SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing, Executive Vice President Southern States Industrial Council

THE PUBLIC TEMPER

While the candidates for the Presidency have many weeks of campaigning ahead of them, it is increasingly clear that the public's frame of mind, which will decide the election already is set. From one coast to another, and from the big cities to quiet rural areas, the broad outline of public opinion is discernible.

To be sure, there are the pockets of hard core radicalism. There is the feverish action of the diehard McCarthyite supporters trying to create a neo-called New Party as a vehicle for their leftwing extremism. There are the entrenched eggheads of the Left who have a haughty attitude towards the thinking of the man in the street. And there are the political bosses who hope that their precinct machines can herd disciplined masses to the polls and make them continue the "liberal" status quo.

But the signs of the time are that the public already has spoken in a quiet way--that the wants of the great majority of voters have been charted. Obviously, this majority hasn't made up its mind in detail as to various proposals advanced by the candidates. That's not the way public opinion works. But the broad outline--the pattern--exists.

First of all, there is a clear enough majority attitude with respect to the war in Vietnam. There is great unhappiness about the American deaths in that conflict and about the continuing cost of the struggle. There is a feeling that the political conduct of the war has been a mess. But there also is a strong feeling among the American people that a pull-out is unthinkable, that defeat in Vietnam is intolerable and the United States cannot abandon Southeast Asia to communism under the guise of "negotiations."

The public attitude towards law and order certainly is very clearly formed. The Democrats' disastrous convention, in which hordes of "yippies" conducted a vast propaganda operation in downtown Chicago with the eager cooperation of television reporters and cameramen, solidified the public mood on law and order.

There seems to be the widest agreement among millions of Americans that anarchism has to be curbed and that small groups of so-called "alienated" citizens cannot be permitted to disrupt cities with their obscene shouts and their total contempt for the decencies of society.

For the short run, the televised "yippie" demonstrations in Chicago, which provoked police action, produced a harvest of sympathetic comment from the professional bleeding hearts in America. But the principal indication is that in the long run the radicals will lose, for the sympathies of the majority of citizens are with the harassed and abused Chicago policemen who defend the public order.

Finally, public opinion has hardened on the subject of inflation. The average American--perhaps it is better to call him the "forgotten American"--is aware of and angry about the spread of inflation. The average working man and his wife may not be familiar with the latest economic theories, but they can understand the decline in value of the weekly pay check. They get the connection between the wasteful federal programs, which lavish aid on the indolent, and the decline in value of their income.

Millions of Americans now have a clear understanding that federal waste is depriving them of things that they deserve by virtue of their hard work. They also get the connection with the Great Society, and apparently realize that four more years of "liberal" government will further erode the prosperity of white collar and blue collar Americans.

Gauging the public temper usually is a very difficult task, and observers are foolish if they try to pinpoint the specifics in the public's attitude. But the general mood of the American people can be discerned.

In 1952, the people obviously were sick and tired of the long, bitter years of the New Deal and the Fair Deal. They had enough, and they voted for conservative change. This year the same temper is being manifested in a variety of ways. Only this time the radicals are much more threatening than in 1952. The people who hate the American way of life are out in the open--in the streets chanting obscenities at policemen and resorting to other direct action revolutionary methods as well.

Good citizens can get a very clear idea of the road ahead of the policies of "liberalism" are continued for the next four years, especially the policy of appeasement of domestic anarchists. It is reasonable to conclude that this year the majority of Americans will decisively react to the anarchist threat when they go to the polls.

Mrs. Ollie A. Mobley Named Ky. Mother

Mrs. Ollie A. Mobley was named Outstanding Kentucky Mother of the Year at the Annual Meeting of the O'Tucks, held in Hamilton, Ohio, this past weekend.

The presentation ceremony at the fairgrounds revealed that Mrs. Mobley, the mother of nine, had waited anxiously at home while her husband and six sons had gone away to war. Elmer, the husband, Elmer Jr. (deceased) Imon, Russ, Wendell, John and Joe all volunteered for Military Service beginning with Elmer in 1943 and ending with Joe on August 31, 1968 upon his arrival home from Viet Nam. "There has never been a draftee in the entire family", Imon said, Mrs. Mobley counted 28 collective years of service by her husband and sons spanning three wars. This represents 18 continuous years in which at least one son was overseas.

Her husband volunteered in 1943, leaving Mrs. Mobley and nine children behind. Imon, the eldest surviving son commented: "There is still some argument in the family as to whether dad might not have gone off to war to get some peace and rest".

Elmer Jr., now deceased served in Korea in 1952. Imon, a teacher at Lebanon Correctional Institution at Lebanon, Ohio, served four years stateside.

Russ of Lexington, Kentucky, Republican candidate for Congress from the 6th Congressional District, served in New Foundland and Greenland.

John, who lives in Dry Ridge, Kentucky, served in Korea.

Wendell, also of Lexington, a University of Kentucky student, served in the Azores and Phillipines.

Joe, the youngest returned from Viet Nam only two weeks ago.

Mrs. Mobley received the award before hundreds of Kentuckians and Ex-Kentuckians at the 10th Annual O'Tucks Meeting held yearly at the Butler County Fairgrounds.

The O'Tucks Organization was originated to allow Ex-Kentuckians to meet and renew friendships on an annual basis.

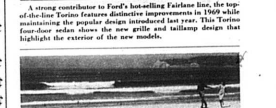
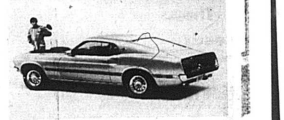
A strong contributor to Ford's hot-selling Fairlane line, the top-of-the-line Torino features distinctive improvements in 1969 while maintaining the popular design introduced last year. This Torino four-door sedan shows the new grille and taillamp design that highlight the exterior of the new models.

Outstanding economy and durability and distinctive, clean design are still the hoast of Ford's Falcon in 1969. Besides refinements in styling and ornamentation, the new Falcons, like the Falcon Sports Coupe above, are available with an optional 220-horsepower, 302-cubic-inch engine for a power house.



Ford's 1969 XL two-door SportsRoof model displays all-new design including ventless side glass for cleaner lines and better visibility. An increase in the windshield's rearward slant adds to XL's new swept back appearance. A grille-like applique over the rear bumper as well as a tunneled backlite (below) are two new features for 1969.

Cobra is Ford's hot new performance-oriented addition to the Fairlane line for 1969. Whether roaring through a turn at Ford's Dearborn test track (above) or taking a spectacular mile straightaway, Cobra is made for competition handling and power. Available in fastback SportsRoof (above and below) and hardtop design, Cobra models are equipped with a standard 428-cubic-inch V-8. The 428 Cobra Jet Ram-Air engine also is available.



Ford's hot new Mustang model, the Mach 1, is a performance-oriented car from the word go. Available with a 335-horsepower 428 Cobra Jet Ram-Air engine, the Mach 1 features GT handling suspension, racing-type exposed hood locking pins, color-keyed dual racing mirrors, special ornamentation and striping, high-back bucket seats, and simulated teakwood grained accents on the floor console, instrument panel and door panels.

The "Flight-Cockpit" instrument panel in 1969 Fords is a totally new concept in automotive interior design. All instruments and controls are tightly grouped in a padded cluster in front of the driver. A top feature of this XL and other Fords, the panel provides maximum safety and convenience.
