FRANKFORT--Kentuckiana across the state should not be surprised if they see Gov. Louie B. Nunn in their areas within the next few weeks.

Last week he began the first of a series of what he called "sounding board tours." He denied the trips had any political significance, but it's a good guess that he will not overlook this opportunity to sound out public officials about the strength of some prospective candidates for the Republican nomination for governor next year.

He will confer with U.S. Senator John Sherman Cooper in Washington when he visits there this week. The governor leans toward Senator Cooper's candidacy for his already proven vote getting ability. Many Republicans think the senator could defeat any Democrat proposed.

Others being speculated about are Highway Commissioner Eugene Goss, Public Service Commissioner Tom Emberton and Parks Commissioner Jim Host, and Deputy Finance Commissioner Lawrence Forgy Jr. Public Information Commissioner Ken Harper also has been mentioned as a possibility for lieutenant governor. Any of these could wind up in the second spot if Senator Cooper agrees to run for governor.

Everything right now seems to depend upon what the senator will tell the governor this week in Washington.

There are some skeptics who claim that Cooper is getting too old to be governor, and that he has lost touch with the state. Former Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, who has indicated his interest in running for the Democrat nomination if Judge Bert T. Combs doesn't run, has said that there is a difference in running for governor and U.S. Senator. In other words, he is saying that it's a different ball park, and Breathitt thinks the Democrats would have just as good an opportunity to beat Cooper as any other Republican; however, he did say that Cooper would be a formidable candidate.

Gov. Nunn said there was no political significance attached to his trip last week to Natural Bridge State Park where he talked with local officials from nearby counties who visited him there during the day.

He was accompanied by Highway Commissioner Goss, but the governor pointed out that he also had representatives of Public Information, Parks and Frank Ormichelle of the Kentucky Program Development Office with him. He also said "the highway commissioner cannot be involved in politics." This is because he is covered by the Hatch Act since federal funds, are handled in the Highway Department.

If Goss does become a candidate, he will have to resign before making his announcement.

Keen observers of the political scene are coming up with a lot of combinations, but think Cooper and a young candidate for lieutenant governor would make the best Republican ticket.

It is also known that the Republicans want to get a man on the state-wide ticket from Northern Kentucky, and many are looking toward Senator Don John-when the weather was so dry, the young inexperienced teacher read the story of Noah's Ark, and when she got to the place where it rained forty days and nights, Lois quickly said, "I'm proud of that, teacher." (She thought they had had rain some place.)

Poverty does not destroy virture nor wealth bestow it.--Anonymous.

At this writing J.P. Barbee is the only home resident in the hospital. We are glad to report that the good nurse, Jane Scott is home.

Mrs. Lula Kash's daughter, Frances Kash Royce of Winchester, made her usual weekly trip from Winchester to see her mother. Frances and her husband and a party of friends have just come home from a trip to England. Frances and her cousin, Annette Burnaw kept in touch with each other on how Mrs. Kash was getting along.

Pansy Richey couldn't shut her car door without getting her finger in it. Pansy had to go to the hospital and get several stitches taken and was not allowed to work for several days. She was really missed. Doris worked right on though.

Mrs. Perlie Rule and her daughter-in-law, Betty Rule, came down from Paris and visited Dee Briggs.

Mrs. Gertrude Woodall's daughter, Margaret, came from Cincinnati to see her.

Phillip Orte of Lexington visited his uncle, Landen Stewart.

We can't find out just what Jim Letcher did to win this award, but he has a new hat and already has one red feather in it.

Harvey Ellison did more entertaining this past week. His folks really like him. They came from Pendleton, Robertson, Bourbon, Lana and Nicholas counties. His granddaughter, who is a senior at MSU, came and brought her grandfather her latest picture. Must have been a prom picture, for she looked so pretty.

Mrs. Marie Porter of Maysville visited her father, Leroy Cooper and brought him some beautiful plastic flowers in a pretty planter. Several others had pretty new flowers which were presented to them after we took inventory on Sunday. We know Mrs. Cora Gaunce had a pretty little basket brought to her by her old neighbor, Dorothy Sudduth. Joe Burden had a beautiful pot of yellow chrysanthemums which had been wired from relatives of Greenville, Ohio. We hope we haven't omitted anyone who had pretty flowers and baskets given them for this spring and Easter season.

Have you made someone happy or someone sad? What have you done with the day you had? God gave it to you to do as you would, Did you do what was wicked, or do what was good?

son of Newport as a candidate for Attorney General. If not, they would like Harper on the ticket.

Northern Kennucklins have said for years that they have been ignored by both Democrats and Republicans when choosing candidates for state-wide office.

This may be one of the reasons that Harper was one of Gov. Nunn's first choices for a high-ranking post in the administration. He was named assistant commissioner of Mental Health and then moved to commissioner of Public Information when Host was moved from that post to Parks after commissioner Robert Gable resigned early this year to return to his coal business.

There have been some who have suggested Congressman Gene Snyder as a gubernatorial candidate if Cooper doesn't run. They look at his popularity in Northern Kentucky that is part of his congressional district. While registration in that area is predominately Democratic, they vote independently and have done so for Snyder.

About everybody gets geography into their plans for a state-wide ticket. They look to the Fifth and Third Congressional Districts for the Republican stronghold, but they don't discount the other districts.

Former Representative Harry Hoe of Middlesboro is mentioned as a potential candidate for lieutenant governor, but no one close to the governor's office has brought his name into play.

Regardless of the way the governor describes his trip as "meeting with some of the counties on road and other problems" and to see if there are "any commitments the administration has made that have not been kept," he will be testing the political climate and the strength of those mentioned for office.
