Cyn. Goodyear Wins Slo-Pitch Tourney

Cynthiana Goodyear captured the first annual Carlisle Slo-pitch tournament with a 14-3 decision over Nicholasville. Goodyear who was undefeated in the double-elimination event scored seven runs in the first two innings to assure the victory.

Three of Nicholasville's 5 runs came on Len Goss's 3 run homer in the 6th inning. Goss was the only man in the seventeen team tourney to hit a home run over the fence and he performed the feat twice.

The tourney was considered a success and everyone is looking forward to next years event.

It's Molasses Makin' Time!

FRANKFORT--

At one time in Eastern Kentucky when a furl of woodsmoke was seen drifting skyward, the "revenooers" would take note; but now at just about frosttime this smoke raveling through the hills like a skein of blue-gray yarn means it's time for one of the sweetest jobs on earth. It's molasses makin' time!

Cane mills are not as frequent as they once were, for the veterans of the art are not around anymore and their places have found more lucrative jobs., but should you be making an early autumn trip to the hills to view the scenery and those magnificent scarlet, gold-and russet leaves, take time out to visit a cane mill. Chances are you will be given a short length of green cane stalk and told to "help yourself."

Helping yourself means dipping the piece of cane into the far end of the pan, where the sweet sorghum is thickening-ripe, letting it cool a moment, then tasting the golden sweetness that carries a tang of wildness not found in most commercial mollasses.

The process as practiced along the sidehills through the hills today has not changed greatly.

A fire is built beneath the evaporator pan--and oldtimers claim green wood cut from a creek bank makes the best heat--and as the green juice enters the pan to be cooked, it is pushed along the various channels. The person making the molasses uses a "pusher" much like a small hoe to guide the juice into the next channel as it ripens. It is when the juice reaches the last channel of the evaporator-pan that it is just right for tasting or pouring off into buckets or other containers.

One of the most arduous tasks connected with making molasses is feeding the green cane into a juice-extraction mill. There are always more volunteers from the ranks of young boys than there are jobs, however. Traditionally, the mill is powered by a mule or horse.

Sorghum molasses was used widely in the early days of this country as a "sweetening" when sugar was not available or when the price of this refinement was prohibitive.

One of the tastiest treats resulting from molasses is molasses cookies. Mrs. Earl (Amy) Price of West Liberty has shared her recipe with many other cooks, and offers it here for anyone who would like to enjoy this wholesome goodie.

3 1/2 cups sifted enriched flour
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda (scant)
2 teaspoons ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
1 egg
1 cup molasses (Eastern Ky.)
1/3 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon vinegar

Sift together flour, sugar, soda, ginger, cinnamon and salt. Add shortening, egg, molasses, water and vinegar, mixing to blend, "Since the batter is quite thick I mix by hand," says Mrs. Price, "then drop by table spoonfuls into greased baking sheets." Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 10 to 12 minutes or until slight imprint is left when lightly touched. Makes about 30 cookies and says Mrs. Price, "If you can keep them any length of time, they get even better."

Katherine Peden Charges Cook Limits Interests

Katherine Peden, Kentucky's Democratic nominee for U. S. Senate, today charged that her Republican opponent "is anxious to grab federal funds for a sewerage treatment plant in Jefferson County--but does not want thousands of Kentucky rural residents to have running water."

Miss Peden was refering to Wednesday's announcement of a $825,600 federal grant for a sewerage treatment plant near the new Ford plant in Jefferson County.

"How strange it is that my opponent for the U. S. Senate is so anxious to grab federal funds for this county's plant, but does not want water districts in the other 119 Kentucky counties to attract new industry, just as the treatment plant was essential to bringing Ford's $100-million plant to Jefferson County," she said.

Jefferson County Judge Marlow Cook last week attacked as "the last thing we need" the Democratic candidate's proposal for establishment of rural water districts in Kentucky.

Miss Peden had advanced the plan at a convention of Kentucky RECC delegates. She said the proposal could be put into action through a partnership of public and private sectors.

"Certainly no one had a more important role in bringing Ford's new plant to Kentucky than the Kentucky Department of Commerce," Miss Peden said today. "We knew a partnership between the public and private sectors was essential. We had to secure a federal grant as well as Ford and local money."

The former state commerce commissioner challenged Cook "to stand and admit he doesn't know the needs of all 120 counties in Kentucky--that his experience and interest are limited to his own area.

"I know we need federal funds for the sewerage treatment plant to serve the Ford plant in Jefferson County," Miss Peden said, "just as we need federal help for decent living and industrial development in the other 119 counties of Kentucky."

There is no joy in the land of our competitors today.
But let us woo you this.
Should we have made Caprice shorter instead of the longest Chevrolet ever built? Or adorned it with flashy trinkets to make it look less expensive?
Just because competition doesn't, should we not have offered you washers to clean your headlights, new variable-ratio power steering, liquid tire chain you can apply to your rear wheels at the touch of a button?
Should we have given you less power, instead of the largest standard V8 in its field?
Some people think so.

SIERRA CLUB

By Bobby Kingsolver

On Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 14 and 15, the Kentucky Chapter of the Sierra Club met in Carlisle and traveled down 21 miles of the Licking River by canoe. The party, consisting of 19 people and two dogs, put in at Upper Blue Licks and took out at Elk Creek just above Blue Licks State Park.

The seven canoes and one kayak full of people were led by Dr. King-

The trip was enjoyed throughly. Better weather couldn't have been asked for, especially at this time of year. Everyone enjoyed the September beauty of the river. The maple, hickory, and willow trees had just begun to change into their bright fall colors. The wildlife seemed to jump at the chance to display itself at every bend. Ferns sprouted from both banks, casting green reflections in the water. The canoeists became acquainted with stately herons, kingfishers, noisy bluejays, a red-headed woodpecker, and scores of wild ducks. Butterflies, moths, and dragonflies were everywhere.

The party camped overnight on a small island partially covered with small sycamores and willows. The river, gurgling by on either side of the island, was lower than usual exposing rocky flats where the weary paddlers ate and rested.

The party broke camp early the following morning. The eight light crafts covered 11 more miles of river and the group saw as many new delights the second day. All in all, the trip was agreed to be quite successful.

The Sierra Club is a national organization founded to protect and conserve our forests, rivers, mountains, and other natural surroundings. The Licking is of prime interest to the club because it is one of the few rivers in America still left in a natural state. It is hoped that the Licking can be preserved so that future generations can enjoy it as much as we do today.

Since 1950 the number of music camps have almost tripled, and children as young as eight years are often enrolled. By no means, however, do they all expect or want to become professionals. One of the world's largest camps claims that only five per cent of their alumni have pursued musical careers, the rest being doctors, lawyers, teachers, housewives, who learned to appreciate and enjoy a lifetime of music there. ## Fall District F.H.A. Meeting

By Carolyn Tolson

The Nicholas County Chapter of the Future Homemakers was among the approximately 25 chapters represented at the fall meeting of the Lexington FHA District held Saturday, Sept. 21, at Nicholas County High School. Themed to "Recipes for FHA Leaders," nine o'clock registration was followed by "get-acquainted" games and the opening rituals. District song leader, Donna Harding, led the group singing and the Deming Chapter used "Recipe for Love" as the thought for the day.

The district president, Paula Stone, made the proper introductions and extended greetings. District FHA officers then offered hints for "Shopping for the Responsibility Ingredient."

During the officer group meetings each district officer, served as Chairman of her group, pointing out the responsibilities of that particular office, and giving helpful hints.

The afternoon program accented the basic theme with such skits as "Menus from National," "What's Cooking in National Projects in Ky.," and "Improving Texture of FHA Leadership Cake."

Officers attending from the Nicholas County Chapter were Donna Waugh, president; Alice Tapp and Carolyn White, vice presidents; Peggy Tincher, secretary; Sylvia Garrett, treasurer; Pat Snapp, parliamentarian; Kay Hughes and Karlyn Coatney, historians; Carolyn Tolson, reporter; Phyllis Atkinson, song leader; Sandy Story, recreation leader; Entertainment chairman, June Small; and Elaine Schanding devotion chairman.

Jr. Woman's Club To Meet Tonight

The Carlisle Junior Woman's Club will hold its first regular meeting Thursday, Sept. 26, 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Robert McFarland, Cohostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. R. S. Wills Jr. and Mrs. David Zachary.

The program will be given by Cal Vollmer, Louisville. Mr. Vollmer is a representative for the Kentucky Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation. And will speak on the various areas of research of the Arthritis Foundation.
