The Coming of Spring

The welcome freshness of the new spring season approaches. Since the beginning of time, Spring has been nature's way of reminding man that life is a never-ending process. During the spring months of March, April, May and June, as the sun rises higher in the Northern Hemisphere, the world leaf out, crops flourish, the scent of flowers fills the air and the new young of all nature's creatures look about them with wonder at the beauty of the land and the blueness of the sky. Depending upon where we live, our thoughts will turn to the pursuits of spring gardening, Easter bonnets, vacations, weekend treks to the coasts, mountains and lakes. One and all, we will enjoy the general state of nonchalence known as spring fever that always makes its appearance after a dreary winter.

The spirit-gitme of life is now, and we should make the most of it. We should accept nature's invitation to enjoy the good things of creation, to lay aside bitterness, tension and prejudice. Spring is the time to start anew and only the foolish will deny it.

Seems to us our English cousins have a better way of printing a calendar, and maybe some day the American printer of calendars might try it the English way. Of course on the American calendar empty spaces are taken up with phases of the moon, while the British move the extra Sunday and Monday to the top---where to our way of thinking makes it a lot easier.

Nearly all of our national advertising is scheduled, like so, week of March 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and when we approach the bottom of the calendar things get confusing somehow.

Looking at the Inside

By John W. Kirk

The United States Marine Corps, which is descended from two battalions authorized by the Continental Congress in 1775, is composed of some of the very finest of America's sons.

The history of the Marine Corps is a history of courageous and patriotic service to America. On Christmas night in 1776 they supported George Washington when he crossed the Delaware River and surprised the Hessians. In 1805 they crossed the Sahara desert afoot and on camel to crush the Mediterranean pirates at Tripoli. They planted the stars and stripes over Derne, the first time an American flag was flown over a fortress of the old world.

During the War of 1812 they fought with Andy Jackson at New Orleans and they cleared the Caribbean of pirates in 1821. They were with Commodore Perry when he opened Japan to trade in 1854 and in the first World War the Fourth Marine Brigade shattered the German forces at Belleau Wood.

Their valor in World War II at Wake Island, Tarawa, Solomons, Tarawa, the Marianas, Iwo Jima, Peleliu, and Okinawa is legend. At Iwo Jimo, the youngest warrior ever to win the Congressional Medal of Honor, 17-year-old Jacklyn Lucas, a Marine, was decorated.

The Marine Corps was in Korea and we all know that they have been in Vietnam for some seven years.

Last week the United States Marine Corps sent two of its men to the University of Kentucky campus where they assembled a table in the lobby of the Student Center so that they could inform any interested students of the program, especially for college graduates, that the Corps offers.

Here are some steps to a beautiful lawn:

In the Lawn

In March, remove sticks, trash and large, flat leaves that have fallen or drifted on the lawn since the autumn fall. Small leaves from such trees as black locust, honey locust, Kentucky coffee tree, or sassafras do not need to be raked up unless they are deep enough to smother the grass.

You will want to use care in the cleanup job so that the new growth of grass is not damaged. It is best to pick up the large sticks and trash by hand. The small sticks and large leaves can be removed by sweeping the lawn very gently with a broom type rake. A steel garden rake should not be used since it will pull up too much of the grass by the roots. Do not remove last year's grass clippings that should be left on the lawn to build up the humus.

Fill in the Low Places in the Yard

A good looking lawn is smooth. Low places cause the lawn mower to cut the grass unevenly. If the low place requires only an inch or two of fill, good soil can be brought from the garden, corn or tobacco field. After the low places have been filled, sow grass seed or place sod over the fresh soil. If sod is used, roll it down and keep it watered until the roots have become attached in the soil.

If good soil is not available, equal parts of peat moss and sand can be mixed to fill in the low place if only an inch or two is needed. You might have good sod even in the low places, but you might want to cut the sod and peel it back. Then fill in the low place and roll the sod back in place. Roll or firm and sod and keep it watered well until its roots have become firmly established again.

Remove Mounds or Bumps in the Yard

If your lawn is very rough, it may be best to cut and peel off all the sod. Sod cut to thick is heavy to handle and re-establishes more slowly. Cut sod strips about a foot wide, 3/4 inch thick and in lengths easy to handle. Roll up the sod and set it aside. Grade and smooth the lawn with a tractor and blade, or by disking and dragging. Replace sod, roll down firmly, and water thoroughly.

If only a few mounds or bumps need leveling, peel the sod back and use a hoe to dig up the soil. Remove the soil and replace the sod. You can use this soil to fill in low places.

opportunity to voice my opinion. Recently there has been much comment about what the American people must do to correrect the problems of this nation. But let us take a look at the position we are in today. The average American citizen can not do anything except pay the highest tax rate in our nation's history. The people can work as hard as possible to raise children only to loose them in a political and economic war, such as Viet Nam. Oh yes, and we can vote without oppression, provided we belong to the party in power. Or we have political friends who feel we are still useful to the party.

Most of today's problems are handled by those in high government, or advanced education positions. Many of these people only care about the salary their job pays.

As far as education is concerned, No professor calling for a Communist victory should be allowed to teach young Americans. And again, the people can do nothing, this is left to the state and those running a university as to the quality of their teachers. Before anything worth while can be accomplished the politicians and well educated must realize America is in a dangerous position.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The Carlisle Mercury:

I am eager that our people be assured every opportunity to maintain their religious traditions and nurure their children in their faith. I am opposed to any restriction on the free exercise of religion.

In the last Congress, I joined with Senator Dirksen in seeking a Constitutional amendment which would permit voluntary prayer in public schools.

Although that proposed amendment fell short of two-thirds majority required, it did receive a simple majority. Senator Dirksen has re-introduced this proposal and I am preparing to give him any assistance I can in winning Senate approval by the necessary two-thirds vote.

I was thrilled to hear the reading of the Scriptures by the Astronauts during their awe-inspiring space flight. I feel that the faith they displayed is woven into our country's history and that our people must not be deprived of the right to enjoy it.

Thank you for letting me know how you feel about this matter.

With kind regards, I am

Yours sincerely,
John Sherman Cooper

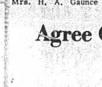
Agree Or Not,

I Say What I Think



By S. C. Van Curon

Kentucky is in a better position to benefit from developing federal programs as a result of the Legislative Research Commission conference with the Kentucky Congressional delegation in Washington recently.

This is the feeling of Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford, LRC chairman, and James T. Fleming, LRC director, as they have begun to evaluate information and reassessment of knowledge gained at the two-day meeting.

It is vitally important that some members of the General Assembly know what they're talking about when enabling legislation comes up in 1970, they said.

Other states are doing the same thing Kentucky did on this score, the Council on State Governments has pointed out. These states are in a position to gain much more than those less informed.

For instance, LRC members learned in the Washington conference that six states are receiving 70 per cent of all the Medicaid dollars spent by the Federal Government while the other 44 states must divide the remaining 30 per cent. The Kentucky group was unable to find out how it stands in this area, he is seeking information.

The importance of the conference is pinpointed particularly since the federal administration has changed. While Kentucky does not have a large delegation in Congress, these members are in strategic positions on important committees.

For instance, Congressman Carl Perkins is the Senate District is chairman of the Health, Education and Welfare Committee in the House; Sixth District Congressman John Watts ranks high on the Ways and Means Committee; Senator John Sherman Cooper holds important positions on several committees.

Senator Marlow W. Cook has been named on the poverty and hunger committee.

One of the most important actions achieved by LRC in Washington was passage of a resolution, given to the Kentucky Congressional delegation, recommending that the tax exempt status of municipal bond issues be retained, Ford believes.

Ford said he was astonished that this subject jumped from 14th place on the agenda of chairman Wilbur Mills before the House Ways and Means Committee to second place. Watts is a member. He opposes removing the tax exempt status.

The question pointed out that Kentucky has financed educational buildings through this method for more than a half century and that industrial plant expansion has been financed this way for several years.

Removal of the tax exempt status would destroy the present public policy of Kentucky," the resolution said.

Legislative Research members learned important facts on these subjects.

The highway safety plan submitted by Kentucky has been rejected by the Federal Government. Ford says he has written for a copy of the plan and the letter of rejection.

Found out how much money is available to states for administration and developing the new federal crime prevention package.

While being delighted that Pikeville got approved under the Model Cities Program, they learned that Louisville had definitely lost its bid. "We're not getting our fair share of this money," Ford said.

Established channels to keep abreast of developing programs.
