Association Is Appreciative

It's great, good fun--this age-old sport of foxhunting! To prove this premise, ask anyone who participated in Tuesday's cast at the Sky View Farm.

It is such a humane sport. No one wants to see anything killed. The Fox, the hounds and the horses are given great respect and all are concerned about their well being. During a field trial and for dedicated foxhunters, always the fox and hounds play the lead parts in this outdoor drama.

Foxhunting does something for people. There is so much tension in our lives today but it is evident that this week in Carlisle and Nicholas County that most people have relaxed are having a great time. These foxhunters have something going for them. They are friendly toward all people, but they have a special feeling for one another. It is like a religion, a communal fraternity in its truest forms.

The hunt this week is going great. Much of the success can be attributed to the cooperation and enthusiasm of the citizens of Carlisle and Nicholas County.

Marilyn Estridge and Brenda B. Stone of the Carlisle Junior Woman's Club, along with last year's secretary of the Association, Shirley A. Reid, did all of the paperwork involved in the taking of entries on Monday, all day, returning Monday night to record the bench show results.

Morris Whiteley of the Chamber of Commerce made available to each business house signs expressing "welcome" to the foxhunters.

Jimmy Carter and Jock Conley of the Carlisle Jaycees did excellent work in obtaining associate memberships in the Central Ky. Foxhunters Association throughout the business section.

The Association is especially appreciative of the generous effort of these citizens, as well as to those who helped with the Hunt in any way. For thanks to these citizens who supported us in this year's hunt by purchasing an associate membership, the Carlisle Jaycees donated more than $100 to the Carlisle Junior Woman's Club. Ribbons and trophies were presented to the 4-H and FFA participants on the basis of the total score obtained from the various tests. The carcass data included carcass placing, live placing, conformation grading, live grading, marbling, quality, and other facts.

Nicholas County 4-H'ers received the following awards. Clark Nichols blue ribbon in the beef show and a red ribbon in the carcass show. Nichols is all in the 4-H carcass evaluation and will receive extra premium money. Bobby and Mark Brooks received a blue ribbon in the pork show, Brooks Massey and Jimmy Harris a red ribbon in the pork show. The beef show and white ribbons in the carcass evaluation.

Jeff Scott Hall ... several beef lots up with the Nicholas market, raised and fitted by themselves as well as showing them in the various 4-H shows. Jeff received a blue ribbon in the beef show and white ribbon
