Little League Pitcher Saved From Crippling

A little league pitcher with an infectious grin is being seen in newspapers, on posters and national television. He is 11 year-old Jimmy Kaplan, The Arthritis Foundation's national poster boy.

The Nicholas County Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, which is conducting its 1969 drive here, uses Jimmy to symbolize its campaign goal, "Strike Out Arthritis."

Jimmy has juvenile rheumatoid arthritis. More than 50,000 American children have juvenile arthritis today. But Jimmy is one of the lucky ones. His disease was diagnosed early and medical treatment started immediately. He escaped the severe crippling and other complications which can result unless qualified treatment is begun promptly.

In 1962 Jimmy was only five years old when arthritis developed. Since then he has been an in-and-out-patient at the juvenile arthritis clinic of the New Jersey College of Medicine in Jersey City, N.J.

Jimmy's parents were determined that their child would have the best medical treatment available and that they would support their son in his long and difficult battle with arthritis. He was given massive doses of aspirin every day and followed other treatment programs. He never knew, until he was chosen by The Arthritis Foundation as its poster boy, that he had arthritis.

Today his treatment program consists of a smaller aspirin dosage and two checkups a year at the clinic. Jimmy's arthritis is under control. He leads a normal and active life with other youngsters his age.

Jimmy's life has been filled with exciting "firsts" since being chosen as Foster Boy. He has met with President Johnson, New Jersey Governor Richard J. Hughes, and television stars Carol Lawrence.

Jimmy is on the swimming team at his home town Mountainside, New Jersey community pool. Jimmy also is an ardent baseball fan. In fact, he owns a uniform given to him by his favorite team, the New York Mets.

One of five children of Mr. and Mrs. William Kaplan, Jimmy's driving ambition is to be an actor. His mother reports that "He is so mad about acting and is such a ham that when he opens the refrigerator door and the light comes on, he breaks into an act."

Jimmy Kaplan has struggled back from his bout with juvenile arthritis. The Kentucky Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation wants to help more arthritis victims succeed as well as Jimmy. The 1969 Strike Out Arthritis campaign here will aid them in their work.

Flu Shots Encouraged For Dystrophy Patients

Free immunization injections against flu are being made available to muscular dystrophy patients in this area by the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, Inc. Patients who have not yet been given flu shots are urged to contact Mrs. Marilynn Keal at the Muscular Dystrophy Office, 304 West Liberty Street, Louisville, Ky 40202. At that time they will be told of the proper procedures.

The Association provides this service because respiratory infections, particularly influenza, may be dangerous to persons whose chest muscles have been weakened by this chronic debilitating disease.

The money for flu shots, orthopedic appliances and physical therapy has been made available through contributions from your community.

Location Of Arthritis Road Blocks Is Given

The F.H.A. Girls of Nicholas County High School will conduct a road block, Saturday, Sept. 27, between the hours of 1:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m.

Road blocks will be set up at the traffic island at the intersection of Ky. 36 and U.S. 68; at the Broadway and North Street intersection; and at the Moorefield Road and Eastern Ave. intersection.

The top priority goal of the Arthritis Foundation current strike-out Arthritis drive is funds to help increase the number of skills of physicians and health workers available to care for arthritis suffers in Kentucky.

A chronic disease like arthritis is more than one physician can handle. He and each patient need the services of nurses, physical therapists, occupational therapists, social workers, and rehabilitation counselors to name just a few.

These members of the allied health professions need to be trained in the special treatment methods which can save arthritis patients from crippling and disability.

The Kentucky Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation supports programs of professional education, training, and recruitment to narrow this gap.

There is a great job to be done and we must not fail. While there is no cure at this time a great deal can be done. Yesterday's discouragement can be replaced by today's optimism. The Kentucky Chapter is ready at all times to help arthritis victims obtain proper medical advice and care.

The goal for the drive is $600 from Nicholas County.

FHA Girls Attend Fall District Meet

"Team-up for Leadership" was the theme of the 1969 Fall District Meeting held at Anderson County High School Sept. 20.

The 263 attending the meeting included the ten new District officers and various Chapter officers throughout the Lexington District.

Those attending from the Nicholas Chapter were: Peggy Tincher, president; Karlyn Coatney, first vice-president; Carolyn Tolson, second vice-president; Sylvia Garrett, secretary; Debbie Vice, treasurer; June Small, song leader; Patricia Ockerman, parliamentarian; Carol Weddle, reporter; Rita Williams, historian; Melicent Sugg, assistant historian; Ann House, devotion leader; and Vicky Brunker, entertainment chairman. Phyllis Atkinson replaced Peggy Tincher in the Chapter president's group meeting while Peggy, a District officer, took over a meeting of the Chapter officers. Cathy Purcell, Vicky Simpson, and Debbie Ritchie went as representatives to the members group from Nicholas County.

During the meeting, officers were trained for their duties and responsibilities that they will assume for the 1969-1970 school year. Symposiums discussing "Character", "Good Looks", and "Good Manners", timely skits, and "Thought for the Day" presentations helped officers develop qualities of a group leader.

The two new State Projects were introduced so that they can be given special emphasis this year by Kentucky FHA. They are: "Decisions That Count" and "Our World--A Growing Heritage".

Accompanying local girls to the meeting were Mrs. Martha Taylor and Mrs. Bonnie Metcalfe, Home Economics teachers at Nicholas County High School.
