TAP Day Set For Kentucky

Planners for all USDA agencies and many state and local agencies in Kentucky will circle one day on their calendars each month. The third Thursday will see Technical Action Panels in 120 counties schedule afternoon meetings beginning in November. The efforts of this concentrated manpower in rural areas development should do much to make the farms and small towns of Kentucky a better place to live. The TAP Day for Kentucky was agreed upon by the Kentucky State TAP Executive Committee at a meeting in Lexington on Oct. 6.

Many problems in our cities today can be directly traced to neglect of our rural areas. People seeking to improve their lot in life have migrated to our cities; and as a result, employment, schools, housing and almost all activities have been taxed to the fullest.

Technical Action Panels are charged with assisting to slow down or, if possible, reversing the population shift. The TAP'er will lend assistance to local leaders in surveying and remedying problems in housing, water and sewer facilities, recreation, education and training, employment, location of industries, and other things to aid rural areas.

People or groups interested in activities of the TAP in Nicholas County can contact W. F. Threlkeld, Patti Noffsinger, Alma Atkinson, Lois Allbritton or Beasie McClanahan.

Their offices are located, Post Office, ASCS Office, Dorseyville Community Center, olas County TAP will be 1:30, Oct. 21, at Dorseyville Community Center.

Visitors interested in improving rural areas are invited to attend.

The State Department of Fish and Wildlife of Frankfort, will have three or more mobile units, with two way radios in use to report the positions of the packs of hounds, as the chase progresses. Many publicity facilities in Central Kentucky are contributing to the announcement of this event, especially the Lexington papers, radios and T.V. stations. The several Institutes of the Carlisle Mercury in supporting the hunt have been excellent and the foxhunters association greatly appreciates the interest shown by the management and personnel of the Mercury and they are to be special guests at the president's burgoo feast on Wednesday, Oct. 29,'' secretary Roger Womack, stated.

The Police and Fire Departments will provide the necessary protection and precautions to insure a safe and orderly functioning of the week's event. The City of Carlisle and the various organizations are cooperating wholeheartedly so as to make the visitors' stay in Carlisle and Nicholas County pleasant and one with the atmosphere of a warm and friendly welcome. The City is giving free parking to all of the hunters.

It will cost a great deal to have this bench show and field trials--a little less than $300 per day. Most of this money is raised by the entry of hounds and membership fees paid by the hunters. Sportsmen who do not run hounds, but attend the events become associate members and they pay a membership fee of $5.
