The other method, called scribbling, is used for all statewide maps. This process was developed by the U. S. Geological Survey and was begun here in 1965.
A yellow emulsion on dupont nylon is etched away with special tools. When the plates are finished, they are photographed.
Fence-cable plates are made by drawing up a plate for each of the colors to be used, laying them one upon the other, and then photographing them as a unit.
These duponts are, in the case of statewide maps, sent to the United States Bureau of Highway Roads for approval. Once approved, copies are printed and...
