ASCS Says Farmer Must Keep In Touch

Responsibility often rests with the farmer to notify his county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service county office of changes in his farm plans and operations. This reminder came today from Chairman Wagner of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

"The county ASCS office needs to know, for instance, if your allotment crop is destroyed by weather and you plan to plant a different crop, if your practice under the Agricultural Conservation Program will be delayed because of wet weather, if you have sold your allotment or if you have purchased additional allotment," Wagner said.

"Of course, visitors to the ASCS office are always welcome," he said, "but only as we find it easier to keep the records straight for the farmer who comes in, but we also keep ourselves free for information about the entire agricultural picture."

BOYS' LONG HAIR CAN AFFECT SKIN

The concern over long hair for boys has led to the question that it can be a major cause of problem skin.

Psychologists say that between the ages of 11 and 16 a boy becomes hyper-sensitive, hyper-critical, and hyper-self-conscious—it's called the hyper-phase — and long hair is just one of the many hyper-phase fads and actions he may try in order to find what is "right" for him.

But while most girls are used to the problems of controlling long hair, a boy is less apt to keep his hair as neat, and he should because he finds that the oil that develops on it has to him to control it. And it is this accumulation of excess oils that can create and spread an acne-like skin condition.

There is no one prescribed cure for this problem skin, but dermatologists stress that a rigorous regimen of cleanliness is of the utmost importance in controlling its spread. Today they recommend a liquid cleanser with anti-bacterial action for both the face and the scalp. And the most recent development, the foaming Hyperphase cleanser—named after the skin problem years—adds cumulative protection.

For shampooing, authorities say that dispensing about ½ teaspoon of the Hyperphase liquid into the wet hair, adding more warm water for more lather, starts the active against the bacteria-spreading oils. They emphasize that any good shampoo conditioner should be used then, to avoid putting oil back on the hair.

Whether it's long or short, hair that is properly cared for can help combat the skin problems of those hyper phase years, say the experts.

CRACKDOWN ON THE SDS

Though the misnamed Students for A Democratic Society is a clear threat to good order and academic freedom at every American university, few institutions have yet taken an absolutely firm line in dealing with this destructive organization. The kind of measure needed to prevent campus disorders is that taken by the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors at the close of the academic year. The board approved a resolution banning the SDS from all campuses within the LSU system.

The LSU board resolution said that "its current activities throughout the United States make it apparent that SDS is a radical, revolutionary organization dedicated to the destruction of American institutions, beginning with American universities. It, therefore, constitutes a clear and present danger to the entire Louisiana state university system."

The SDS was formed in 1962. It has been the spearhead of revolutionary action from coast to coast. Only now, seven years after its founding, are colleges and universities beginning to wake up to the SDS' destructive goals. In the past, the SDS didn't have any difficulty finding a campus on which to hold its annual national convention. This year, the SDS admitted, it was turned down by 37 colleges and universities and at least 25 meeting halls, parks and camps.

Some institutions have yet to demonstrate courage in dealing with the SDS. Harvard, the nation's oldest university, actually allowed an SDS spokesman to deliver a harangue at commencement exercises. The former president of Radcliffe, Harvard's sister college in Cambridge, Mass., the SDS also was given an opportunity to have a spokesman address the graduates.

Indeed Radcliffe authorities seemed determined to give offense to patriotic, law-abiding citizens. Its commencement speaker was the Rev. William S. Coffin, Jr., the Yale University chaplain who last year was convicted by a federal court jury of conspiring to violate the selective service law.

Yale showed no more concern than Radcliffe for the feelings of its patriotic alumni. A member of the graduating class was allowed to deliver a speech attacking America's involvement in the Vietnam War. No one was given an opportunity to speak in behalf of the Yale alumni proudly serving in Vietnam or who rendered loyal service to their country in past wars in defense of freedom.

At Princeton, the valedictorian, Michael A. Bernstein, called the United States "sick." He expressed solidarity with Black Panthers in New York, mutinous soldiers in California, and SDS members involved in a disturbance at a New Jersey plant. He said "their options open up possibilities for us, and... their defeat would be ours as well."

By allowing a handful of students to give such speeches, these universities give the country a false picture of attitudes among young Americans in college. The SDS has only about 35,000 members, a small number in a country of more than 200 million people. The militant minority is just that, but the prominence they get—often with the support of radical faculty members and administrators—helps the extremists build up their image as a powerful force.

The vast majority of college students want to get an education and firmly disapprove of the destructive outlook of the SDS and similar groups. Often, they want to take counter-action against the extremists.

At Ohio University recently, members of the Young Americans For Freedom, a patriotic group edgwearing the still of the majority of students, successfully frustrated the attempts of SDS members to break up an ROTC parade. Such counter-action is growing in importance as the SDS becomes more aggressive.

The Student Council at Palm Beach Atlantic College, in Florida, said "The students here believe it is high time some student body spoke up for the huge majority of students and let it be known that they are strongly opposed to the disruptive actions of small groups of students."

For the majority to take a stand is the American way. The New Left may soon find it is facing a revolt in reverse.

Cooking With Flair--for summer

PINEAPPLE FINGER CAKE

When summer weather invites you to outdoor meals, plan foods that are fun, easy-to-eat and simple -to-prepare (with a minimum of utensils left for the dishwasher) Pineapple Finger Cake fills the bill perfectly--a scrumptious flavor combination of crushed pineapple and chopped nuts.

This loaf cake sprinkled with confectioners sugar can be safely carried from oven to anywhere. Another time and mind-saver is enriched self-rising flour. There's no mixing or measuring because the miller has already blended in correct amount of leavening and salt. No matter where Pineapple Finger Cake is served, your family will benefit from the essential B-vitamins, thiamin, niacin and riboflavin, plus the minerals iron and calcium goldenized into the enriched self-rising flour.

PINEAPPLE FINGER CAKE

12 to 15 servings

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) crushed pineapple (undrained)
1 cup chopped nuts
2 cups enriched self-rising flour*
Confectioners sugar

PINEAPPLE FINGER CAKE

Beat eggs until fluffy and lemon-colored. Gradually blend in sugar until mixture is thick and light in color. Stir in pineapple and nuts. Gradually mix in flour. Turn into greased 9 x 13-inch cake pan. Bake in preheated 350 degrees oven 25 to 30 minutes or until done. Cool in pan completely. Dust lightly with confectioners sugar.

*If you prefer to use all-purpose flour, add 2 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt to 2 cups flour.

salad

Some salads are so good that salad fanciers might sing about them. Odes could be written to the crisp, green tossed variety that's been topped with a delicately flavored dressing.

The secret's out — there's no mystery in serving salads that are fresh and crisp. A few simple rules followed by a wise cook results in a delectable salad.

According to Betty Brownell, home economist for the National Association of Food Chains, salad days begin with buymanship. She advises homemakers to select a variety of greens if a tossed salad it in the offing. The produce department boasts leaf lettuce as well as Bibb, the aristocrat of the lettuce clan. Head lettuce, torn or broken rather than cut, Romaine and spinach (nuke these or buy them already prepared) or grated cheese.

Give your family (guests, too) a change from tossed salads by serving cold vegetables. Chilled, canned asparagus with easily made orange sponge topping is colorfully appealing, especially when Greek and Italian olives, pimiento strips and onion are added. Popular 3-bean salad makes use of leftover beans and can be combined and chilled in advance.

Fruit salads, molded salads, meat salads — all are anticipated by salad lovers. Be gentle with your salads. They require a light tender touch. Save your energy for punching down homemade bread and gloory on the salads. Cultivate the touch and you'll be rewarded as a salad expert.

dressing section of your supermarket. According to Betty Brownell, there's a dressing to please everyone. Vinegar and oil to do-it-yourself, bottled dressings, envelopes of dressing where you add liquid ingredients, even low calorie favorites are there for your trying.

When tossing (and you might do this at the table — with a flourish), add a small amount of dressing and toss gently. Be sure your bowl is large enough for tossing room. Add another smidgeon of the dressing. Each leaf should be moist with dressing — but not wet enough for drowning.

Pass small bowls of "salad condiments." You might have chopped bacon, chopped whites of hard-cooked eggs of the sieved yolks, pickle cousins (make these or buy them already prepared) or grated cheese.
