Governor Nunn Proclaims 1969 Daniel Boone Bicentennial Year

Governor Louis B. Nunn has proclaimed 1969 as the Daniel Boone Bicentennial Year in Kentucky. Nunn announced the bicentennial year in a special message to the General Assembly, which was held in the state capitol building in Frankfort, Ky., on Tuesday.

The theme of "Re-discover Kentucky" will be used in Kentucky travel promotion both locally and nationally during the coming year. Travelers across the nation will be invited to retrace the footsteps of that early traveler and trailmaker. The hope was also expressed that the many festivals and annual events around the state would help the "Re-discover Kentucky" slogan, thus uniting efforts to popularize the New Campaign.

Re-discovery of the state parks and state parks areas is another major objective of the bicentennial year. In keeping with the bicentennial theme, numerous state parks and state parks areas developed during the past 100 years will be developed by the state as scenic and historic landmarks.

Recreation is another major objective of the bicentennial year. The state will develop a network of trails and campsites in the state parks and state parks areas. The state will also develop a network of trails and campsites in the state parks and state parks areas.

Modern...Slat Floor...Low Cost
WE HAVE BUILDING PLANS!
New, Portable Purina Pig Parlor

Now you can build a modern slat floor, Purina Pig Parlor that can easily be moved like a portable feeder. And it costs only about $15.00 per pig... or about $750 for a 50-size unit. It's great!
It consists of two, 10' x 24' sections. It's partly covered with aluminum and insulated with styrofoam. The feeding floor can be subdivided for two age groups of hogs.

The new portable Purina Pig Parlor provides for easy manure disposal. Waste falls through the slat floor and after hogs go to market the Pig Parlor can be moved and manure scattered. It can even be transported from farm to farm.

See us about building a portable Purina Pig Parlor on your farm. We have the building plans. And we also have the Purina Hog Chow to help you put low cost gains on your hogs. Stop by to see us soon.
