CKFA Member's Hound Wins National In South Carolina

Rich Virginia, a female hound, by Hi Glenn II out of Lady Lee, bred by James A. Jewell, Winchester, and owned by Jimmy Richardson, Owingsville, won the 1969 National Foxhound Championship, at Camden, S.C., on Nov. 10. Rich Virginia had previously won second place in the North Carolina Foxhound Festival, 1969 Meet in Lancaster, Oct. 13-15. Mr. Richardson and Mr. Jewell have been long time members of the Central Kentucky Foxhound Association and always attend the Carlisle Hound Show. The members of the Central Kentucky Foxhound Association are proud of the fact that a hound belonging to one of its members won such a coveted prize. This win is tantamount to winning the World's Championship for a Foxhound or derby hound. We here in Carlisle congratulate Mr. Richardson and his accomplishment. It indicates the quality of houndhood that are entered in our hunts at Carlisle and the name Rich Virginia is added to the long list of champion hounds that have been bred in Central Kentucky. The question has been raised as to why the National Champion hound did not win in Carlisle at the recent
