SALTWELL

By Mrs. Fred Holiar

Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Sage, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Snapp, Mrs. and Mr. Charles Dean and Robert Cooney attended the Kentucky Baptists picnic and training Union service across the state Sept. 25. The local group met in Winchester, Sept. 23, designated as a Leadership Conference for those working and leading in the church's training program. Sessions were held twice daily.

Conferences were led by Southern Baptist denominational and state leaders from Tennessee, Indiana, Alabama, Georgia and Kentucky.

Conferences were held each day morning on how to reach New Church members and how to use training materials in the Sunday night new church church. Every age group from birth through adulthood was emphasized.

Two sessions were held daily. The afternoon session met from 4:00 to 5:15 p.m., and the evening session from 6:45 to 9:00 p.m. Hosts in these area conferences were Clear Creek Baptist School, Pineville, September 25; Central Baptist Church, Winchester, September 26; First Baptist Church, Florence, September 23; Melbourne Helpline Baptist Church, Louisville, September 24.

For towns and cities and for public educational institutions in financing capital improvements, Thomas J. Dwyer, son of the founder and board chairman of the company, has been in Lexington for the last five years. Before coming to Lexington in 1958, Dwyer was editor of the Pineville Sun for 30 years and served as president of the Kentucky Press Association in 1930.

Year-Round Recreation Program At Six Kentucky State Resort Parks

Most people regard Labor Day as the end of the summer season. But for six of Kentucky's state parks it marks the beginning of a year-round program.

At Mammoth Cave National Park, a 12-acre resort park will remain open after the others close in mid-November. For them, something will be going every minute, throughout the year.

One day this fall and winter, a state park may program a sing-along, a nature hike, card party or a slide talk by a professionally trained specialist. Square dances and bridge tournaments know no season, so there will be plenty of both in the all-season program. There is a recreation leader at each of the six parks to offer ideas to suit the weather or the whim. Nature trails take on a new face as the seasons change, and autumn's manifold colors will suggest a scenic motorcycle for photo fans and those who simply want to go for the ride and the view. You can golf on the highest nine-hole course at Jenny Wiley State Park any time of the year. Swimming pools at Lake Meade and Kentucky Lake Village will have heated water and wind screens. The year-round programs at Cumberland Falls and Natural Bridge will include "All Color Kidding" for the young and "Time It Right" for those who want to time it just right to be there when the leaves turn.

Kentucky Dam Village and Lake Cumberland, whose lakes have always lured fishermen and boaters, will be among the all-year parks. The parks already mentioned, plus General Butler and Harlowton, will feature special activities for the year-end fall and winter holidays.

This is the first time that any state park system in the U.S. has established a year-round recreation program under the supervision of recreation specialists.

Five college-trained recreation leaders have been assigned a follow-up to the fall activities of a year-round program. A graduate of Western Kentucky University, a graduate of Murray State University, a graduate of Campbellsville College, of Lake Cumberland State Park, Jamestown, Kentucky, of Hazard and Lexington, a graduate of Eastern Kentucky University, at Jenny Wiley State Park, Potosi, Mo.

Kentuckian Elected To Top Association Executive Post

S. Rayburn Watkins, executive vice president of Associated Industries of Kentucky, has been elected national president of this professional society, the American Society of Association Executives.

The announcement was made following a week of the month-long at the society's annual international convention held in Atlanta, Ga.

As president, Watkins will be in Kentucky directing the affairs of a membership of approximately 200 holders of the CAE designation, a professional badge of merit for Chartered Association Executives who have met certain standards. He previously won the ASA's top management achievement award for state associations.

He is a graduate of Murray State University and the University of Illinois. Prior to entering association work he published the Tribune-Democrat, a prize winning weekly newspaper in Denton, Kentucky.
