shell-covered notebook, book, "Little Women," Louisa M. Alcott, statue of George Washington make of U. S. green backs, umbrella-shaped silk sewing kit painted flower on velvet, handmade magnigying glass, old dime, extremely worn, soap handmade by a servant of John and Zerelda Davis, Christianburg, Shelby County, in 1817, old newspaper clippings, daguerreotype and hand-painted cardboards.

Mrs. Hayward has presented these items to Waveland; an 1870 china doll, maple ladder-back chairs with slats in shape of a heart, painting-King Ban and Groom, Lewis Todd, by Thomas J. Scott, Lexington.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q-I was just divorced from my husband and am going back to work under my maiden name. Will I have to get a new social security number for tax purposes?

A-No, continue to use your present number and notify the Social Security Administration of the change in your name. This will facilitate crediting payments to your account.

A number of refunds were delayed in processing this year because taxpayers did not let Social Security know their name changed. Whether the change stems from marriage, divorce, adoption or other reasons, taxpayers should make sure the change is noted in their social security account.

Q-The exemption I claimed for my uncle is being disallowed. Can I talk to anyone else about this besides the agent who examined my return?

A-Notify the examining agent that you do not agree with his disallowance of the exemption you claimed and request that a district conference be arranged. At this conference, your side of the story as well as the agent's will be reviewed on the basis of the facts and law involved.

If the tax in question in any one year is $2,500 or less, no formal or written protest is needed to obtain such a conference. The people who handle these conferences are specially trained and are not attached to the units responsible for examining returns. This helps assure an impartial review.

Q-I took some swimming lessons so that I could pass the Red Cross lifesaving test. Can I deduct this cost from the money I make as a lifeguard?

A-If you had to pass the lifesaving test to qualify for your job as a lifeguard, then the cost of the swimming lessons will not be deductible. Any educational expense, whether it be swimming lessons or college tuition, that helps you qualify for a new job is not deductable.

Q-I inherited some property last year which I now plan to sell. How can I tell whether I'll have any profit to report?

A-If you sell the property for more than its fair market value was at the time of the decedent's death, then you may have a profit to report. Don't forget, however, that you may deduct expenses you have in connection with the sale to determine whether you have a gain or loss.

The treatment of gains and losses from the sale or exchange of both business and non-business property is covered in IRS Document No. 5048, Sales and Exchanges of Assets. For a free copy send a post card to your district director.

Late Weeding Necessity

Don't give up on summer weeding. Weeds that are allowed to seed this summer in your flower border are a source of infection for years to come.

Two good examples of weeds that often seed in late summer after the gardener gives up are (1) purslane, a flat, green-violet, thick-leaved plant with small, inconspicuous yellow flowers and (2) crabgrass, which has a flower head that looks somewhat like an inverted turkey foot. Pull these weeds before they flower.

Purslane is particularly bothersome as it grows extremely fast in hot weather, and may seed before the home gardener knows it.

Don't expect purslane to wilt and die immediately after pulling.

It has a habit of re-rooting. Your best bet is to collect the weeds in containers and put them out with the trash.

Crabgrass usually appears earlier than purslane. Conspicuous yellow-green grass-like plants in early June are typical of this bothersome annual weed. Crabgrass germination usually begins about the time lilacs are in bloom, and may continue late into the summer as all is reweeded.

Weed the flower border every two or three weeks to eliminate the chance of weeds going to seed. Herbicides are available which will kill germinating seeds of these two weeds. Unfortunately the same herbicides also destroy flower seeds. In the long run, a hand weeding program may be the best insurance of a weed free border in years to come.

Per Capita Food Consumption Up

Americans last year ate more per person--and upped personal calorie and nutrient intake.

The U.K. Cooperative Extension Service, noting a report from the U.S. Deaprtment of Agriculture, says food consumption amounted to about 1,434 pounds per person on a retail weight-equivalent basis. This was about 12 pounds a person higher that the 1966 level.

The report said more beef, pork, poultry, eggs, citrus fruit, potatoes and fresh vegetables were eaten. Lower consumption was reported in dairy products, veal, lamb, deciduous fruits and melons. Prediction for 1968 is that consumption for all these items, except chicken, will continue at about the same levels or possibly lower this year.

The increase in 1967 caused an increase in number of calories per person. Total calorie intake (food energy) per person averaged about 3,180 per day for 1967. This was up slightly from 1966. Nutrient intake increased, too, about three percent for Vitamin A, and five percent for Vitamin C.

VA Questions

Q--Is a veteran penalized if he pays off a G.I. home mortgage loan before it is due?

A--No. A G.I. loan may be prepaid without penalty at any time. Prepayments may be made in the amount of the monthly installment or $100 whichever is lesser, or in any larger amount.

Q---I recently married. Are there any forms for the changing of the beneficiaries of my VA insurance?

A-- Yes. You may obtain these forms from any VA office. When completed, the forms should be forwarded to the Insurance Center controlling your insurance policy.

Q---I am in school and I am told that in order to receive payment, I must submit a Certificate of Attendance to my school. Where can I obtain this certificate?

A---The VA will mail you one with the first check that you receive. If this is not done, you can secure one from the nearest VA office.

Q-I am a World War-II veteran with a 20-year G.I. insurance endowment policy that will mature in a few months. Do I have to take the face value of the policy or can I convert this to another type of insurance?

A-You may exchange it for a policy of lesser cash value if you present evidence of good health. However, this must be done before the policy matures.

Q-I was recently separated from service. During service I was treated for a condition that now has flared up again. Can I get treatment from VA?

A-In all prbability you can. You should apply to the Veterans Administration for an examination and determination that your condition is service-connected. Once this has been accomplished, you should have no trouble getting treatment from VA.

Q-I am a veteran with a service-connected condition, recognized by VA as 60 per cent disabling. Does this degree of disability entitle my children to any type of educational assistance?

A-No. Only children whose parent is rated by VA as 100 per cent service-connected disabled and who is permanently disabled is entitled to such benefits--and children of veterans who died in service or from service-connected causes--are eligible for War Orphans Educational Assistance benefits.

Q--My sister is married to a World War I veteran who draws 100 per cent service-connected disability compensation. As his health is extremely bad and he is in his 70's, I am concerned about her financial welfare in the event of his death. Will she be entitled to any benefits as the widow of a disabled veteran?

A--Possibly. If a veteran dies as a result of a service-connected disability, his widow is eligible for death compensation. This amounts to $120 monthly, plus 12 per cent of the monthly basic pay now being received by a serviceman whose rank and years of service are the same as those of the deceased veteran.

If the veteran's death is not the result of a service connected disability, the widow may be eligible for a pension from the Veterans Administration. Detailed information may be obtained from the VA regional office where her husband's veteran records are kept.

Q--I am a war veteran but have never asked for any benefits from the Veterans Administration. Can I get a free medical examination?

A--Medical examinations are made by VA only in connection with an application for some sort of benefit, such as hospitalization, or to determine if a condition is service-connected. The VA is not permitted to give a veteran a free examination for some private purpose of his own.

Q--May I use my G.I. loan to buy a house strictly for investment purposes?

A--No. The law says that to obtain a G.I. home loan a veteran must certify that he intends to occupy the property personally as his home. If the G.I. loan is for improvements, he must certify that he is the owner and occupant of the home.
