Telephone Talk
by Your Telephone Manager
CHARLES A. HARRIS

A lot of people don't know it, but when the telephone was first invented, there were no phone numbers and no directories. Telephone numbers came into being during a severe fire epidemic in a New England town. The local doctor had memorized the names of the town's 200 phone subscribers, but what would substitute do? So the doctor proposed using numbers, to make it easier to place calls in case of such an emergency. The idea spread. Pretty soon everybody in the U.S. who had a phone also had a phone number. And, before long, it was all fairly easy, for a while, for people to remember most of the numbers they called often. And phone service in an area was usually handled by a central operator, who kept a lot of information in her head. But today, with millions of subscribers everywhere, it's become a little more complicated. Your telephone directory gets fatter -- and more necessary -- by the year. Which means it has to be designed so you can use it easily and efficiently. Emergency numbers up front, so you can find them fast. Area code numbers in a special section. And all phone numbers listed in alphabetical order. Using the directory is a fast, easy way to find a phone number. To make it even faster, we suggest you try understanding the numbers you call most often. Or, better yet, write them down in your own personal directory. But, no matter how you use your telephone directory -- use it! You'll discover it's one of the biggest time-savers around!

WORTH TALKING ABOUT

"We face, in this nation the broadest social military of an economic system of profits upon private enterprise and public liberty and which has made available to the masses the comforts, conveniences and cultural advantages that once were the privilege of the few. There is no comparable record in history where so many have faced so well."

Herbert J. Prechaw President, The First National Bank of Chicago

Mr. Marvin Watson, postmaster general of the United States is scheduled to give the main address.

The commemorative stamp is being issued in the city where the famous frontiersman is buried on the anniversary of his death in Missouri. It is the latest stamp in the American Postage series and the only one in this series which will be issued this year.

Louis Macoullaire, of San Francisco, designed the non-portrait stamp. On it are depicted the tools of Boone's trade -- a Kentucky rifle, a powder horn, a knife, and a tomahawk -- hanging against a wall of roughly hewn boards. A faint color theme of the stamp is yellow, applied in two shades, with a blending of red in product light brown. The denomination is in black.

Music for the dedication Sept. 25 will be provided by the Frankfort High School Band and the Frankfort Community Choir. Kentucky's Corps of Longtillers will serve as honor guard.

Fredrick will be the Vice, Jr., president of the Frankfort-Franklin County Chamber of Commerce.

The invitation will be given by the Rt. Rev. Abner Joseph, D.D., Bishop of Good Shepherd Catholic Church, Frankfort. The benediction will be said by the Rev. John Hunt, pastor of the South Frankfort Presbyterian Church.

In 1769, two hundred years ago next year, Daniel Boone, with five companions, first passed through Cumberland Gap into Kentucky.

Boone, with others, pioneered the exploration and settlement of Kentucky. Through the years Daniel Boone has achieved heroic stature and has become a legend in an American legend.

In 1790 Boone left Kentucky because it became "too crowded." He moved to Missouri where he died Sept. 26, 1820. Remains of Boone and his wife, Rebecca, were reinterred in Frankfort Cemetery in 1845.

Peden Addresses

Medical Association

LOUISVILLE--Generalist candidate Katherine Peden renewed her Vietnam stance Monday night, landing on it what she termed the "verboise bravery" of her opponent Marvin Cook.

The Democratic nominee, asserting that "every step" must be taken to end the war, called for "a united front by all of the American people in full support of the peace negotiations in Paris" as the most promising hope for peace.

She said that withdrawal of moral support for American forces "would be like sending a boy to battle without a rifle or without ammunition for the protection of his life."

"The most ridiculous statement concerning the peace effort made to me last week was the accusation that the distinguished Ambassador Harriman wants the peace talks to go on and on so that breaking the talks will be a disaster," Peden said.

"Perhaps the judge thinks that the distinguished representative of the greatest nation on earth, on the most important mission that this country could send anyone at the current time, should carry a pig and sleeping bag and do his work in a street car. Such irresponsible lameness is just what we don't need at this crucial time."

Miss Peden made the remarks in an address to KEMFAC, during this week's convention of the Kentucky Medical Association.

In 1967 barley production, Henry County led the list of counties with high yields-per-acre averages with 3,122 pounds-an-acre, and Woodford County was second with 2,985 pounds-per-acre.

Phone Company Promotes Dickson

A native of North Middletown, Stanley S. Dickson Jr., has been promoted by South Central Bell Telephone Company to head the firm's personnel department headquartered in Louisville, according to an announcement released today by Charles Harris, the utility's Paris manager.

In his new assignment as general personnel manager, Mr. Dickson will be responsible for administering the company's personnel policies and practices for the state of Kentucky.

At the time of his appointment, he was the firm's general public relations manager with offices in Louisville, Mr. Dickson was succeeded in his former position by Frank H. Loudermilk, the telephone company's Louisville division marketing manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dickson, widely known, long time residents of Bourbon County, Stanley Jr., received his primary and high school education in North Middletown, where he graduated from high school in 1947, he entered the University of Kentucky, Lexington, from which he was graduated with a Bachelor of Science Degree in 1953. Shortly thereafter he entered the United States Army Signal Corps in which he served for two years in Germany. In October 1955, after being discharged from the army, he began his career with the telephone company in Frankfort as a traffic supervisor.

He subsequently filled assignments in Winchester, Pikeville, Atlanta, Georgia; Danville, Louisville and Raleigh, North Carolina, before returning to Louisville in February 1967 as general directory manager.

Active in community affairs throughout his career with the telephone company, he is currently a member of the Advertising Club of Louisville, the Kentucky Historical Society, the English-Speaking Union, the Public Relations Society of America, and the Louisville Fiedelme Club.

Mr. Dickson is married to the former Roberta Moberley of Mt. Sterling. They have two children, Bill and Mary Louise.
